ADVERTISEMENTS FOR THE HERALD RECEIVED IN BROOKLYN AT OUR BRANCH OFFICE, 145 FULTON STREET.

FOR SALE—THE CELEBRATED SCHOONER YACHT Henrietta, 210 tons burden, old measurement, winner of the great ocean yacht race to Cowes, England, in 1866, (in which she made the extraordinary run of 280 miles in 24 hours), and several other ocean races. The Henrietta has been on a cruise to the West Indies, but has returned to New York. While on her voyage from Key West to Charleston she made a run of 250 miles during rough weather, showing that she has lost none of her speed. The Henrietta has a commodious saloon, handsomely fitted up, with a large stateroom on the starboard side, three other staterooms and two staterooms forward for officers. The cabin furniture, kitchen utensils, &c., are in complete order, and the vessel will be put in readiness to go to sea immediately. M'PHERSON MONUMENT.

To Artists, Designers and Workers in Granite.—The committee having in charge the erection of a monument to the memory of Major General J. B. McPherson at Clyde, Ohio, offer a premium of $300 for the best and $200 for the second best design submitted on or before the 1st day of August, 1869. The cost of the monument not to exceed $14,000, and to be built of such material as the designer may select. The designs to be drawn to a uniform scale of one-half inch per foot and to be accompanied by proper specifications and estimate of cost. The committee reserving the right of giving the contract for its erection for the sum named in the estimate in lieu of the first premium. Address A. HICKENLOOPER, Cincinnati, Ohio.

W. B. HAZEN, Brevet Brig. Gen. U. S. A.;
M. D. LEGGETT,
A. HICKENLOOPER,
Committee.

PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED BY POST OFFICE boxes 134 and 135, Hoboken, N. J., for breaking up a quantity of old iron, &c.

TO THE MANUFACTURERS, MECHANICS, AND BUSINESS men generally.

Sealed proposals will be received until the 15th day of June next, by the undersigned, to employ by hire all the convict labor of the State Penitentiary.

The Lessee is to take all the able bodied convicts now on hand, or who may hereafter come into the prison during his term of lease, except those needed by the State to keep up the establishment. He shall also be authorized to occupy and take charge of all the shops and workhouses in said prison, to put up such machinery as he may desire, and shall have the privilege of buying at such prices as may be agreed upon all the Machinery, Tools, Fixtures and Materials on hand, both finished and unfinished.

Said lessee shall treat those hired with humanity and kindness, conforming to such rules, by-laws and regulations as may be established by the directors, and work them not exceeding ten hours each day. For each convict so employed, the lessee shall pay into the State Treasury the price per day bid, said payment to be made quarterly.

He shall also give bond, with approved security, in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, payable to the State of Tennessee, for the faithful performance of the undertaking hereby imposed. Said lease to continue for four years, at the end of which term a new proposal from said lessee shall have preference for the next four years, provided, he shall have faithfully discharged his obligations to the satisfaction of the directors; said preference not to exclude proposals from others manifestly more conducive to the interests of the State.

The workshops are built in a very substantial manner, with sufficient capacity for working five or six hundred hands; well lighted and ventilated; also conveniently arranged. There is one sixty-five horse power engine, capable of running all the machinery. The machinery has all of the most modern improvements for the manufacturing of cedar ware, furniture, agricultural implements, wagons, &c. There is also a machine shop, containing nine lathes and two bolt machines, a blacksmith shop with nine forges, clevis machine, three trip hammers and tools complete; a foundry one hundred and forty feet long and forty-five feet wide, with flasks for making all kinds of hollow ware, ploughs, corn shellers, &c. Also patterns for stove and other castings. Also one building, used for manufacturing bagging, containing fifteen looms, with all the necessary machinery for spinning, etc. There is also a stone shop, paint shop and dryhouse.

The prison buildings are beautifully located just outside of the corporation of Nashville, and within one-quarter of a mile of two railroad depots, and one mile of the steamboat landing.

There are now about 450 convicts in the prison, most of whom have served some years and are skilled mechanics in their respective branches of business. The prison is under the control of a board of directors and a warden, whose duty it is to provide for the wants of the convicts and to see that strict discipline is maintained.

Proposals may be addressed to the undersigned or the Secretary of State, within case they should be endorsed "Proposals for leasing the Tennessee Penitentiary."

Any further information desired will be furnished by addressing the Directors of the Penitentiary.

WM. SHANE,
M. R. MURRELL, Directors.
C. ROBINSON,

Cheering Prospects for the Cubans.

Negotiations for the Purchase of the Peruvian Monitors.

Reforms in the New York Custom House.

MINISTER ROSECRANS' DESPATCHES.

His Successor to Carry Back the Reply.

WASHINGTON, May 3, 1869.

Flattering Prospect of Cuban Affairs—Negotiations for the Purchase of the Peruvian Monitors—American Gunboats for the Cuban Navy.

Mr. Domingo Ruiz, the Cuban Envoy to the United States, returned to this city to-night after a few weeks' absence, which was spent in visiting different parts of the country in the interest of his cause. Mr. Ruiz declares that so far from the Cubans being in a weakly condition they are really stronger now than at any time since the commencement of their revolution. Despatches have been received by Mr. Ruiz from Cespedes, which represent the state of affairs as being in the highest degree cheering. Thousands of arms and two thousand men, among whom were two hundred American artillerists, have recently reached Cuba in safety, and fresh supplies are leaving Mexico and the United States almost every week. Mr. Ruiz states that the Spaniards are very much mistaken in supposing that the Cubans will permit them to remain idle during the warm season. Cespedes intends to force the Spanish troops to fight during the sickly season, and will permit them to take no rest until they consent to leave the country or are taken prisoners. In this kind of warfare the Cubans will have an immense advantage, being proof against the heat and the fever, while the Spaniards must naturally fall victims to both. In about a month Mr. Ruiz expects to receive intelligence from the Cuban agent sent to Peru announcing the successful negotiation of the purchase of the two Peruvian iron clads. Mr. Ambrosio Valiente, who has undertaken this business, has been given full powers, and no doubt is entertained about his complete success. The conditions will be that no money need be paid for the monitors until after the achievement of Cuban independence. The monitors are quietly awaiting at St Thomas the conclusion of the purchase, and it is said they are ready to start on their mission of destruction at twenty-four hours notice. Besides these two monitors the Cuban Envoy here hopes soon to be able to despatch three of the fastest vessels in our navy to Cuba These three vessels, which include the Hornet, now lying at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, will be purchased by Cuban gentlemen as private parties and then transferred to the Cuban government In this way the international difficulties will be got over. This arrangement meets with the approbation of our government. The Secretary of the Navy has informed Cuban gentlemen who consulted him on the subject that our government is ready to sell vessels to anybody willing to purchase, inasmuch as Congress has by enactment provided for a decrease in the force of the navy, thereby rendering the sale of several vessels of war obligatory At the same time it is given out that our government will endeavor to prevent the transfer of any such vessels to the Spanish government

Collector Grinnell—Important Reforms in the New York Custom House.

Collector Moses H Grinnell, of New York, accompanied by Mr. Blatchford, arrived here this morning and had interviews with the President and Secretary Boutwell The visit of the Collector seems to be one of a social character altogether the principal object being to see the President and thank him for complimenting him with the gift of the New York Custom House. Mr Grinnell, however, was not allowed to remain quietly in his quarters at Willard's. He was visited by scores of people here and congratulated on his good luck He declares it to be his purpose to make sweeping reforms in the administration of his office, and says the change in the mode of carting and storing goods is only the beginning of what he intends to do. By that change alone he claims he has saved the merchants of New York at least thirty per cent of what it used formerly to cost them This, it will be remembered, was the "big plum" of which so much was said during Smythe's administration of the Custom House. Mr. Grinnell will return to New York to-morrow

Appointments by the President.

The President has appointed Giles D. Overton, of Pennsylvania, Receiver of Public Moneys for the Utah land district; Daniel J. Vaughn, Pension Agent at Portsmouth N. H , and Captain Daniel Ammen Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks in the Navy Department.

Supervisors Appointed.

The following Supervisors of Internal Revenue have been appointed —Parker W. Perry, for the district of North and South Carolina, vice General Bennett, and S. J. Conklin for the district of Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas, vice C. E. Creecy

Departure of the Prussian Minister.

Baron Gerolt being on the eve of departure for Prussia, on leave of absence, took an informal leave of the Secretary of State to-day. He has continuously represented that government at Washington for twenty two years.

The Chinese Opposed to Progress.

Despatches received from our Minister to China, J. Ross Browne are of the same character as those of the British Minister to the Celestial Empire, representing that the Chinese are really opposed to progress, and will not permit the improvements contemplated by Burlingame's mission.

The House Committee on Foreign Relations.

General Banks reiterates the statement that no members of the Committee on Foreign Relations will officially visit San Domingo, no authority having been granted and that consequently no money has been or can be drawn from the contingent fund for such purpose.

Reserve Fund of New York National Banks.

The lawful money reserve of the national banks in the city of New York on the 17th of April was nearly $54,000,000. The funds available for a reserve exceed the amount required by law $7 000,000

General Rosecrans' Despatches.

The government will not reply to General Rosecrans respecting his recent recommendations on the subject of Mexican affairs, which there is official authority for stating do not include the purchase of the State of Sonora or any other territory, the Mexican government being opposed to further cessions to any foreign Power. Whatever the administration may have to say will be through our new Minister, Mr. Nelson, who will soon leave this country for Havana, from which city he will be conveyed to Vera Cruz in a United States ship of war. It is expected he will reach Mexico before June.

Review and Inspection of the Marines.

The marine barracks on Eighth street, east, near the Navy Yard, was the scene of a very interesting event to-day. A grand inspection and parade of the entire corps took place and was witnessed by a very select and distinguished company, including Mrs. Grant, Secretary Borie, Admiral Porter and General Dent. Mrs Grant, accompanied by a few ladies, arrived about half-past eleven o'clock and was conducted by General Zeilin to his private residence, where a very fine assemblage of ladies and gentlemen had already gathered. Secretary Borie came a little later and entered at the wrong side of the barracks, through a mistake. Never having visited the place before he was not posted as to its topography, and consequently made some amusement by gliding across the parade ground from the back entrance while a company of the marines were waiting in front of the residence of General Zeilin to receive him with the honors for such occasions made and provided. President Grant himself was expected, but owing to pressure of business could not come. About noon the parade commenced, Lieutenant Colonel Heywood acting as reviewing officer and Lieutenant L. W. Nokes acting as commander of battalion. Four companies participated in the parade, and were commanded as follows:—Company A by First Lieutenant U. S. Muse; Company B by Second Lieutenant C. N. Porter, son of the Vice Admiral; Company C by Second Lieutenant E. T. Bradford, and Company D by Second Lieutenant A. H. O'Brien. The battalion went through its exercises in splendid style, displaying a proficiency in drill very rarely seen. The neatness of the uniforms and cleanness of the arms of each man in the battalion were remarkable. The parade and inspection lasted over an hour, after which the officers repaired to General Zeilin's house, where a delightful dance took place.

Regulations of the Treasury Department.

The Secretary of the Treasury to-day issued the following regulations —

First—From and after this date the office hours for the several bureaus shall be from nine o'clock A. M. to three o clock P. M.

Second—All delinquencies in not promptly attending at the morning hour, or not continuing diligently employed during business hours, will be daily reported by those having subordinate charges to the head of the bureau, who, unless satisfied such absence was absolutely necessary, will report the same to the Secretary.

Third—Clerks or others in the department are not to give information or advice as to any vacancies that are to be filled.

Fourth—Promotions will be made upon merit only, and upon the evidence furnished by the records of the department.

Fifth—Employés will be allowed leave of absence not to exceed one month in any fiscal year, and any absence over this allowance, whether authorized or unauthorized, will be without pay. Application for leave of absence must state the date of appointment and number of days the applicant has been absent during the present year.

Sixth—When absence is caused by sickness a certificate of the attending physician must be furnished, showing the nature of the disease the duty at endance and amount and extent of the disability caused by such sickness, with the date when first called in and when attendance ceased

Seventh—Employés are not permitted to visit each other or to receive visits during business hours.

Eighth—Heads of bureaus will submit to the Secretary on the 1st of each month a statement, containing the names of such employés in their offices as have been absent from their duties during the previous month, together with the reasons assigned for such absence.

Ninth—They will also submit to the Secretary, by the 5th of each month, a statement of the work performed in their offices during the month previous.

Tenth—Neither smoking nor the use of intoxicating liquors during business hours will be tolerated.

Eleventh—Heads of bureaus are charged with the faithful execution of these orders, and they will take proper measures to make them known to all their subordinates.

Twelfth—Violations of any of these rules will be considered sufficient cause for removal.

Mr. Martin, of Alabama, recently appointed Sixth Auditor of the Treasury, entered upon his duties to-day.

Treasury Warrants Issued During April.

Warrants were issued by the Treasury Department during the month of April to meet the requirements of the government as follows:—Civil, miscellaneous and foreign intercourse, $6,280,000; war, $4,760,000; navy, $1,600,000; interior, pensions and Indians, $2,660,000; interest on the public debt, $4,134,000. The warrants issued for the redemption of the public debt are not included in the above.

THE ADMINISTRATION.

WASHINGTON, May 2, 1869.

The experience of the most observing men at the capital does not recall a period in the history of any administration showing a parallel to the dissatisfaction that now prevails in the party in power, in consequence of the extraordinary distribution of the official patronage. The scenes and scrambles that have been exhibited here during the past two months have been beyond comparison disgusting, and, almost beyond the hope of reconciliation, demoralizing.

The greater portion of the prevalent discontent has been occasioned by the peculiar and extraordinary use the President has made of his appointing prerogative, and if there have been no open and positive demonstrations, expressive of disapprobation and indicative of the most positive evidence of dissatisfaction, it is attributable to an overruling necessity to preserve the political peace, rather than to the existence of a predominating spirit of toleration and forbearance.

With the absence of members of Congress all efforts on their part to obtain office for their friends have ceased, and this circumstance is beginning to reveal the state of feeling produced by the unavailing solicitations that have fallen cold upon the ear of the Executive.

The resolution offered on the last day of the session by Senator Carpenter, calling upon the heads of the departments at Washington for such data as would furnish the number of appointees from each State, the length of time they had resided in such State prior to their appointment, and the names of the persons upon whose recommendations they were appointed, had more significance than appeared at the time it was submitted.

If the asseverations of members may be regarded as conclusive testimony, they were, in numerous instances, utterly powerless to serve their constituents in the way of appointments, from the fact that the President had appropriated so many places for friends whom he desired to gratify by conferring upon them some place of honor or profit.

In one State, in which there were but four important offices to confer, it is affirmed that the President appropriated two, and made the appointments against the remonstrance of the entire delegation for the mere gratification of a personal wish. But such complaints are numerous, and there is scarcely a member who is ready to confess to any obligation to the appointing power for the recognition of a single recommendation for office

But the dissatisfaction, general as it is, is not confined to the President. Since the scramble for office commenced there has been a feeling of distrust, not only between members from the same State, but among members from different States For a long time a system has prevailed recognizing the local privileges of members—assigning to each his field of operation in the distribution of government employment. For example, a member of the House has been allowed to designate the appointees for his district, conceding to Senators certain general privileges. But latterly there has been an overstepping of the allotted bounds. Members have been encroaching upon each others territory, and have even gone so far as to transcend the boundaries of States. For example, a member has a friend residing in a State remote from the one he represents. This friend is repudiated by the members of the State to which he properly belongs. The member who proposes to adopt him has him appointed and charged to his State, and when his colleagues come to ask for appointments they find that they have accomplished the sum of their allotment by the preferment of imported population.

Another loose practice that prevails is for members to sign recommendations indiscriminately for persons to retain and to get places, without regard to locality, and often without regard to merit or previous political condition, so that they are guilty of the inconsistency of sometimes preferring adventurers to their own constituents, and of recommending persons for office without any knowledge of their merits.

Senator Trumbull comprehended the ultimate consequences of the loose practices of members and of the degrading occupation to which members condescend in becoming the mere solicitors of an office-begging crowd who make their periodical appeals for government benefits. It was a virtuous precept advanced by the Senator that office should be the price of good behavior, and it was well sustained by his threat to make it a penal offence for members to solicit office. But mark the response of Mr. Fessenden. If he wanted to be a good fellow he must follow the example of other good fellows and trudge the rounds of the departments begging clerkships. Mr. Fessenden's idea is the popular one, not because they are over anxious to serve their constituents, but because they desire to retain control over a little patronage. Mr. Trumbull will never succeed in making it a penal offence for members to solicit office Too many members have sons and other relatives for whom they wish to provide, and they will never vote that it is a crime to provide for their own families, whatever becomes of their constituents.

The appointing business has been unfortunate in its consequences from the very beginning. There is apparently no permanency to the present Cabinet. Mr. Borie was called from the most complete retirement to the head of the Navy Department, to the astonishment of himself no less than the country. The place is not suited to his taste nor to his experience. Admiral Porter, who it was confidently expected would be assigned to the Navy, is called to his relief. Some one said one day, "Admiral, I thought you was to have been Secretary of the Navy?" "Well I am the next thing to it," was the response, and so the Admiral has the helm, and the superior is constantly reminded of his own inferiority. It is enough to give him bad health, and common rumor is not far out of the way when she discovers the symptoms of a prospective breaking down.

And there is a foreshadowed feebleness in the heads of other departments. The patients may linger for a while, but it will not be strange if they come to appreciate the diffusive benefits of Washburne's example and make room for healthy Cabinet material by placing the ocean between them and the capital.

In very few instances has the President been successful in calling forth public approbation in reference to his appointments. The Quaker enterprise was intended as the master stroke of policy. Congressmen at first yielded a ready assent, probably because they were impressed with the novelty of sending the Straight Coats among the Indians, but very soon they discovered that the Indian agencies were too good offices to throw away upon such an undemonstrative class of citizens. Some thought the Quaker appointments were desirable, because the Friends would conciliate the savages and there would be no more fighting. But now it appears that the Quakers have nothing to do with buying the Indian supplies. In this branch of the business there may be as much cheating as heretofore, and the Quakers will have nothing to do but to distribute the trinkets and inculcate the principles of patience and forbearance Another cause of complaint is that the Quakers are assigned to the peaceful Indians, where their conciliatory offices are not essential. It is an experiment which the politicians will survive the failure of, even if it should bury the President.

But with all the discontent, President Grant does as he pleases. Now that the appointments are chiefly made and Congressmen are not here to importune him he has betaken himself to enjoyment. He is not naturally a laborious man. A notion has prevailed that he leans somewhat to the other extreme It is evident that he is not a student. He does not weary himself with reading the good and bad things the papers say of him; he is satisfied with the daily developments in political matters and foregoes the pleasure of any deep researches in commentaries upon constitutional law. He is not greatly absorbed in the Sprague reform. That he has taken some interest in the dog question is inferable from his hitherto interest in the canine family. He will enjoy his excursions near home, and go to California when he gets time. He will dine General Lee, appoint reconstructed rebels in spite of the scolding of Madame, the Doctress of Syracuse, and let his brood mares run in the White House grounds for the pleasure of seeing them from the window of the executive chamber. In the meantime, the dissensions will progress in the party the army of disappointed office seekers will hold their members responsible for their disappointment, the members will charge the failure to Grant, who, among them all, will be the only one who has peace, and who, amid the general grumbling and disquietude, will continue to prefer his relatives and friends while the "fight barnacles" are at home among their constituents demonstrating the theory of "how not to do it"

The question now to be solved is, whether the republican party, like Senator Sprague's dogs, has had its day If it has strength enough to bear up against the prevailing mutterings and dissensions produced by the disgraceful scenes which have been enacted since the inauguration, it may survive the shock of adverse fortune; but there is no prospect of relief from these internal commotions. So long as the present system prevails of making government patronage available to party uses there will be an augmentation of hostile feeling, but a constant reiteration of censorious and revengeful sentiments. With the exception of the eminent occupant of the White House, scarcely a distinguished and efficient supporter of the administration is ready to confess that he is satisfied with the past or cheered with the prospects of the future. The rebellion, as the dress reformers affirmed, made Grant President and it made the republican party. There are some who predict that the President and the party will be travelling different roads when Congress convenes again.

GRANT AND THE REPUBLICANS.

The War of the Senatorial Oligarchy on the President—The Western and Eastern Organs and the Fight—Smash-Up of the Republican Party.

[From the Boston Advertiser (Senator Sumner's organ), May 1.]

The Chicago Tribune in a recent issue calls attention to a change which nearly two months' experience of the new administration has wrought in public opinion. No other administration since the first had come into power with a firmer hold upon the confidence of the country The good fortune which had followed the President elect to the day of his inauguration inspired faith in him, hearty, genuine and almost universal. His antecedents, and the assurances of the few whom he admitted to his counsels, gave ample cause for the belief that the government was about to be administered upon sound principles, and that his own pure motives and unsuspected patriotism would be represented in all parts of the public service. But "there has been a change. Two months have passed away and it cannot be affirmed that we have a strong administration Its moral power has been frittered away by small absurdities, which fortunately have no bearing upon the sincerity, the truthfulness or the high purpose of the President and his advisers We doubt if there ever was an administration with more good intentions at heart or less aptitude for carrying them into effect."

The Tribune speaks strongly, but no one will suspect it of speaking carelessly, or with any other than a loyal purpose. The change to which it calls attention and the manifest causes which made the change inevitable, have been more widely known and more earnestly talked about than the President and his personal advisers will ever be likely to understand. There are always enough to tell the King the good things the people say about him, but the friends who are willing to tell him where he has been mistaken, and what acts of his are calculated to impair his influence, and need to be amended, are unfortunately not so common. But the President himself, in the course of his eventful and heroic life, has been in difficult places enough, and has in his character enough of genuine chivalry to know that no better service can be rendered to him than to point out the errors into which he has been led and to show the way in which they may be most speedily and effectively redressed.

It is unfortunate that the first task imposed upon a new administration is to contend with the ravenous birds of prey who look upon the public patronage as their particular plunder and the only adequate reward for party services It would, perhaps have been too much to expect that the President should say to them that he could not enter upon so delicate a task as the reorganization of the public service till the hungry brood dispersed and left him and those who were to be held responsible for the proper administration of their departments free to consider the merits of the applicants in connection with the needs of the service That would have removed the chief difficulty But the situation, difficult at the best was complicated by the manner in which the first important appointments were made For these the President was alone responsible. He made them without consultation with any one, and manifestly from a sense of profound gratitude for the encouragement and aid the gentlemen selected had given him. We can speak of them with the greater freedom because we have no feeling but respect for them and a hearty appreciation of their public services. To mention but one instance, it is manifest now that a great mistake was committed when personal friendship was allowed to dictate the first Cabinet offer, who, although he was not expected to enter upon the duties of the place, took advantage of the golden opportunity to put in motion the old machinery for the distribution of patronage which is the scandal of our service, and which we firmly believe it was the President's intention to discard How many subsequent mistakes can be traced to that error we cannot say, but if the present Secretary of State or the President himself were as free to speak as private citizens are they would doubtless verify the well authenticated reports which have been the subject of conversation and criticism in all intelligent circles since this unwelcome task was imposed on them.

Many of the appointments which the President made by advice were not less unfortunate These were crowded by sheer physical force through the opening which Mr. Washburne left. They were for the most part of politicians with a local reputation, endorsed by executive committees and members of Congress, and gifted with an infinite capacity for "dingdonging" their claims, as Senator Trumbull despairingly called it, into the ears of the unhappy officer who had to answer their demands The number of these is, perhaps, not larger than would have successfully run the gauntlet, whoever had been President while the present pernicious system is in force But it is large enough to have made [illegible] to some extent the enthusiasm with which the new administration was launched and to lead many thoughtful and observing men for the moment to look upon the [illegible] with divided emotions.

It should, however, be remembered that these and all other appointments have been made with the definite assurance of the President that if he failed in his first choice he would not hesitate to make the second or even the third trial The time for the second trial in some cases will soon come, and the President will in no way fortify himself more securely in the respect and trust of the people who seek for nothing but the public welfare than by carrying this assurance into effect.

The Chicago Tribune as a Fault Finder and the Apologist for Retrenchment.

[From the Chicago Tribune (Senator Trumbull's organ), April 29.]

During the war the clerical force of the government in all its departments was greatly increased, and often very recklessly. Temporary clerks were appointed in squads of thirty and forty, and generally the offices became permanent. No office was discontinued, but a constant increase of the number was kept up. The salaries also were raised and when the war closed there were at least 2,000 civilians in government employ, in addition to the force employed before the war. There was no difficulty in disbanding the army of 600,000 men; but this army of civilians was not to be shaken off With more than barnacle tenacity they clung to the pay rolls. The most of these people, men and women, went to Washington from distant States. They were, as a class, too lazy to earn their bread by work at home, and therefore went down, and, though their representatives in Congress, were placed upon the civil pension list. As a matter of course, they resisted all efforts for their displacement. They constituted a lobby to defeat all legislation having for its object the reduction of the civil force to the footing of a peace establishment, and they were not only successful in this, but they annually obtained from Congress a special pension equal to twenty per cent additional salary. During Johnson's administration the number of civil officers of the government, not only at Washington, but in all parts of the country, was increased. Neither Congress nor the Executive had the courage to dismiss the useless officials. During a few months, while General Grant was acting Secretary of War, he took the responsibility, as far as his discretion extended, of dismissing a large number of persons and of closing a large number of offices no longer needed by the government. There was the usual outcry against the petty economy of dismissing a few clerks at comparatively small salaries, but the most effectual answer to this was the fact that the aggregate of expenditures saved by the limited reform already instituted was equal to two and a half millions of dollars a year.

The last Congress at its last session was driven into reform by the imperious demands of the press and people of the country. These thousands of clerkships had no other warrant of law than the appropriations from time to time. A discontinuance of the appropriations involved a discontinuance of the offices, and since the first of March we have witnessed the discharge of a large number of these clerks. Several hundreds have already been discharged, and by the first of July the whole number dismissed will have reached 1,500 males and females.

The democratic papers are making piteous complaints about the hardships and cruelty upon these poor men and women who have been dismissed, and they ridicule the economy which exhibits itself in that form But the whole expenses of the government are made up of small items, and the cutting off of 1,500 salaries, averaging $1,000 each, is an aggregate saving well worthy of consideration. The reduction of expenditure by millions is exactly what is needed to reduce taxation, and no government can palliate the crime of continuing any man in office whose services are not needed.

An Iowa Radical Paper on the Chicago Tribune and Its Views About General Grant's Cabinet.

[From the Burlington (Iowa) Hawk Eye, April 29.]

The Chicago Tribune wants a new Cabinet, with the exception, perhaps, of the Secretary of War, who is an Illinois man and of course competent for his position. Secretary Fish "has come down to us from a former generation" and "is not the man to conduct our diplomacy." The abilities of the Secretary of the Treasury "are not above mediocrity" and he is only able to "drift with the tide" The Secretary of the Navy is "unfitted either for administration or council" and his "unfamiliarity with political affairs is exceeded only by his ignorance of naval affairs." The Secretary of the Interior, the Postmaster General and the Attorney General are probably competent to discharge the clerical duties of their offices, but are in no way distinguished as statesmen." Such is the substance of the Tribune's indictment of the Cabinet. It has a further grievance in the fact that the President has appointed some personal friends and relatives to office We mention the Tribune's article as a matter of current news. That paper and some other journals that might be mentioned have not thus far apparently had the influence with the new administration they expected to have, and this doubtless has enabled them to detect the inefficiency and inaptitude of Cabinet ministers sooner than they otherwise would. We wait to see if Grant comes down at the Chicago Tribune's bidding.

Extracts from the Chicago Tribune on the Subject in Question.

[From the Chicago Tribune, April 27.]

When General Grant was inducted into the Presidential office, on the 4th of March last, he was stronger in the respect and confidence of the people than any other man who has filled that high office during the present generation. * * * On that day it may be safely said that President Grant was the strongest man in Christendom, for his power was rooted in the affections of a free people. There has been a change. Two months have passed away and it cannot be affirmed that we have a strong administration. Its moral power has been frittered away by small absurdities. * * * General Grant's first mistake consisted in his supposing that a government is the same thing as an army. * * * To carry on a government statesmen are needed who understand the ideas, the wants and temperament of the people, and whose conjoint experience and wisdom may form a body of opinion in harmony with the nation, or at least with the party in power. If there be a statesman in General Grant's Cabinet he has yet to make himself known as such to the public. To begin at the beginning, the Secretary of State does not know the men, or the idea, or the country at the present day, nor do they know him. * * * It is probable that he was as much surprised when he was called to fill the foremost place in the Cabinet as his countrymen were He has come down to us from a former generation. * * * But he is not the man to conduct our diplomacy. Nor is he the man to take a leading position in a great and progressive government * * * The second mistake of the President (and the one which has perhaps weakened him most in public estimation) is his eagerness to appoint personal friends and relatives to office. In this behalf he has furnished a target to the enemy where all their shots take effect, and not upon him alone, but upon the party which elected him. In appointing Mr Washburne Secretary of State, as a mere matter of compliment, he trifled with the dignity of the highest office in his gift. A compliment of this nature ought not to have been either conferred or accepted. The office is too high to be made an instrument of politeness. More than a half the votes against the repeal of the Office Tenure law were made by this act. * * * Why, it may be asked, do we say these things? The answer is twofold. In the first place they are already known—everybody is talking about them, in the streets, on the horse cars, in the railroad trains in the club rooms, around the euchre tables and everywhere except in the Executive Mansion. The facts cannot be more public than they are. In the second place it is necessary, as we conceive, that there should be a change. There must be a Cabinet, with statesmanship in it and there must be an end to nepotism in the government, because the respect and confidence of the public cannot be retained where the former is wanting and where the latter abounds. Without the respect and confidence of the public no administration can have any vitality.

Response of the Western Democratic Press.

[From the St. Paul (Minnesota) Pioneer, (democratic), April 30.]

What does all this mean? People who remember back to the election and inauguration of Franklin Pierce, in 1852–3, can here see its exact counterpart and repetition. The principles of the democratic party were then all triumphant, and established in the very structure of the government. They had "no more worlds to conquer." Their last enemy was underneath their feet Nothing, consequently, was left to be done but for democrats to fight over the offices. The hour of weakness succeeded the hour of unclouded triumph. In six months after his inauguration by the votes of nine-tenths of the American people, Franklin Pierce was the most unpopular individual not only that ever occupied the Presidential chair, but within the limits of the four seas that surround the continent.

The republican party has carried into the legislation of the country the whole programme of radical politics. Its sytem of reconstruction is as complete as laws can make it. Suffrage is, so far as laws can make it, for all colors and nativities (except native born American white men), an accomplished fact, or an assurance. They have nothing left to fight for, but the offices; and for these they fight against each other. Disintegration and ruin are before them, and none will mourn the catastrophe.

THE ANTI-RUM ERA IN BOSTON.

Expiration of the License Law—The Barroom Keepers Ordered to Close Up Immediately—One of Them Goes Crazy and Hangs Himself.

BOSTON, May 3, 1869.

The season of prohibition is again coming. The old license law expired Saturday, and the officers of the State constabulary went around and informed all liquor dealers that they must close their places forthwith. None of them complied with the order, however, and the barrooms are opened to day as usual. Prosecutions will probably be commenced at an early day, and the result will be that all the public drinking saloons will be closed and the club rooms of a few years since will be revived. There is, of course, much uneasiness felt on the part of the liquor dealers, and their patrons are naturally indignant and excited at the prospective difficulties which they will have to encounter in indulging in the flowing bowl, and the legislators who have given such an extraordinary law are numerously and handsomely denounced.

Thomas Norton, who carried on a small drinking place at the Highlands, was so excited when informed that he must cease his business that he went crazy and hung himself.

The liquor dealers and hotel proprietors, to the number of 500 or 600, held a meeting at the Parker House this afternoon to consider what action to take in reference to the threatened enforcement of the prohibitory law. The question was freely discussed and very uncomplimentary allusions were made to the Legislature. It was decided not to resist the law as a body, but individually it is likely nearly every dealer will evade or attempt to. Resolutions were passed favoring the formation of a new political party at once, its chief purpose being to secure more liberal legislation on the liquor and other questions, and a committee was appointed to take the preliminary steps in the matter.

From the public sentiment as now expressed it is reasonable to believe that the movement will be successful, and in its success the radical politicians are fearful for the safety of the republican party. Matters cannot be changed, of course, until another election, and during the meantime total abstinence will be the law, if not the custom, in Massachusetts.

PONY CATCHING IN NORTH CAROLINA.—On the "banks" which skirt our Atlantic coast there are salt marshes attached lying on the sounds inside. On some portions of these banks large numbers of small ponies are raised. They are small, hardy and endurable horses, raised without feeding, and only brought up once or twice a year to be marked by the owner and taken off or sold, or suffered to remain and propagate. The 10th of May is the favorite time for the sport of "pony penning." It is said to be highly amusing, and large numbers of persons go there to enjoy the sport and to purchase ponies.—Wilmington (N. C.) Journal, May 1.

INTERESTING FROM ALASKA.

Destruction of Indian Villages by an Expedition Under General Davis and the United States Steamer Saginaw—Security Bay—Discovery of Fresh Coal Fields.

WASHINGTON, May 3, 1869.

The Navy Department to-day received despatches from Rear Admiral T. T. Craven, dated Mare Island, March 31, enclosing reports from Commander Meade, of the United States steamer Saginaw, of his operations in Alaska, where that vessel has been stationed for several months. Among the reports is one relating to the destruction of certain villages and stockaded forts belonging to the Kake Indians as punishment for the murder of two American tradesmen, Ludwig Manger and William Walker. These two men left Sitka on a trading expedition in December last, and were killed in revenge for a native killed by a United States soldier. Major General Davis, his chief of staff, Captain McIntyre, and seventeen soldiers accompanied the expedition.

The Saginaw arrived at Saginaw bay on the 14th of February and destroyed a settlement on Kow Island, leaving but one house, belonging to an Indian woman who had on several occasions aided the whites by acts of friendship. On the 16th destroyed the villages on Kupllanoff island. On the next day the salmon fisheries and two stockaded forts at Security bay. One town, three villages, consisting of about thirty-five houses; eight canoes and two forts were destroyed in all. It was believed that the burning of the villages would be a far greater punishment than the arrest and execution of the murderers, as the Indians in that region are said to place little value on life, and frequently compound for a murder with a few blankets in their wars with each other. The houses cannot be replaced without great labor and time. The Kekows, or Kakes, have long been notorious as a bad tribe, and their murder of Mr. Ebbey, United States Collector, and the crew of the Royal Charlie, had never been avenged The Indians had abandoned their settlements on the approach of the Saginaw.

Commander Meade reports that while on the expedition he entered a bay on the northwest end of Kow Island, which, from its advantages as a harbor, he named "Security Bay," and the anchorage "Snug Harbor." The bay is about six and a half miles in extent, with an average depth of ten fathoms to the anchorage, and from nine to three fathoms elsewhere. Commander Meade considers it the best rendezvous possible for a whaling fleet—superior to Sitka—and a better site for a military post than Kootz-Naboo. It has never before been entered by a vessel of war. The Hudson Bay Company's steamers have long resorted to it and are well aware of its advantages. There were also discovered fresh fields of coal at Kootz-Naboo, one seam being five feet wide. It can be worked only at low water. It is believed that Kootz-Naboo is a vast field of coal. Owing to its resinous quality the coal is considered dangerous on shipboard and great care has to be exercised with it.

HORSE NOTES.

The trot between Lady Thorn and American Girl was postponed yesterday until the first fair day. The track was too heavy for sharp work, being slippery and dangerous. The race will come off this afternoon if the weather is fine.

The stakes for the race meeting of the Prospect Park Fair Grounds will close on the 20th of May.

The following petition to the Park Commissioners is being extensively circulated. It finds so much favor with our roadites that the array of weighty names which will be laid before the Commissioners will be sufficient to convince them of the necessity of the work. Let it be done at once.—

To the Honorable BOARD OF PARK COMMISSIONERS:—

Your honorable body are no doubt aware that, owing to the march of improvement in this city, many of the most favorite drives of gentlemen who are fond of enjoying the pleasures of the road will be closed to them in future.

In view of the annoyance which this must necessarily give to the riding public of this great city, who have millions of dollars invested in vehicles and horses, and who are averse to being deprived of their pleasures, we request of your honorable body to take the matter into consideration and ascertain whether permanent relief cannot be afforded by converting the Sixth avenue from the upper terminus of the Park into a dirt road. This, it is believed, would be a great boon to the riding community, and would save a great amount of wear and tear of the valuable animals and costly vehicles owned in this city.

Should your honorable body entertain views in regard to this matter similar to those expressed by your petitioners, official action can at once be entered upon, greatly to the gratification of the community.

The well known race horse De Coursey, by Trovatore, dam Rhoda, by Glencoe, is dead. He was burned to death on the cars on his way to the West in charge of John Crooks, the trainer On the cars with him at the time was a Hambletonian mare, who was also destroyed. These horses were the property of Mr. Ring, of Denver City, Colorado, and were on their way to his great breeding establishment in that Territory. The origin of the fire is unknown, but the first intimation of danger given to Mr. Crooks was the hearing of a commotion among the horses in the cattle car soon after leaving Meadville. On looking out Mr. Crooks discovered the car to be in flames, and burning with such intensity that before the train could be stopped and the flames extinguished both horses were burned to death. There was a great quantity of straw and hay in the car, and the supposition is that this became ignited by a spark from the furnace of the engine.

The Bogart colt, at Nyack, has been put in the hands of Dr. Cook to be trained for track purposes. His owner thinks that Cook will get the horse in the thirties.

SHOCKING AFFAIR AT NORTH ANDOVER, MASS

A Schoolboy Shoots Himself Rather Than Apologize to His Teacher.

BOSTON, May 3, 1869.

North Andover was the scene of another sad tragedy at about half-past eight o'clock this forenoon Frank Cheney, about fifteen and a half years old, the youngest of four children of Mr. A. P. Cheney, the keeper of a variety store near the machine shop, committed suicide by shooting himself. He had recently commenced attending the High School, but did not like the school, and left it on Friday last. Since that time he had told one of his chums that his mind was made up, and that he should not attend that school again. His parents did not sympathize with him in his reluctance to go to school, and his father informed him that he must return this morning and ask forgiveness of the teacher for leaving. About eight o'clock one of his sisters, who also attends the school, told him it was time to get ready, and he went to his room for that purpose, as she supposed. As he remained longer than anticipated, his sister went to his room and found the door fastened. She called the father, who burst open the door, and found his son lying dead on the floor. He had used two pistols to accomplish his purpose, and apparently had discharged them both at the same time. The bullet from one, a small pistol, had entered his right temple, while a bullet from a revolver, which he had discharged with his left hand, had penetrated his heart. Either wound would have caused instant death. The noise of passing carriages had probably prevented the discharges from being heard by the family. The boy was an open hearted, lively lad, enjoying the esteem of all who knew him, but he was very high spirited, and the command to humiliate himself by apologizing to his teacher so wrought upon his feelings that, without considering the effect of his rash act upon his friends, he seized the ready weapons which were kept in the house and terminated his life. The mother of the boy is almost distracted by this sad event, and the family, which has been much afflicted by recent sickness and death, has the heartfelt sympathy of the whole community.

IMPORTANT ACTION BY THE BROOKLYN WATER BOARD

At a meeting of the new Board of Water Commissioners, held yesterday afternoon, the following resolutions directing the repaving of seven of the leading streets of this city were adopted:—

That proposals to repave the following streets be advertised for, bids to be received until the 31st of May, at noon:—Pierrepont street, from Willow to Fulton, with Nicolson pavement, Montague street, from the bridge to Court street, with Scrimshaw concrete over the present pavement, Schermerhorn street, from Clinton street to Flatbush avenue, with Nicolson pavement, Columbia street, from Atlantic street to Hamilton avenue, with Belgian pavement; Livingston street, from Columbia street to Flatbush avenue, with Scrimshaw concrete over the present pavement; Fort Greene place, from DeKalb avenue to Atlantic street, with Nicolson pavement, Henry street, from Fulton street to Fourth place, with Scrimshaw concrete over the present pavement.

It was also provided that gas and sewerage connections should be made on the line of the improvements wherever they were found to be wanting.

Passage of the Hansom Cab Bill.

The Sheriff's Extra Bounty Bill Amended.

The Bribery and Corruption Bill Recommitted in the Senate—Defeat of the Bill for Payment of Salaries of Supreme Court Judges in Gold—Passage of the Registry Bill and the Sheriff's Fees Bill in the Senate.

ALBANY, May 3, 1869.

A very interesting discussion was had in the morning session of the House on the Senate Bribery and Corruption bill, which was resumed in the afternoon. Several amendments of a very stringent character were proposed by Mr. Miller, of Seneca, which, although meeting with considerable opposition, were adopted and the bill ordered to a third reading. A motion to recommit the bill was sprung in the evening and passed by a vote of 48 to 47. The bill, therefore, goes back and the amendments will be stricken out. As the Assembly amendments were not at all likely to be adopted by the Senate, the bill would probably go back to the former House and might be delayed until the session is over. Selkrig was perhaps right when he said that the attempt to lumber up the bill with amendments was intended to prevent it from becoming a law. Few of those members who voted for its recommitment had any objection to a bill against bribery, of course, but they were anxious that time should not be wasted by sending it to the Senate in a shape which would insure its rejection.

The bill increasing the salaries of Supreme Judges to $5,000 in gold was opposed by Mr. Hitchman, who claimed that there should be no difference made in favor of any privileged class The greenback that was good for the workingman was good enough for the judge or the legislator. The bill was defeated by a majority of sixty. The weight of the gold carried it down.

The bill authorizing a railroad over Harlem bridge was beaten by 41 to 37. Mr. Hitchman opposed and Messrs. Husted and P. Mitchell favored it as a measure required for the poor of Westchester and New York.

The Registry or Naturalization bill passed the House to a third reading. The discussion was very brisk.

The Hansom Cab Company was incorporated in the Senate to day, and will go to the Governor for his signature. This useful institution is, therefore, likely to be started immediately.

The payment of the original Sheriff's Fees bill also passed the Senate. It has been amended out of all likeness to itself.

Mr. Genet asked Senators to-day to sustain him in voting down all the Governor's railroad vetoes.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

ALBANY, May 3, 1869.

BILLS PASSED.

To consolidate the German and French Baptist churches in New York.

Incorporating the New York Burglary Insurance Company.

To reorganize the Fire Department of Brooklyn.

Authorizing a railroad from New Brighton to Onondaga valley.

To amend the charter of Boonville.

For a public road in Flushing.

In relation to annuities to the Onondaga Indians.

To widen Franklin avenue in Flatbush.

Incorporating the villages of Green Island and Chateagay.

In relation to the railroad from Rome to Clinton.

To incorporate the Tontine Mutual Savings Bank of New York.

Relative to the Johnstown, Fonda and Gloversville Railroad

Incorporating the Abingdon Square Savings Bank of New York.

To incorporate the Hansom Cab Company—(21 to 3)—nays, Messrs Bradley. Tweed and Williams.

The Senate passed the amending law for the better security of mechanics in certain counties, passed 1854; also numerous claim bills.

BILLS ORDERED TO A THIRD READING.

To amend the charter of the Genesee Annual Conference authorizing the imprisonment of convicts in the Penitentiaries of Albany and Syracuse; incorporating the Clyde Water Works; incorporating the Rome Water Works, facilitating the construction of the Buffalo, Corry and Pittsburg Railroad; for the appointment of commissioners to lay out roads in Kings county; authorizing the Comptroller of Brooklyn to issue registered bonds: for a bridge over Chemung river in the town of Chemung.

THE TOWN BONDING BILL.

The Senate insisted on its amendment to the Town Bonding bill, and appointed a Conference Committee.

On motion of Mr. FOLGER the bill relating to Sheriff's fees of New York and the fees of referees in sales by partition was recommitted to amend the third section as follows:—

Provided, however, that the commission allowed by this section shall not in any case exceed the sum of $5 00

YEAS—Messrs. Banks, Bradley, Cauldwell, Creamer, Edwards, Folger, Genet, Graham, Hale, Hubbard, Humphrey, Mattoon Morris, Nichols, Norton, Thayer, Tweed and Williams—18.

NAYS—Messrs. Campbell, Chapman, Crowley, Morgan, Nicks, O'Donnell, Parker, Stanford and Van Petten—9.

THE STATE EXCISE BILL.

The bill amending the State Excise law was taken up.

Mr. GENET moved to strike out that portion of the bill exempting the Metropolitan District. Lost—12 to 15 The democrats voted "aye" and the republicans "no." The bill was passed by a vote of 27 to 6.

The Senate then considered the bill amending the charter of the New York City Underground Railroad.

RESOLUTION.

By Mr. MORGAN—A concurrent resolution that the Legislature adjourn sine die on Friday, the 7th inst., at noon Tabled by the rule.

Adjourned.

ASSEMBLY.

ALBANY, May 3, 1869.

BILLS ORDERED TO A THIRD READING.

Providing for the construction of a central elevated patented railroad on Broadway, also several claim bills.

The House considered in Committee of the Whole the bill for the more effectual suppression and punishment of bribery.

Mr. MILLER proposed a substitute, providing, among others, that no member shall vote on a bill in which he has pecuniary interest, and he may be challenged for violation of this rule by any other member and shall not vote until he frees himself from the charge. Discussed at considerable length.

The House considered in Committee of the Whole the bill amending the registry law.

Mr. MILLER'S substitute for the bribery bill was ordered to a third reading; also the bill incorporating the Schenectady Water Works; to authorize Syracuse and certain towns in Onondaga and Oswego counties to aid the Syracuse and Northwestern Railroad.

The bill amending the registry law was ordered to a third reading—42 to 30 The republicans voted "yea" and the democrats "nay."

The House then took a recess.

Afternoon Session.

BILLS PASSED.

To repave Columbia street, Brooklyn.

Relative to sales for taxes.

To provide for the election of a fifth justice of the peace in Richland, Oswego county.

To incorporate the village of Alden.

Accounts from England up to the 21st of April state that the number of spinners, piecers and creelers now on the books of the Operative Spinners' and Miners' Association is about 1,100, and of weavers on the books of their union from 4,000 to 5,000. These are all now, or will be this week, receiving what is called "strike" pay. The employers who are running their mills wholly or partially are doing so at a reduction of five or ten per cent, and all of them have as many hands as they want or are likely to want for a considerable time. The establishments now stopped, with the exception of ten or twelve that were closed long previous to the strike, from badness of trade or other causes, wholly unconnected with the strike, will, from all we can learn, remain closed until there be a revival of trade.

ENGLAND.

The Annual Report of the British Chancellor of the Exchequer.

LONDON, April 18, 1869.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Robert Lowe, has fairly succeeded in astonishing his countrymen. On Thursday night the 8th inst., he placed before the House of Commons his maiden budget, and, according to the London press, he achieved a triumph equalled only by that won by the famous Japanese jugglers on their first appearance at the New York Academy of Music. With remarkable unanimity the daily journals liken this usually dry and uninteresting piece of ministerial business to a theatrical performance, and pronounce Mr. Lowe the most successful sensational dramatist of the day, not excluding Boucicault on this side of the Atlantic, or George Augustin Daly on the other side. According to the Times "the budget of this year contained all the elements of dramatic surprise," and the happy Chancellor of the Exchequer "excited a sensation which practised playwrights might envy." He "led his hearers through a Lenten season of penitence, and then burst upon them in a sort of Easter festival of abundance." The Telegraph declares that in emulation of the conjurer at the fair, Mr. Lowe has overcome the proverbial difficulty of making a silk purse out of a sow's ear. "Like the cleverest magician that ever delighted an audience of holiday gazers," says that paper, "he has produced, apparently out of nothing, a multitude of delicious boons and dispensed them in a dazzling shower among the taxpayers of this tax-ridden country. We knew we had fallen behind in our finances and we were painfully apprehensive that even worse things were in store for us; when, presto! with a graceful dexterity that should forever place him high in rank among political wizards, the Chancellor of the Exchequer dispels the darkness with a wave of his wand and opens a Fortunatus' purse of gifts such as in our wildest visions we had scarcely dared to anticipate for years to come."

The Standard regards Mr. Lowe as a financial wizard; another journal has as much reverence for his spectacles as a child has for a harlequin's baton, and another lauds him for the scenic skill with which he availed himself of a dark and sombre background of deficit and taxation out of which a brilliant effect of sunshine was to spring with a sudden and dazzling illumination, "as Turner used his famous red wafer as the centre and focus of a mystery of parting clouds and radiant distances of light, suffused with all the colors of the rainbow." All agree in comparing the Chancellor's Thursday night's performance to one of those transformation scenes in which the lovers of pantomimes and modern spectacular plays so much delight, and not without some show of reason. But, alas! we all know that the brilliancy of a transformation scene lives but a few brief moments and leaves the house darker and gloomier than before. As soon as the blue and crimson flames die out the dazzling gems and gold become nothing but dull glass and tarnished tinsel, and gods and goddesses, genii and fairies, however glorious their spangles, return into ordinary and not very attractive mortals.

Setting aside the exuberant fancies of the London press, the plain English of the matter is that Mr. Lowe came into possession of a badly straitened treasury under circumstances that rendered it vitally necessary to do something which should seem like a reduction of the national expenditures and a lightening of the burden of taxation. The liberal Ministry stood pledged before the country to economy and reform. The immediate predecessor of Mr. Lowe, Mr. George Ward Hunt, had been unfortunate in his financial estimates and management. Poor Power, the Irish comedian, in his famous character of Tim Moore, in the "Irish Lion," used to square accounts with the tailor to whom he was journeyman by going home to his dinner a quarter of an hour too early and coming back to work a quarter of an hour too late, and Mr. Hunt, on a somewhat similar principle, had estimated his receipts half a million too high and his expenditures half a million too low. By a sudden and violent cutting down of expenses last year something had been saved from the latter estimate, but with the addition of the Abyssinian item, which had swollen beyond all calculation, there was actually a deficiency of $4,600,000 carried over into the current year and to be provided for by Mr. Hunt's successor. Now, with no elasticity anywhere, with the producing power of the country at a low ebb and without any apparent prospect of greater activity, the situation was not a very encouraging one for the present Chancellor of the Exchequer. Stretch the estimates of revenue as he might, put as hopeful an aspect as possible upon all sources of income, he could not bring himself to predict the receipt of more than £72,855,000 for the current year, retaining the taxes in precisely their present condition. Against this was to be set his estimates of normal expenditures for the current year, and in addition the deficiency left by Mr. Hunt. The normal expenditures, after reductions in the army and navy and in some other branches of the public service, Mr. Lowe puts at £68,223,000, making a total, with the deficiency, of £72,823,000. It will thus be seen that if the estimates held good and no extraordinary expenses should be rendered necessary in the interval, there would have been a bare surplus of £32,000 at the end of the current fiscal year. But, as has been said, Mr. Lowe, as the financial officer of the reform Ministry, could not be suffered to leave the taxes in their present condition, nor could he venture to cut so close in his estimates as to rely only on a paltry excess of £32,000 of revenue over expenditure. He must in the first place have more money, for nothing remained to be saved to any amount in the expenses of the government; and if he dared not leave taxation in the condition in which he found it, far less could he increase existing taxes or impose fresh ones on the community. There was but one other resource open to him. He must get out of the taxpayers in a single year more than a single year's taxation.

The plan hit upon—and it is said that Mr. Gladstone was its real author—is at once simple and ingenious. Heretofore the taxpayers of England have been in the habit of paying one year the taxes actually incurred one and two years previously—that is to say, some taxes collected in a current year were assessed the preceding year on articles used and enjoyed by the taxpayer the year before, and other taxes collected this year, such as income tax, were on returns of income, &c., for the preceding year. The taxes have also hitherto been collected in instalments: a half year in October, a quarter of a year in January and another in April. Mr. Lowe proposes to stop at this point the retrospective assessments, and to compel the taxpayers from January next to pay in advance, and in one annual sum. By this means he contrives to receive in a single year five quarters of assessed taxes and seven quarters of income tax, which adds £3,350,000 to the revenue of the current financial year, and suddenly swells the beggarly £32,000 surplus to the respectable sum of £3,382,000. With this amount Mr. Lowe proposes to redeem the pledges of the administration in regard to a reduction of taxation. He takes one penny off the income tax, leaving only half the addition made in consequence of the Abyssinian war; he abolishes the one shilling a quarter import duty on corn, which remained as the last relic of the old corn laws; he strikes off the duty heretofore assessed on all fire insurance policies; he materially decreases the absurdly heavy tax on public conveyances, or, as it is called, the tax upon locomotion; he declares that tea and coffee may henceforth be sold without a license; and, with a sly eye to the favor of frowsy dowagers and antiquated peers, he brushes away the duty upon hair-powder, which brings in to the government the magnificent sum of £1,000 a year. He does more than this. As a real and solid administrative reform, he strikes down the present absurd and expensive system of collecting assessed taxes and income tax by local boards and places the whole business in the hands of the officers of excise. Assessed taxes, such as for horses, servants, carriages, armorial bearings, &c., are to be equalized and paid for the future in the shape of licenses, taken out at the beginning of the year in advance. The income tax, as has been said, is to be paid in one sum in the beginning of the year in advance. This is the whole of the great transformation scene—the piece of "fiscal legerdemain," as the tory Standard calls it—the wizard-like performance, to which Mr. Lowe treated the House of Commons and the country, and which, as we have seen, "brought down the house" and was received with thunders of applause all over the country.

What are its substantial merits, how much of genuine gold there is in it and how much of gingerbread gilding and theatrical tinsel, is a question that must hereafter be discussed. It certainly seems an ingenious way of getting out of a tight spot, but in what manner will it be a substantial relief or benefit to the country? Can it make the government richer without making the people poorer? It swells the income of the year, not by a legitimate increase of receipts of customs, excise, income tax or any other impost which would be an evidence of reviving trade and increased prosperity, but simply by forcing nearly two years' payment of certain taxes into the space of twelve months. It appears to be very questionable whether the people can stand the payment of this double assessment, and especially of nearly two years' income tax, one year of which must be paid in one sum, without subjecting themselves to severe inconvenience and in some cases to severe suffering. Besides this, will not Mr. Lowe's new scheme leave the government in a dangerously cramped condition? Heretofore, the taxes collected in a current year have been on property enjoyed and assessed the year before. Mr. Lowe regards this as an evil; but it has at least made the government forehanded. While one tax was being collected another was being earned, as it were, and was accruing due. Thus the government always had arrears and assessments to fall back upon in case of deficiency or emergency. When the tax for a current year is collected in advance there is an end of it. You can never tell what the next year will bring forth, for in a time of commercial difficulty, and especially when a whole year's taxes must be paid in advance, a taxpayer would be certain at the commencement of the year to cut off all the expenses he could well dispense with. At present the government can know something of what next year's collections will be, because, being on assessments made the present year, they can judge of the condition of business and the style in which people are living; but under the new pay-in-advance system all this foreknowledge must be lost. Mr. Lowe arraigns the present system of taxation because, he says, a person who has enjoyed the use of articles which are subject to taxation may die or become bankrupt before the time for the collection of the tax comes round, and thus the government loses the amount and becomes aggrieved. But when the prepayment system is adopted, if a taxpayer dies immediately after he has paid his taxes in advance for a year, upon whom then does the hardship fall? Again, Mr. Lowe regards the existing system as open to serious objection on account of the facilities it offers for the commission of frauds against the government. For instance, a citizen returns this year the articles he kept last year subject to taxation and pays next year, and hence, from the lapse of time, it is almost impossible, says Mr. Lowe, to convict him should he make a false return. Under Mr. Lowe's plan a person pays at the commencement of the year, in advance, on all taxable articles then in his possession. What is to prevent a dishonestly inclined taxpayer from purposely reducing his establishment at the commencement of the year, paying his taxes and then returning to his usual style of living? It seems certain, at least, that claims for a return of taxes must enormously increase under the pay-in-advance system; must increase, indeed, to such an extent as to seriously embarrass and injure the government by a disturbance of all their calculations.

All these points will, no doubt, receive due attention when the budget comes before the House for legislation, and when the novelty of the administration plan has worn off. There is one feature in the policy of the present Ministry, however, which will commend itself to all sensible men, and that is the determination to give up forever the nonsensical idea of England's supremacy and to consent to settle down into the respectable position of a purely commercial country—a sort of island Holland. On the seas and in the field England must henceforth rank as a second rate Power. Her voice is no longer heeded in the turmoil of European politics, and the great progress made in all the elements of modern warfare on land and ocean leave her far behind younger and less isolated nations as a military and naval Power. The present Cabinet is a Cabinet of brilliant men, and they grasp and accept the situation. They are strong enough and bold enough to lift from the aching shoulders of a commercial people the heavy burden of a lazy, overgrown army and a bloated navy. The enormous expenses of the government dockyards are being gradually decreased, and the hands thrown out of employment are to be provided with facilities for emigration. The military force is to be materially reduced. These will be real boons to the people in more senses than one. In a few years war, except for self-defence, will no longer be dreamed of by the British government, and Englishmen will content themselves with the enviable reputation of a great commercial country, as peaceful and as prosperous as a community of Quakers. Who shall say that the people will not be happier from the dissipation of the dream of glory and the awakening to the substantial reality of their highly respectable legitimate position.

The Seizure of the Brig Mary Lowell by the Spanish Authorities.

[From the London Telegraph, April 21.]

Only the other day the Governor of Cuba authorized the illegal seizure of an American ship in English waters, thus curiously contriving to offend the colony's most formidable possible enemy and the only Power strong enough in that part of the world to be her ally and friend. We do not say that in any case it should be our business to interfere for the prevention of Cuban independence; but our good offices might at any time be useful in averting a quarrel between Spain and the United States. Yet, with a mad discourtesy, the government of Cuba manages at once to give the United States authorities a very serious provocation, and actually to insult us, with the further effect of almost implicating us in a show of connivance at the attack on the American vessel, unless we resent the insult! On another recent occasion an American ship was seized on the coast, and the passengers—men of all nationalities—were treated as if they were Cuban rebels; a gross outrage, a violation of the commonest international courtesy and the first principles of public law. Beyond this, in its futile attempt at blockade, the Cuban government has issued a list of trivial articles declared "contraband of war," with food among the number. We speak on early information which fuller reports may in some degree modify; though we have no reason to doubt the substantial correctness of what we have heard. In comparison with larger events the outrages to which we refer may appear small, but they look as if the local authorities had lost their heads. Before this time Spanish officials have brought their country into trouble by a blind and brutal indifference to other people's rights.

What will be the end no one can easily say. It would be rash to predict anything like war because a strong squadron is despatched from New York. It must be remembered that Cuba is not the bonne bouche for free America that it was for America ruled by the owners of slaves. When slave States were admissible into the Union the accession of the magnificent island meant the admission of three or four new States casting in their lot with the South. Now, Cuba would be only an additional territorial embarrassment. Emancipation would have to follow annexation; and nobody is quite certain that free Cuba might not have to pass through a period of depression as serious as that which has afflicted emancipated Jamaica. No doubt the Americans might be willing to brave all these risks if they saw the splendid pear ripe enough to drop into their mouths; but it is not ripe, and in the present temper of their politicians they are not inclined to snatch at it. Nor do we know enough of the independent party in Cuba to make sure that they covet a closer alliance with the government at Washington. They are willing, no doubt, to accept aid and arms from American sympathizers; they are willing to see the Spanish administration embroiled with the new President; but men of their temperament and descent rarely attach themselves to Anglo-Saxon rule. We saw that in Mexico. The patriotic section there was republican enough to please its American friends; but it detested annexation not less cordially than the Canadians themselves, and cherished a fear of Yankee invasion as lively as the hatred of the old Spanish rule. We suspect that the Americans will find the same difficulties in Cuba. The islanders will readily accept their aid against Spain, to secure, not annexation, but independence; though they could scarcely spoil their own game more effectually than they do now, by supplying the great republic, in their own hour of crisis, with so broad and accessible a locus standi. Meanwhile, England can only "stand by and mark"—with some natural regret if the public servants of Spain, by persistency in puerile folly, manage to irritate her natural enemies, to alienate her best friends, and to lose the last great jewel of her once magnificent colonial empire.

Mr. Motley, Mr. Johnson and the Alabama Claims.

[From the London Herald, April 21.]

We may suppose, then, indeed, we know, that it was not without a special purpose that Mr. Motley addressed himself so earnestly to the history of the Netherlands. The excellence with which his task has been accomplished commends him to our esteem, and the high character which he has won during his mission to Vienna convinces us that he is capable of adding laurels of successful diplomacy to those which he has won as an author. It is by no means the first time that an eminent littérateur has been singled out by the American government for such a post as this. Mr. Bancroft was sent by President Polk as Minister to England. Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Dallas wrote political work, which gained them some reputation; and if Mr. Adams could not rival Bancroft or Motley in their own peculiar field Lord Russell can bear witness to the skill with which he wielded his pen.

We, in England, esteem Mr. Motley, and may learn to like him; but any feeling of this kind is tempered at the moment by the regret which all must feel at the political necessity which has taken from us Mr. Reverdy Johnson. Never, probably, did a man in so short a space of time win such golden opinions from an unimpressible people like the English. We could not ascribe his popularity to any single trait; it was the whole combination which made the man, that made him irresistible when pleading for love and goodwill between kindred nations. Mr. Johnson is an orator of no mean order. He is more of a statesman than a man of letters, perhaps more of an honest man than either. The ability which he showed in negotiating the "Alabama convention," which has lately been so roughly treated by the Senate of the United States, proved that those who sent him here had by no means overestimated his diplomatic skill. It was not, however, this which won him his reputation among us. It was the earnestness, the genuineness, the heartiness, so to speak, which seemed to well up in him as he journeyed to and fro in our land on that mission of peace to which he had consecrated himself, and with as warm a zeal as men in old times preached the crusades, proclaimed that England and America were one nation in blood, in faith, in sympathy; that they shared the inheritance of the past and the hopes of the future. We deeply regret the retirement of Mr. R. Johnson, but neither he nor we can look back without a feeling of satisfaction on the labors which already have borne abundant fruit in the development of a better and more cordial feeling between nations that have every reasonable motive for living on friendly terms.

Execution of Sheward, the Norwich Wife Murderer.

The English papers of the 21st ult. contain long accounts of the execution of William Sheward, the wife murderer, from one of which we extract the following report:—

Yesterday (Tuesday), the 20th of April, the extreme penalty of the law was carried out in the case of William Sheward, convicted at the last Norwich Assizes of the murder of his wife, Martha Sheward, in June, 1851, under the circumstances already reported. So long a period—nearly forty years—has elapsed since an execution took place in Norwich jail, that a drop was actually borrowed from the Norfolk county prison. The scaffold was erected at the extreme end of the southeast angle of the prison, and as Sheward was a patient in the jail infirmary, as he suffered from acute rheumatism in the ankles, he had to be removed for execution quite across the prison. The condemned man having apparently relieved his mind by making a full confession of his guilt, slept well on the Monday night. He had some bread and milk at 1.30 A. M. yesterday, and then went to sleep again until 4:30 A. M. About half-past five he got up and dressed himself, but declined to have any further refreshment. The chaplain of the jail (the Rev. R. Wade) arrived at the jail between six and seven A. M., and the next hour was passed by the convict in earnest prayer with the reverend gentleman. On receiving the fatal summons from Calcraft, the executioner, who had not reached the prison until three A. M. (having come from London by the down mail train), the convict made an attempt to walk to the scaffold, but he could not do so in consequence of the acute pain in his ankles, and he was carried by two warders to a room near the drop, where he was pinioned. He had shown a considerable amount of nerve and composure thus far, but after he was pinioned a tremor set in, which continued until life had passed away. On leaving the pinioning room the officials formed a short procession, headed by the under sheriff of Norwich (Mr. F. G. Foster), and comprising the prison surgeon (Mr. W. H. Day), the chaplain, the governor of the jail, Calcraft, the prisoner, supported by his two warders, and a few reporters. There were no other spectators of the scene. As the procession advanced the chaplain, who was much moved, read aloud a part of the service for the dead. On reaching the scaffold the prisoner again appeared to pray earnestly. The last preparations were then completed, and the convict, having shaken hands with those about him, was committed to his fate. His struggles were light and brief, and his lifeless body soon dangled in the air. There was a straggling crowd of about 2,000 persons outside the jail, and an intimation that the extreme penalty of the law had been carried out was made by hoisting a large black flag. The body of the convict, after hanging the usual time, was cut down, and an inquest was held upon it in accordance with the provisions of the new act regulating executions. On Monday the convict had his farewell interview with his second wife. The interview was of course a very painful one, and appeared to have been unexpected by the convict, who had addressed the following letter to the poor woman:—

ST. GILES, April 19.

MY DEAR WIFE—I write to you under the impression that it is the last I ever shall write, and I sincerely beg of you, in the name of God, to be resigned to your fate, for it is God's providence that has brought on this change; and who knows but it may be for the best? I want you, by God's help, to forget me, save knowing that I have gone to eternal rest. I have, by my prayers, committed you and the dear children to the care of Almighty God; and I am sure he will hear my cries. Put your trust in the Lord, and He will in no wise cast you out. I am very sorry and heartily grieved that I should have been the instrument of drawing you into all this trouble and affliction; and I sincerely thank you from the bottom of my heart that you have been able to forgive me, so that now I shall be able to rest in peace with God and man. I think if you look back for this past two years, you will see the handwork of the Almighty in reducing our stock and trade, and taken nearly everything from us as a judgment on me for my hidden crime (as I have often thought); but now I have confessed before my Maker, I hope He will restore unto you and my children that peace of mind which passeth all understanding, and that He will by His divine will allow you all to prosper for the future. You will, I hope, try and keep up a little communication with Mrs. ——, and not stop because you don't get an answer from her to your letters, because you know she cannot see to write. I should wish you to correspond with Mrs. —— and Mrs. ——, who I am sure would ever receive a note from you with much pleasure; and perhaps when the children get older might be the means of finding them employment. Now it is my painful duty to say good-by, and that forever, for I must turn my mind to higher things, which will give you great consolation to know that by making all reparation in my power to God I feel that I can die happy in the full assurance of a blessed Redeemer interceding for me at the throne of grace, and that I shall be forgiven. May the Lord's blessing ever attend you, and may you and the children ever be happy, is my utmost wish. Now, by God's will, I must bow my head in peace and say good-by. Good-by from your unfortunate husband, WILLIAM SHEWARD.

The term "St. Giles" in the date of the letter is rather a curious one; it refers to the parish in Norwich in which the jail is situated.

Frightful Boiler Explosion at a Gas Works—Five Men Killed and Several Wounded.

[From the Liverpool Post, April 21.]

A boiler explosion, attended with very appalling results, occurred on Monday afternoon, at the Barking Gas Works. It appears that on Monday afternoon, about half-past three o'clock, a barge was being unladen at the bank of the Barking Gas Works. The work was going on as usual, a "coffe pot" steam engine working on the gas works turning a crank. Some complaints had been made by the driver about a defect in the engine mentioned, when, as the engineer was proceeding to the spot to examine it, the explosion occurred, venting its sound like a heavy piece of artillery. The shock was very great, and for some time all was consternation. As soon as the first shock was over the men were looked after, when the headless trunk of one was found, a second with his head split in two, and a third mutilated and dead. Many others were injured, but not so severely as required any other than local surgical attendance. Five men, however, were brought up to the London Hospital. Mr. George Salt, the house surgeon, together with some of the medical staff, at once attended to the injured men, two of whom were found to be dead—one named James Paine; the name of the other was unknown. Thomas Brown, a laborer, is suffering from fractured ribs and a lacerated head. John Styles, engine driver, presented a frightful spectacle. His body was covered with blood from lacerations received from the pieces and fragments of the exploded boiler penetrating his flesh, as also the cinders; he was besides terribly scalded, and yesterday morning had lost the sight of the left eye. John Jones was suffering from collapse and concussion. A most extraordinary circumstance in connection with the case is that the men who were close to the defective engine suffered no injury, while those a short distance away were killed and injured as described. We learn that five men were killed and several injured by this explosion.

Forgery on the Bank of England.

At the London Mansion House on Tuesday, the 20th ult., Isaac Chamberlain, aged sixty, a herbalist at Hertford, Caroline Judd, forty-four, and Anne Hutchinson, fifty-eight, were brought before the Lord Mayor on a warrant, charged with forging and uttering a certain share for £2,194 4s. 6d. in the three per cent consuls, standing in the name of Mary Ann Chandler in the books of the Bank of England, with intent to defraud the Governor and company. The prisoners had been arrested on the previous evening by detective sergeants Webb and Bull—Chamberlain and Judd at Hertford and Hutchinson at Bethnal Green, where she is employed as a pillbox maker. The prisoners were remanded.

FRANCE.

Close of the Session of the Corps Legislatif—The Approaching Elections—Cunning Policy of the Emperor—Sentiments of the Army—Warlike Prospects—The American Navy at the Tuileries—Festivities of the Chinese Embassy.

PARIS, April 16, 1869.

The session of the Corps Legislatif will be brought to a close in ten days, at the rate business is now being carried on. The budget has been pretty generally discussed, and everybody, including the opposition, desires to get rid of the tedious matter, in order that the adjournment may take place and the new elections called at the earliest moment. The opposition, a small, determined and zealous knot of able men, are wearied with the interminable and almost useless assaults on the imperial policy, and desire to change their platform from the legislative hall, where the majority always vote them down, to the popular hustings, where a fresh and more impressionable auditory may be found to give them aid and support. It is no longer profitable or useful to discuss governmental policy in Paris; the fates are against all change; but in the rural and provincial city populations the vote against the present régime may be found more favorable to the advocates of a more liberal form of government. The opposition is therefore anxious to bring the legislative proceedings to a close, in order that the elections for a new Legislative Corps may be ordered before the summer heats enervate the population not holding office. The law prescribes an interval of at least three weeks between the dissolution of one Legislature and the election of members to a new one. If nothing unforeseen occurs to prolong the present session it will probably adjourn in ten days, and the new elections will take place during the latter part of May. The opposition hope to increase their numerical strength in the new Legislature, and are eager to get into the country to rouse the people in their behalf. The government, on the other hand, while it is ready to concede that the opposition ranks will receive reinforcements in the next popular campaign, is determined to keep them down as far as possible. All sorts of sensational measures will be adopted to induce the people to believe that an era of peace is really dawning and that the burdens of past administrations are to be removed. We already hear of a partial reduction of the army, and we shall no doubt learn soon that, peace being secured, a large portion of the troops will be furloughed, in order that they may return to their homes to aid in developing the material interests of the country. The iron hand of the government is to be clothed in velvet and the horizon will blaze all around with bright auguries of a happy future. Nothing will be wanting on the part of the government to induce the people to vote the official candidates, and we all know too well how potent and how successful are governmental arguments to doubt the result of the election. The vast, overwhelming, obedient majority will again control the Legislative Corps, and the old struggle will be continued, with an addition of only a mere corporal's guard on the benches of the opposition. The same faces will be again seen on that side of the house, but Ollivier, Gerault and one or two others, less prominent because less radical, will be dropped from the Paris delegation. Otherwise the opposition will remain nearly the same, a brilliant group of the first lights of France, agreed on only one point—opposition to the Emperor's government. Jules Favre will reappear, and will doubtless be returned from five or six circumscriptions. He stands for more than a dozen districts, and the other leaders of the opposition solicit votes in various localities.

The Emperor's appeal to the prestige and glory of the first Napoleon, the hundredth anniversary of whose birth comes around next August, is one of the best political cards yet played. The Emperor always knows how and when to appeal to the French people, and he has struck a responsive chord in their hearts in decreeing that the soldiers of the republic and first empire shall receive a pension of 250 francs a year. There are more than 40,000 of these veterans still living, many of whom have never received a centime in the way of recompense for their services. Now all of them are to enjoy alike the bounty of the government. It is not a great sum, but it will go a great way in the rural districts, while it will forever bear evidence of the present Emperor's interest in, and devotion to, the remnant of that grand band of defenders of the glory of France. Not only will it produce a great impression on the rural populations, since there is scarcely one that does not number among its inhabitants a decorated veteran of past conflicts, who will not fail to sing the praise of the imperial donor, but it will have its desired effect on the soldiers of the army of to-day, that really need little encouragement to keep their aspirations for glory and honor and their feelings of gratitude to the Chief of State up to the proper point. "See how the Emperor cares for the soldiers of the past!" they will exclaim; "Why need we fear for the future?" The path of glory in France is always to be fringed with flowers when an imperial chieftain shows the way. The act of the Emperor is certainly one that will receive the approval of the great mass of the French population, and history will doubtless approve it as testifying his desire to show his gratitude to men who did not a little to make France what she is. The measure is, at bottom, essentially warlike, and we shall see in August, when the anniversary of the birth of Napoleon the Great comes around, that a new military furor will be created that means mischief. All France will then recall the glory of the army, and a new demand will be made by the army and people that the ancient frontiers of France shall be regained, and that she shall hereafter enjoy her rights from the Rhine to the Pyrenees, undisturbed by German occupation or the offensive declarations of wornout treaties. That month of August will be one that is big with the fate of Europe. The chimes of peace are sung before the elections, but in that fiery month we shall hear different voices, and, perhaps, the tramp of armed men. At all events the Emperor will celebrate the centennial anniversary of his uncle's birth in a way that will touch France to its very centre and awaken those old dreams that the country cherished in the days of the first Emperor. All the talk of peace of the Marquis de la Valette is the merest Morgan stories for the election. There is nothing materially changed to give any support to peace professions. The army is as strong and as ready for the fray as it can ever be. Marshal Neil is continually boasting of the number of Chassepots he has on hand, and we know that the Marine Department is laboring zealously to prepare the navy for hard work. The peace of the empire and of Europe is therefore by no means assured. A fall campaign seems to be the design of the Emperor, and it will be made sharp and decisive.

Commodore Pennock, late commander of the United States European squadron, leaves Paris to-day with his wife to return to the United States. On Monday last the Empress, learning that he was in Paris, sent him a special invitation to a concert at the Tuileries that evening. She received the gallant Commodore in a most marked manner and conversed a long time with him on naval affairs, in which she takes a great interest. She inquired about Admiral Farragut and the officers of the squadron, whom she met two years since in Cherbourg, when Commodore Pennock had the honor of receiving her Majesty in the Franklin and doing the honors of the squadron in the absence of Admiral Farragut. During the evening the Commodore was specially presented to the Emperor, who conversed with him for some time on various topics. The Commodore's reception was exceedingly flattering.

Master Hendrix, late navigating officer of the Swatara, is here en route for the United States on sick leave. Surgeon King, of the navy, will accompany him.

Mr. Burlingame gives his second and last grand ball on Wednesday next. The last was the affair of the fashionable season, and the demand for invitations is something wonderful. Quite a number of people invited themselves to the first ball, and were present in full feather without the host's consent. I regret that there were some Americans in the impudent crowd.

TURKEY.

Frontier Troubles—New Military Regulations—Appearance of the Cattle Disease—Cretan Prisoners.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 10, 1869.

I stated in my last that the misunderstanding existing between Turkey and Persia regarding the villages burned on the frontier at Kassghioe is in a fair way of being settled, and, in fact, a commission of six persons has been appointed to go to the said place, investigate the matter and report on the damages done. The Ottoman government is on the point of introducing in the military organization of the country an important change which smacks of German importation. The Minister of War is drawing up a new military code of laws and regulations by which the European, or rather German, system of reserves is to be introduced, doing away with the present system of Rediss. The Christian population of the empire will come under the action of this new law, and be no longer allowed to enjoy their immunity from conscription. As this cannot be done, however, without, to a certain extent, arming the Christian population of the empire, it is proposed, in order to avoid jealousies on the part of the Turks and possibly serious conflicts, to oblige the reserves to deposit their arms in depots in the barracks after every day's exercise. Sufficient arms do not exist in the government depots to carry out this plan properly, and it has been decided, therefore, to purchase the old arms known to exist in the United States. We hear that an American firm has contracted for some two hundred thousand stand of arms, at ten shillings each, examined at Liverpool and deliverable there. These arms will, by degrees, be converted into breechloaders.

I could wish to-day that the foregoing few lines were the only news of moment I had to communicate you, but I am sorry to say that we get accounts from the Province of Kars which are most alarming for that neighborhood, and possibly for us also if proper measures are not taken. It appears that the cattle plague has broken out there, and from the symptoms on the diseased animals, the rapidity of the contagion and number of deaths it seems to be the same plague as latterly decimated the cattle in England. How it began or where it came from nobody seems to know as yet. The first deaths happened at a village called Gurren-Kalé, three hours distant from Kars, towards the end of November, on the return of the herds from their pasturage on the hills, and since then the scourge has spread with alarming rapidity. If, in fact, this murrain proves to be the same as that which visited Great Britain, the Turkish government will have the advantage of being able to avail and make use of the dearly bought experience of that country; but in calamities of this nature the will and energy of the inhabitants themselves must aid the action of the government in order to stay the plague; and in this I fear that the uneducated populations of those districts will be found wanting.

I stated in my last that the Cretan chief Hadji Mihali is staying at the Minister of War's house, on the Bosphorus. Some other insurgent captains have been given less comfortable billets in the hulks, with sentences of from ten to fifteen years. They cannot complain, however, as having been taken with arms in their hands they would, under any less lenient government, have been hung after very short notice.

GREECE.

A View of the Condition of the Country.

The following is an extract from the Athens correspondence of the London Times:—The elections are to commence on the 28th of May, and the Chamber is to meet on the 17th of June. Extraordinary efforts are required to restore security of life and property, for brigandage continues as yet undiminished, although several engagements have occurred with the troops, in which there have been many killed and wounded on both sides. A singularly bold act of brigandage was committed last week about a mile and a half from Livadeia, on the road to Atalanta. [The bands that infest Beotia, and sometimes visit Attica, formed an alliance and took up a position, where twenty-eight brigades remained unassailed for six hours. During that time they stopped and plundered nearly 150 passengers, unmolested by the civil and military authorities at Livadeia. The island of Ithaca has been visited by another band belonging to the legion in Western Greece, who have spread alarm in the Ionian Islands, where the inhabitants were accustomed to dwell in security under British protection. Two men who were lately carried off by the brigands at Megara have been released on paying very large sums, considering their condition in life. Anagnostes Kastanes ransomed his life for 6,000 drachmas, and Antonios Plataras for 2,855. In Messenia assassinations and murderous faction fights continue to be of frequent occurrence. Conscripts who have fled to the mountains and criminals who are constantly escaping from prison in Greece are said to be the cause of insecurity over great part of the Peloponnesus. Every province is calling on the government to send troops to maintain order, for the National Guard is either totally disorganized or split into factions like the people. The Cretan refugees continue to depart in great numbers, and in one week more than 2,000 returned home in spite of the false reports that the Ottoman authorities have ill treated the returned exiles, and that a new insurrection had broken out in Crete, by which political agitators endeavored to frighten them.

ITALY.

Annual Report of the Italian Finance Minister.

Count Cambray Digny, the Minister of Finance, made his financial statement on the 20th of April in the Chamber of Deputies.

The Minister demonstrated that there had been a steadily progressive increase in the ordinary revenue and decrease in the expenditure since 1867. In future years he anticipated that there would be a reduction of the ordinary expenditure to 360,000,000 lire, and of the extraordinary expenditure to 60,000,000. The Minister, moreover, anticipates a balance of the revenue and expenditure in 1875. No new taxes are proposed, but bills are to be introduced for reorganizing the system without increasing the amount of the direct taxes, and also for regulating the provision tax. Public works will be vigorously prosecuted without fresh burdens being imposed upon the Treasury. The expense of reorganizing the army and navy will be spread over a long series of years. In 1870 the revenue from the grist tax will reach its normal amount. The National Bank will receive 180,000,000 of its debt in 1870 out of the revenue of the following two years, and the forced currency will be abolished in 1873. The ecclesiastical property affords an available resource of 500,000,000, not including about 80,000,000, the value of the Church property in the Secularization bill now in litigation. The revenue from the customs duties of 1869 shows an increase of 2,500,000 over that of 1868. The lottery revenue has increased 4,000,000. The estimated revenue for 1870 is 914,000,000 and the expenditure 1,030,000,000, showing a deficit of 116,000,000, reducible to 94,000,000 by the reception of payments belonging to 1869, but not receivable until 1870.

FRANCE AND BELGIUM.

The Railway Difficulty.

The Paris papers are determined that the Belgian Railway difficulty shall not stand still. They keep continually stirring the subject up, and evidently revel in the excitement it produces. The latest in relation to the subject appeared in the France, a semi-official paper, which goes on to say:—

We have reason to believe that at the last conference matters came to an issue, and that the French and Belgian plans were clearly and fully set forth. The French ministers stated very explicitly what they wanted, adding that if an understanding were possible on that basis negotiations might continue, but if not they had better be broken off and things left as they are. M. Orban requested the French proposals to be written down. A solution of some kind cannot be far off.

The Patrie has another view of the situation in the shape of a letter from Brussels, April 18. Here it is:—

A letter from Brussels, dated the 18th inst., contains the following:—"After the last conference between M. de Lavalette, M. Rouher and M. Gressier, in which the propositions of the Belgian President were put aside, M. Frere-Orban communicated to the King the views of the imperial government. It is said here that when M. Frere-Orban is in possession of the formally written projects of the French government on the Franco-Belgian incident, he will return to Belgium in order to confer with the King and his Ministers."

A telegram from Brussels informs us that a council was held this morning. Public opinion there is every day more and more interested in what takes place in Paris. People are beginning to understand that the representative of the Belgian Cabinet has made a false step and that France, in spite of her great desire to come to an arrangement, could not admit the system proposed by M. Frere-Orban. The émeutes which are taking place there are making a great impression on the population. People ask what would become of Belgium if the treaty of commerce with France, which ends in May, 1871, were not renewed.

Yesterday morning the Ministers of State, Foreign Affairs and Public Works met to arrange what should be done relative to the Belgium question. At three o'clock a conference, convoked by M. Frere-Orban, was held at the Ministry for Foreign Affairs. The same day, in the evening, M. Frere-Orban sent to Brussels a messenger with despatches for his government.

BELGIUM.

The Mining Troubles—Carpenters' Strike in Antwerp.

Galignani's Messenger of the 19th says that the International Association of Working Men has just issued a violent proclamation to the pitmen in the coal districts of Liége. This document, which endeavors to excite the people by describing their sufferings and by allusions to massacres of workmen, calls on them to wait for a favorable opportunity for rising and throwing off their chains. It terminates as follows:—

Join the association, for in it you will learn your rights and the means to bring about their triumph; and in it you will be united with your brothers in all parts of the world. When all the forces of the laboring classes shall be combined and the workers shall have been taught what they have to do, then, in all parts of the world at once, they will raise their voices, cast down iniquity and inaugurate an era of justice. On that day, companions, we will no longer say "Be calm!" but will cry out "Forward!" Until then be patient and wait till the proper moment shall come.

The Précurseur, of Antwerp, of the 18th ult., states that an attempt was made three days back by the carpenters employed by the Cockerill Company to get up a strike among the 450 men in the same workyard. A deputation waited on the director to ask for an increase of pay of five centimes per hour, and on this demand being refused fourteen of them took up their tools and left the premises. Their example was not, however, followed by the other hands, who continued their occupations as usual until the end of the day. The police were aware of the step to be taken by the men and had adopted precautions to prevent any disorder.

FOREIGN MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

A young girl has been tried recently at Bordeaux for having thrown vitriol in her lover's face, when, after seducing, he refused to marry her. The court found her guilty, and fined her one franc for the assault.

Advices from Bucharest mention that the government of Roumania has adopted active measures against the formation of Bulgarian bands in that country, and the chiefs will be subjected to criminal prosecution.

Marshal Vaillant, Grand Marshal of the Palace and Minister of the Emperor's Household, is charged to prepare the programme of the fêtes which are to take place for the celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the birthday of Napoleon I. The festivities are to last three days, from the 14th to the 16th of August.

It is reported that Baron Beust has been sounding the English Cabinet respecting its conduct in the event of a war between France and Prussia. Lord Clarendon is said to have stated that in such a case England would observe a strict neutrality, which, however, would cease the moment that the Eastern question should be again agitated.

The Prussian journals continue to express surprise at the increase of emigration from the Kingdom. On the 6th ult. the railway conveyed to Bremen 1,500 peasants, and on the following day 2,000 others, about to embark for America. The poverty existing in the eastern provinces forces them to seek the means of existence in a new country.

The Pays, of Paris, publishes two letters from M. Badaille, who was lately condemned to fine and imprisonment for holding up the government to hatred and contempt; one of them addressed to the Minister of War to ask for a post in the National Guard Mobile, and the other to the Emperor himself to request his Majesty's sanction to such an appointment.

Maricile, the pretended victim of an attack and robbery on the Lyons Railway, by which company he was employed as pay clerk, had been arrested on suspicion of having fabricated the whole story. The police have now discovered, buried in his cellar, a sum of 17,000 francs, which, with other moneys that he is known to have expended, makes up the 28,000 francs originally stolen.

A male infant child was recently found in a wood in the vicinity of Paris by two men, one of whom made a declaration to the mayor that he would adopt it. When all the arrangements were made, what was the man's astonishment at finding 20,000 francs in banknotes, attached to its chemise, with a note that other presents would follow until the child attained twenty years of age.

The Hermann, the only German organ published in England, has changed proprietors. During the ten years of its existence it was a radical democratic paper, but the new edition now opens the programme by "The Unity of Germany founded on the Rock of the Northern Confederation;" in other words, Bismarck has got hold of it.

The Germania Correspondenz mentions a very important step taken Count von Bismarck, namely, that of calling upon all the large landed proprietors to pay up their dues immediately. The government allows them a certain credit, which is never withdrawn unless under imperative necessity. The order has been sent throughout the provinces and tends to strengthen the idea that some important move is about to take place.

Some journals speak of a memorandum addressed by Russia to the Powers which signed the treaty of Paris, relative to the measure on Turkish nationality passed during the late discussions concerning Candia. This information is correct, except as to what relates to the proposal of a European conference by the Cabinet of St. Petersburg. Russia only asks the great Powers to come to an understanding on the subject.

The Gazetta di Milano of April 8 publishes what it declares to be the text of the treaty recently concluded between France, Austria and Italy. There are nine clauses in all, and the principal stipulations are as follows:—Italy undertakes to observe strict neutrality in case of war between France and Prussia. Should Prussia be assisted by another Power Italy and Austria will jointly furnish France with a contingent of 400,000 men. At the end of the war France will evacuate the Pontifical territory in return for the assistance lent to her by Italy. The Nazione is of opinion that no treaty at all has been concluded.

An enterprising American in Paris has prepared the following petition to the government of the United States, urging an inquiry into existing international postal arrangements:—

We, the undersigned, citizens of the United States, resident in Paris, feeling that the existing rates of postage between the United States and France are excessive, especially on the carriage of newspapers, and that the payment exacted in Paris on the delivery of American newspapers, in addition to the American prepayment of postage, is exorbitant when compared with the British rates to and from America, hereby we pray that the United States government will take this subject into immediate consideration with the view to ourspeedy relief.

The population of Maison Lafitte, near Paris, was lately attracted to the banks of the Seine, where the body of a young woman, less than twenty years of age, was exposed. It is supposed that the body had been in the water during three days; it was literally hacked with the blows of a knife. From a post-mortem examination it appears that the victim had been subjected to the most violent atrocities, which, however, were unsuccessful. The elegance of her toilet, her marvellous beauty and the whiteness of her hands prove that she was in comfortable circumstances. As yet nothing has transpired to relieve the anxiety of the public.

The late election war between the Liberté and the Siècle of Paris has called forth the following letter in the Pays, by Mr. Paul de Cassagnac:—I continue to declare loudly—and I ask that what I assert is no secret to any person in the official world of Paris—that it is a matter of general and absolute notoriety that different democratic journals of Paris made, in 1863, an agreement with M. de Persigny, then Minister of the Interior, to leave to the government one half of the Parisian circumscriptions. I say, also, that the deputies who had accepted the privilege of not being combatted by the administration, and who were, so to speak, its secret candidates, were MM. Emile Ollivier, Darimon, Havin and Guéroult. The existence of this compact is a matter universally known, and I am not guilty of any indiscretion in disclosing it.

PROTECTING BIRDS.—Pennsylvania has taken effective measures to prevent the indiscriminate "slaughter of the innocents" in that State. The Legislature, before adjourning, passed an act, afterward approved by the Governor, which imposes a penalty of twenty-five dollars for the killing of any insectivorous bird, one-half of this fine to be paid to the informer. The birds that are classed under the head of insectivorous are robins, martins, swallows, bluebirds, woodpeckers, &c.; in fact, all the various small birds generally seen in that latitude.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.

Notice to the Bar.

Judge Nelson will sit in the United States Circuit Court on Monday, 31st inst., to hear unfinished and adjourned cases.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—IN BANKRUPTCY.

Decision—Lien of Attorneys Upon Papers of a Bankrupt.

Before Judge Blatchford.

In the Matter of the New York Mail Steamship Company, Bankrupt.—Judge Blatchford put on file his decision in this case yesterday. "On the petition in the matter by the assignees for the delivery of papers by attorneys I have examined the affidavits and other papers submitted to me, but it is impossible for me or them to come to any satisfactory conclusion as to some of the questions involved. As to the claim of services rendered to the bankrupt in opposing the petitions to have been declared involuntary bankrupts, these services were rendered prior to the adjudication of bankruptcy, and, therefore, under section nineteen, the debt for them is one provable in bankruptcy, and the services were not rendered to the assignee. As there is no lien on any papers in respect to such services the debt for them cannot be paid. As to the other matters introduced an order will be entered referring them to Mr John Sedgwick, as a referee, to take testimony as to the matters introduced in the petitions, affidavits and bills for professional services herein and report such testimony; with his opinion, on the following points in each one of the two cases —

As to what suits ought to be proceeded with, either in prosecution or defence

Second, as to any and what papers in said suits are in the possession of the attorneys which are necessary to the assignees in defending or prosecuting the suits which ought to be proceeded with.

Third as to the amounts which are due and unpaid to such attorneys severally, in respect of professional services rendered by them in and about the several suits which ought to be proceeded with, which are a lien on such papers and which ought to be paid to such attorneys on the delivery by them of such papers to the assignees "

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

The Sioux City and Pacific Railroad Litigation—Interesting Testimony—How Franchises are Secured and Railways Constructed.

Before Judge Barnard.

Charles A. Lambard vs. The Sioux City and Pacific Railroad Company, John I. Blair et al.—The plaintiff was one of the originators of the defendant, the Sioux City and Pacific Railroad Company, and the other defendants were his co-corporators. This action is brought for the purpose of having the plaintiff declared by judgment of this court to be entitled to at least one-ninth and possibly one-sixth of the capital stock of the company, which amounts in the aggregate to $4,000,000. From the testimony of the plaintiff it appears that in 1861 he, with a Mr. Crocker, President of the Cedar Rapids Railway Company, were in Washington individually intent on the same object—viz., to secure the passage of a bill by Congress which should aid the extension of the Cedar Rapids Railroad westward on the same conditions as the Union Pacific Railway. In their conversation according to Mr Lambard's story, it was understood that various interests were to be consulted, among them three of the Iowa Congressmen, and they finally settled down to an understanding that each of these interests should have a ninth interest. Congress ultimately made an amendment to the Union Pacific Railway bill which enabled them to accomplish their purpose, and there were then conversations with John I Blair and others on the same basis, which resulted in the signing of articles of incorporation and the subscribing by each of the sum of $1,000,000 of the stock. The case held in this stage till 1866, when it was arranged that Mr. Blair, as president of the Iowa Contracting Company, should subscribe $1,000,000, and some of the parties, including Mr. Lambard, should subscribe $110,000. In 1866 Mr. Lambard went to Europe, and, as he says, arranged with Blair to protect his interest in the company before he went After this $2,000,000 more of stock was subscribed, and, as Mr. Lambard claims, he called on Mr Blair by letter to take up one-ninth of the new subscription for him, but for some reason Mr. Blair refused to do so. The government granted aid to the extent of $16,000 per mile, and forty per cent was exacted on the stock. According to Mr. Lambard's ideas the company must have about $500,000 on hand for distribution. Mr Lambard has got one-twelfth of the stock allotted to the construction company, amounting to $80,000, the $110,000 subscribed at the same time, and the first $1,000 subscription in all $191,000 of stock, but claimed one ninth of the later $2,000,000 under the original arrangement and Mr. Blair's promise to protect his interest.

The engineer of the road gave some interesting facts as to the state of the road It was now in running order There were, including some junctions, 1065 miles of road, but the United States had allowed them but 101.76 miles, the junction branches not being allowed The United States subsidy had been paid, but the United States Commissioner had held that $700,000 must be expended before the road was properly completed He had submitted a report fixing the cost of the road at $4,968,000, but that estimate included a bridge estimated at $1,130,000. He thought the road had cost from $27,000 to $30,000 per mile to build and equip—say $2,850,000 for the road. They now had immediate need of $40,000 worth more of rolling stock, machine shops, which would cost $50,000 to $75,000, round houses, which would cost $26,000, steamboats in place of the bridge for which they had contracted, at $20,000; depots, that would cost $13,000, besides fencing, that would probably cost $120,000, in all $4,150,000. Besides this the law required them to ballast the road with stone, which, as there was no stone within 200 miles, would cost $100,000, and to substitute stone piers where the piers were now wood, this would cost $250,000. He didn't think the company intended to ballast with stone. The deficiency of $70,000, reported by the United States Commissioner, was on the first seventy miles.

Mr. John I. Blair was called and testified that he knew nothing of any arrangement about ninths though ready nine men had signed the articles, and nine had made the first subscription of $1,000 each, There had been a great deal of talk about the time of the passage of the amendment, but no real agreement In the latter part of 1866 he had become rather disgusted at the state of the enterprise, a great national enterprise with but $9,000 subscribed, and some of those subscribers only working on borrowed money. He then subscribed $100,000 himself and $100,000 for Oakes Ames. The subscriptions were made for the purpose of making a report to Congress, but at the same time they were bona fide. He considered himself and Ames, who he knew would adopt whatever he did, responsible for the money Then he had a conversation in New York, at which Mr. Lambard was present, though he (Blair) hardly took him into consideration, as not being responsible. Mr. Blair had not a very high opinion of impecunious people. As a result of that conversation, and he believed at his own suggestion, he went to Iowa, and there subscribed $1,000,000 for the Iowa Construction Company—$110,000 for himself and the same amount for Mr. Ames, and he thought for Mr. Lambert, and some others had signed similar amounts, so as to make up $2,000,000. He had subsequently, with the board of trustees, made a report to the government that $2,000,000 of subscriptions had been made honestly and were good He had not then known that the subscriptions were not good, though he had perhaps some doubts as to the solvency of some members. In fact, Archer and one, if not two others had suggested that they could not pay up Forty per cent had been called on the stock. He had paid up all his assessments. With regard to the loose conversation with Mr Lambard he did not remember its exact terms, but he knew that he had only intended to say that he should not on any technical matter be struck off. Then came the increase of the stock. He had desired to clear out the trash who had subscribed without money to make their subscription good, or at least to bring in men of responsibility. He had proposed to the Board of Trustees to increase the stock and they had referred it to the Executive Committee. The Executive Committee consisted of five. Mr Lambard was one. He had at once opened the books for the new subscription of $2,000,000. There had been no formal meeting of the Executive Committee authorizing it, but he had acted in accordance with the general feeling of the meeting. He had received some letters, or copies of letters, from Mr. Lambard, or his clerk, or from Mr. Williams, as Mr. Lambard's agent, demanding a subscription, but had taken no notice of them, as he did not consider Mr. Lambard a responsible person. There had been no formal meeting of the Executive Committee to close the books. Merely the subscription was filled. He had kept the books open afterwards only to allow transfers and the completion of payments by subscribers. As to himself he had during Mr. Lambard's absence taken but $89,000 of stock, part of the stock subscribed by the Construction Company, and Mr. Ames had taken $180,000 of the same stock, the other $78,000 being taken by various parties, he would have been willing enough to have given Mr. Lambard his one-ninth of that $89,000 but for the charges he had preferred against him. He had now about $300,000 of the funds of the company—about $60,000 cash, about $15,000 United States bonds, $110,000 in a note of Jessup's and $150,000 in a note of Ames'. The company had not yet issued their first mortgage bonds. They were printed. The first lot had been destroyed being wrongly printed, and a new lot printed. He did not know there was any idea of dividing these bonds among the stockholders. He knew some of them were hungry, but there was a good deal to be done on the road. They might still build the bridge. The United States Commissioner had called for $70,000 further expenditure. It was true the road had been accepted and the bonds given by the United States. His son had taken $110,000 of the stock, and he (witness) had paid his assessment of forty per cent. Some of his brothers had taken stock, but had paid for it themselves. The $89,000 of stock taken by himself and the $180,000 by Ames and $78,000 taken by others was, as he understood, the affair of the Construction Company. He, as president of that company, had taken in all for it $1,110,000, and had notified the stockholders of that company, of whom Mr. Lambard was one. Some of the stockholders of that company took their shares, Mr. Lambard taking $30,000. The whole amount of shares taken in this way was $763,000; $78,000 of this subscription was taken by outside parties. He had taken part of the remainder and Mr. Ames a part, rather as relieving the Iowa Construction Company than as an original subscription. He considered this matter as entirely a transaction with the Iowa Construction Company. He thought the stock of the road was, well managed, worth par. (Mr. Lambard had previously testified that he thought the stock of the company worth 125.)

Mr. Ames testified that he had known nothing of any agreement or understanding as to the formation of the company; he was not sure which of his subscriptions he made personally and which was made by Mr. Blair; whatever Mr. Blair had done for him he had ratified.

Mr. Crane, on behalf of the defendants, argued that there was no proof of any contract prior to the organization of the company as to the shares of the association, the only testimony to that effect being that of the plaintiff as to some conversation between himself and Crocker; that such a contract, if any, was based on the consideration of interest with Congressmen, and therefore against public policy, and void; that this was the basis of the action, and the proof failing the action must fall with it, that the individual agreement of Blair with Lambard to take care of his interest while in Europe was not proved, but if it had been was no ground for recovery in this action; that there was no proof whatever connecting Mr. Ames with the matter, nor any ground of action against the corporation, since it had not made or ratified the contract, that Mr Lambard, having been a director of the company, and knowing all its acts, was precluded from making a claim against it; that the increase of stock, in which plaintiff claims a share, was subscribed by about one hundred bona fide purchasers, as to whom no agreement was pretended that the plaintiff had failed to pay his first subscription, and it was merely through Blair's good will that he obtained any interest, taking none of the burden on himself till, by Blair's and Ames' efforts, it was a demonstrated success.

Mr Field, on behalf of the plaintiffs, claimed that all the facts necessary to his case were admitted or clearly proved. The company was formed on the basis of an agreement such as stated by Mr. Lambard, and this agreement was repeatedly recognized by the company in the minutes of its directors, even in the very resolution authorizing the increase of stock. Mr. Lambard had clearly stated an agreement with Mr. Blair, and Mr Blair had not really denied it, but only that he did not remember it exactly, and had some other interpretation of it. There had been a reference of the question of increase of stock to the Executive Committee, but there had been no meeting of the Executive Committee; but Mr. Blair and Mr. Ames had taken on themselves to open little books for subscriptions, and had received $2,270,000 of subscriptions. Mr. Lambard's demand of his share and offer to pay the assessments was admitted, and no reason was given for a refusal to comply with the demand. The company, Mr. Blair and Mr. Ames were the guilty parties in this matter, and the judgment should be against them jointly. To make up Mr. Lambard's one-ninth he should recover 2,777 shares. It was shown that these shares were worth eighty dollars more than the assessments. The judgment should therefore be either that they deliver to Mr. Lambard 2,777 shares on his paying the assessment of forty dollars per share, or that they pay him $222,160 in cash. The Court reserved its decision.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM—PART I.

Ten Thousand Dollars for a Night in Prison—Action to Recover Damages.

Morris Duckworth vs. James Greer et al.—This was an action to recover the sum of $10,000 for alleged false imprisonment. The circumstances of the case were that on August 6, 1866, the plaintiff accompanied a person who had been arrested and conveyed to the Third precinct station, of which the defendant is captain. It appears there was a large crowd at the station and that several persons were ordered away. The plaintiff was among the number, and, according to his complaint, was rudely ejected from the premises. Upon remonstrating he was arrested for disorderly conduct, taken into the station and ordered to be locked up. The following morning he, in company with other prisoners, was taken to the Tombs and upon the complaint being tendered against him he was discharged. He now claimed damages for the alleged injuries to which, as he averred, he had been wrongfully subjected. The defence was a general denial of the several allegations contained in the complaint.

For the plaintiff, Mr. Blankman; for defendant, Mr. Vanderpoel

The jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff damages $1,000.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Judge Bedford, Jr.

The May term of the Court of General Sessions commenced yesterday. District Attorney Garvin, aided by his assistants, Messrs. Hutchings and Tweed, appeared to conduct the prosecutions in the various trials. The calendar was called and days fixed for the various trials of cases; excuses were taken from petit jurors when they proved sufficient. Then the Grand Jury were empanelled and sworn. The Court appointed Mr. Joseph M. Cooper to act as foreman, after which Judge Bedford charged the Grand Jury as follows.—

MR. FOREMAN AND GENTLEMEN OF THE GRAND JURY—It is usual on the opening of each term of this court for the presiding Judge to offer a few general observations to the Grand Jury in reference to their duties and the solemn responsibility devolving upon them. I do not think it necessary to make a lengthened address to you with regard to these duties; suffice it to say that the oath which has this moment been administered to each and all of you very broadly indicates the measure of your responsibilities, and will, no doubt, awaken you to a just appreciation of your conduct as grand jurors I may, however, be permitted to remark that, indeed, at one time there were strong grounds for apprehension that crime in this city threatened to become epidemic; but it affords me great pleasure to say that owing to the vigilance, energy and prompt action of the authorities, this apprehension has not been realized. On the contrary, the bold and daring recklessness which but a few weeks ago, characterized our criminal record has been palpably very much diminished. With these few remarks I will order to be placed in your hands a brief for grand jurors, which will at once prove a faithful guide for the performance of your duties. Gentlemen, you may now retire and enter upon your labors.

A few motions were then made, when the court adjourned till ten o'clock to-day.

THIRD DISTRICT CIVIL COURT.

What Came of Househunting.

Before Judge Smith.

James H. Gorman vs. Thomas Elliott.—This was an action brought by the plaintiff against the defendant to recover eighty eight dollars and seventy-five cents which the plaintiff alleged the defendant wrongfully converted. The facts of the case turned out on the trial to be as follows:—The wife of the plaintiff called on the defendant, who is a house agent, for the purpose of ascertaining if he had any houses to let. He gave to her a permit to see the house No. 9 Horatio street. She took the permit and called at the house referred to. The occupants showed her the premises. She liked the house and called immediately on the defendant and informed him that she would take it. The next day the defendant sent his clerk to the place of business of the defendant with a lease. The plaintiff signed and executed it, but immediately after discovered that the lease was for premises No. 8 Horatio street, and not for No 9 the house which he had hired. He immediately called on the defendant and informed him that the lease was made out and executed by him under the supposition that it was for the house he hired, he demanded back the advanced month's rent which he had paid; but the defendant refused to settle and insisted that he had hired No. 8; the written permit was offered by plaintiff in evidence, and the testimony of Mrs. Gorman clearly showed the facts to be as above stated. The defendant attempted to show a different state of facts, but failed to satisfy Judge Smith of his fair dealing in the matter, and he rendered a judgment in favor of the plaintiff for the amount claimed and stated that the defendant, in default of payment of the judgment was subject to arrest and imprisonment.

THE CUSTOM HOUSE.—Collector Grinnell is in Washington, consulting the heads of departments in relation to reforms in the Custom House. It is expected that important changes will be made in the business of the public stores.

FIVE POINTS HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.—The annual exercises of this institution will take place this evening, at Steinway Hall. The children will be present and engage in a variety of pleasant and interesting exercises. Henry Ward Beecher will address the meeting

DROWNED —The body of a man, recognized as that of William Laney, thirty-seven years of age, late of No. 145 Thompson street, was yesterday found floating in one of the East river docks. The body was secured and one of the coroners notified to hold an inquest.

DEATH OF AN AGED LADY.—Coroner Rollins was yesterday notified to hold an inquest at No. 94 Fourth avenue, on the body of Mrs. Moloney, a woman ninety-five years of age, who died on Sunday night. Deceased had fallen, and the shock to the system resulting therefrom probably caused death.

A SAILOR DROWNED —A boatman coming from the ship J W. Hatfield with seven sailors in his boat was capsized in the North river yesterday morning and one of the sailors was drowned. He is said to have worked his passage home in the ship from Europe, and that his family resided in this city.

PRESENTATION —James Kelly, ex-Postmaster, was presented yesterday afternoon with a beautiful gold watch and chain valued at $700, which sum was spontaneously contributed by the employes of the Post Office. The presentation, which was made by Superintendent Hallett on behalf of the employés, was strictly informal, and passed off with mutual expressions of regard and esteem.

THE NEW POSTMASTER.—General Jones, the new Postmaster of this city, took full charge of his office yesterday. He was bored all day by applicants for position, to all of whom he gave little or no encouragement. It is the Postmaster's intention at the earliest convenient day to pay a visit of inspection to all the sub-offices of the district, accompanied by Mr. Kelly.

FOUND IN THE WATER.—The remains of a man named James McDermott were found floating in the dock at pier No. 4 East river by officer Fairfield, of the First precinct. The body was carried to the late residence of the deceased, 64 Gouverneur street, where Coroner Flynn was called to hold an inquest. Deceased left his home on Sunday evening, and is supposed to have accidentally fallen overboard. He was twenty-eight years of age.

MAYOR'S OFFICE.—The business at the License Bureau yesterday was very slight, and Marshal Tooker had but little to do in disposing of the few cases brought before him. The complaints were chiefly against hackmen for not having their vehicles properly numbered or standing without badges, and one or two against truckmen for not having their trucks numbered, and one for driving without a license. The culprits were each fined and reprimanded, and notified that a repetition of their offences would probably cause the revocation of their licenses

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.—This Board met yesterday afternoon, with the President, Alderman Coman, in the chair No business was transacted, except the adoption of a preamble and set of resolutions in relation to Third avenue, from Ninety-second to 110th streets The preamble sets forth that the avenue is in such a bad condition as to endanger vehicles, when laden, in attempting to travel on it; that on Friday last three trucks, heavily laden with furniture, were upset at three different points and the furniture badly broken. The resolution directed the Street Commissioners to erect barricades on the avenue between the above mentioned streets, until such time as it should be placed in proper repair.

NEW YORK INSTITUTION FOR THE BLIND.—The anniversary exhibition of the New York Institution for the Blind is announced to take place on Thursday, the 13th inst., at Steinway Hall. The entertainment will embrace a great variety of vocal and instrumental music, together with many interesting literary exercises by the inmates of the institution. The public at large, besides the gratification of contributing to so useful a charity, will be afforded a chance of becoming better acquainted with the methods of education adopted by the managers and to observe the remarkable proficiency which has been made by those who have had to struggle against all the disadvantages of a terrible physical infirmity.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON SHIPBOARD.—Coroner Schirmer was yesterday called to the rear of No. 408 West Sixteenth street to hold an inquest on the body of John Armstrong, an Irish laborer, forty-four years of age, who died from the effects of injuries received on the 16th ult. Deceased was at work in the hold of a ship, foot of Eighteenth street, when a tub, containing coal, on being lowered, struck him on the head, partially stunning him. He, however continued at his work for nine days afterwards, when he was taken down and died, as stated. Deputy Coroner Cushman, from a partial examination of the body, was of the impression that death resulted from inflammation of the brain. That, however, would be determined by a post mortem.

AN IRISH GENTLEMAN FOUND DEAD IN A STABLE —Many years ago Cornelius O'Donnell, a man of education and refinement, who inherited a fortune in Ireland, having become much reduced in circumstances settled up his affairs and came to this country with a view of retrieving his losses. Success, however, did not attend him, and finding no vocation more congenial to his tastes he accepted the position of head carver at the St. Nicholas Hotel, the duties of which he discharged in a satisfactory manner. Eventually, however, Mr. O'Donnell left the hotel, and at intervals since has drank to excess, his means having become quite exhausted Some time ago, having nothing better to do, Mr. O'Donnell engaged to take care of some horses of a gentleman who stables in Twenty-ninth street, near Seventh avenue, and quite frequently he slept in the stable at night. On Sunday evening he entered the stable, bolting the door after him, and proceeded to look after the comforts of his horses. Yesterday morning, as O'Donnell did not make his appearance as usual and the stable was locked, the door was forced, when he was found lying down in a box containing oats. It is supposed that while stooping over to take out some grain O'Donnell was seized with a rush of blood to the head or a fit, and, falling into the box, expired soon afterwards. The body was removed and Coroner Rollins notified to hold an inquest. Deceased, who was seventy years of age, had no permanent home or means of support, but his remains will be decently interred by friends and acquaintances. Mr. O'Donnell has relatives of wealth and position in the old country, one of whom is a magistrate in Ireland.

BOLD ROBBERY AT MIDDAY.

Seizure of an Express Wagon, a Safe and Valuable Package of Money.

Hounslow Heath and its memorable records of daring robberies and all the exploits, real and fictitious, of the Jack Sheppard school of highwaymen present in audacity of execution few parallels to a bold robbery perpetrated at midday yesterday in Broadway, the chief and great thoroughfare of our great city, and at this hour so filled with passing pedestrians and vehicles of every kind. The details of the story are soon told and are as follows.—

At a few minutes before noon one of the wagons of the American Merchants' Union Express Company was standing at the corner of Pearl street and Broadway. It was in charge of William J. Cox, a slim and delicate lad of about eighteen. The deliverer of packages had just gone into the Central National Bank to deliver a money package, leaving the wagon in charge of this lad, whose vocation was to accompany him in his rounds of delivery and look after the horse and wagon in his temporary absence. In the wagon was an iron safe containing from $30,000 to $40,000, and besides this were a number of separate money packages of several thousand dollars more. Quick as thought three young men leap into the wagon, young Cox is thrown from his seat into the back of the wagon and held tightly with his face down by two of the men; the third man seizes the lines, puts the whip to the horse and away they dash at a break-neck pace. Mr. J. Dyer, who drives a truck for Aronson & Co., 248 Canal street, happened to see the whole affair, quickly as it was done, and at once comprehended the state of the case. Leaping from his truck, and at the eminent peril of his own life, he seizes the horse by the head and brings it and the vehicle and the persons in it to a stand. The three robbers do not like the situation. They jump from the wagon and take recourse to flight. Two are fortunate enough to escape among the passing throng on Broadway. The third turns down Worth street, and on turning the corner of Church street runs into the clutches of officer Gibson, of the Fifth precinct. The officer, though not knowing what the matter is, but wisely concluding that it is better to nab this fugitive than let him pass on, seizes him. His prisoner strikes him, which makes him more determined to hang on to him, and so he catches him around the neck and holds him fast till another officer comes to his assistance. The prisoner was forthwith taken to the Fifth precinct station house, where he gave the name of James Bulkley. He proved to be disguised. Over a fine pair of French pants were a pair of coarse blue cotton overalls. He had also on a knit coat and shabby hat and coarse shoes. His confederates were somewhat similarly dressed, which makes it quite evident that the robbery we have described, or one of like boldness, had been planned in advance. The prisoner was taken to the Tombs but, pending getting a statement of the quantity of money and other valuables there were in the wagon at the time of the robbery, no affidavits were made. These affidavits will be taken at ten o'clock this morning, when the prisoner will be again arraigned to answer the charge. Meantime he was remanded to the Fifth precinct station. He is a young man, evidently not over twenty-four, thick set and sinewy, but with a disagreeably hard and forbidding expression in his face.

THE SPIRIT PHOTOGRAPH CASE.

Biographical Statement of Mr. Mumler—Summing Up of Counsel—Dismissal of the Complaint—Congratulatory Shakes of the Hand of Mumler—The Closing Act of the Drama.

The closing act in this public drama was performed this morning at the Tombs, before Judge Dowling, in the summing up of counsel. As in the previous acts of the drama—if a farce can be dignified into a drama—there was the usual large attendance of spiritualists, of nondescript visages and other curious lookers on interested in the proceedings. Judge, counsel, the prisoner and spectators were at ten A. M. promptly in attendance.

Before the opposing counsel entered upon their oratorical harangues Mr. Mumler, the prisoner, was asked what he had to say. Rising to his feet he produced a manuscript, and proceeded to read it, which, however, was more biographical than exculpatory. He stated that in 1861 he was employed in business in Boston. One day while in the photographic establishment of a Mr. Stewart he was taking a picture, and, to his astonishment, on the background of the picture there appeared a shadowy form. He was then a mere novice in the art. Subsequently he took up photographing and very soon developed a strange power in producing spirit forms on the pictures he took. He denied positively ever having written any letters to Mr. P. T. Barnum, as alleged by the latter gentleman, and which letters were said to have been destroyed in the burning of the Museum. In regard to Mr. Tooker, the Mayor's Marshal, he remembered the spirit form on the picture, and certainly a more villainous looking spirit form he had never seen, which was to be accounted for, no doubt, from being the spirit of the person nearest in sympathy with Mr. Tooker. He explained his refusal to take pictures in the presence of a committee of photographers as acting in compliance with the advice of his counsel, who cautioned him against being led into any such trap.

Mr. Mumler having concluded the reading of his manuscript, Mr Townsend, his counsel, proceeded to sum up. He began with reading the section from the statute which the accused was charged with violating. He insisted that if Mr Tooker failed to get a spirit photograph, as promised, it was only a breach of contract. Next in order he proceeded to review the testimony of the witnesses for the prosecution. He insisted that their combined testimony was conclusive, as proving that Mr. Mumler produced on photographs the forms of spirits. Respectable witnesses, whose testimony had been unimpeached, declared most positively to spirit forms on their photographs being the likenesses of deceased relatives or friends. A mother had stated that one of these spirit forms was on each likeness of her son, who had passed away, and so, vice versa, a son had testified to one of the spirit forms being a likeness of his mother. In neither of these cases were there likenesses in existence taken while they were in this life. Proceeding on with his argument, he referred to the fact that Andrew Jackson Davis commissioned Mr. Gurney to test Mr. Mumler's process of taking spirit pictures, and that the latter failed utterly to detect in it any deception. Having finished his review of the evidence on both sides Mr. Townsend quoted largely from the Scriptures, showing the existence of spirits and the fact of their being visible. He laid particular stress on the case of Balaam and the ass, when the ass saw the ghost form, which Balaam at first failed to see. He insisted that when an ass can see spirits men of larger intelligence, though less length of ears, must be able to see them; and he further insisted that such ghost forms, being visible or otherwise, can be daguerreotyped. In conclusion he urged that Mumler had committed no offence; that he was guilty of no violation of any law; that he was only endowed with an unusual and marvellous gift; that his business was legitimate; that the present complaint should be dismissed and he be allowed to continue his business.

Mr. Gerry, in opening for the prosecution after an appropriate exordium in general terms, entered upon a review of the testimony for the defence. Mr. Drought he considered as a partner in the swindle, and thus dismissed him. Ex-Judge Edmonds, though an able jurist, he pronounced as like many other men of the past and present time, laboring under mental hallucinations. His testimony he regarded as amounting to nothing. As to Mr. Gilmore, alias Edmund Kirk, he compared him to Snodgrass, who, "in Pickwick," took off his coat and told a crowd that he was going to whip some one, and was at once arrested. This witness told Mumler he had come there to detect his humbug, and thus put the latter on his guard. Regarding Mr. Gurney, the latter thought there was a nigger in the fence, but was unable to detect the Ethiopian. Mr. Terry he declared as simply an intelligent oyster dealer—this and nothing more. Mr. Bremont, the Texan railroad contractor, he thought, might be sharp in railroad matters, but not at all sharp in detecting spiritualistic humbugs. Mr. Silver, who sold out to Mumler, had tried to detect the humbug, but was unable to do so. This he considered as only deepening the mystery of Mumler's spirit photographing. Mr. Slee he declared as an expert in ignorance, rather than photography—one who could not tell what a prism is, and is in no danger by the extent of his scientific attainments of setting the Hudson river on fire. As for the retired merchant, Mr. Livermore, he insisted that all this gentleman's testimony amounted to was simply obtaining a spirit picture with a mysterious head with a floral wreath about it and no spiritual smell apparent. He next took up Mumler's yellow pamphlet, which he considered the sublimity of audacious trifling with the most sacred feelings. Finishing up the pamphlet, he dwelt at some length upon the subject of spiritualism Its foundation, he urged, was a denial of the authenticity of the Bible, and in support of this argument cited passages from the works of Andrew Jackson Davis. On the contrary, he showed the authenticity of the Bible, and particularly the books of the Gospels in the New Testament, by quoting Greenleaf on evidence. The spiritual "Summer Land" he characterized as a combination of imaginative trees and brooks and sunlight and shade—a grand place for a picnic. After showing that Byron, Cooper, Goethe and others, illustrious in the world of letters, were subject to hallucinations, he dwelt at length upon the nine methods, as shown by photographic experts, by which the same kind of pictures taken by Mumler could be taken by any photographer Indulging next in a dramatic interlude in which the prisoner and the witnesses were the dramatis personae he urged that Mumler was guilty of false pretences; that his taking the amounts charged for his spirit photographs was common law larceny; that his wife was equally culpable with him and, that both deserved the punishment provided in the statutes for such cases.

Mr. Townsend made a long rejoinder, after which Judge Dowling gave his decision, as follows:—After a careful and thorough analysis of this interesting and, I may say, extraordinary case I have come to the conclusion that the prisoner should be discharged. I will state that, however, I may be morally convinced there may have been trick and deception practised by the prisoner; yet, as I sit as a magistrate to determine from the evidence given by the witnesses according to law, I am compelled to decide that I would not be justified in sending this complaint to the Grand Jury, as in my opinion the prosecution has failed to make out the case. I therefore dismiss the complaint and order the discharge of the prisoner.

Succeeding the rendition of the Judge's decision there was a tumult of joy among the spiritualistic gathering. Men and women hurried to congratulate Mumler. He bore up bravely under the vigorous shaking of hands. In a few moments the court room was clear. Mumler, ghosts and all departed, and thus ended the drama.

INFELICITY IN HIGH LIFE.

A Quarantine Officer Abandons His Wife—The Case Before a Police Court—Witnesses from Fifth Avenue.

On the 27th ultimo Mrs. Emeline Wheaton, of the St. Germain Hotel, appeared before Justice Dodge, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, and presenting a letter from the Commissioners of Charities and Corrections preferred a charge of abandonment against Dr. Henry Wheaton, boarding officer at the Quarantine station.

In her affidavit she charges that the Doctor has been her husband for seven years and that he has left her without adequate means of support.

On the 28th officer Ferguson, arrested the defendant at the Quarantine station and arraigned him before Justice Dodge, when he stated that he is twenty-eight years of age, a native of Connecticut, a resident of Staten Island and by occupation a physician and boarding officer. In answer to the query as to his guilt the defendant said:—"I am not guilty of the charge of the abandonment of my wife. I am in receipt of $1,200 per year for services in my office; I receive that as a salary."

Upon these proceedings Justice Dodge made an order for the payment to the complainant of ten dollars per week and admitted the accused to bail.

The complainant is a lady of commanding appearance, aged about fifty years, and was tastefully attired in black. No children have blessed their union. It is said that she was before her last marriage the wife of Henry Brown, a well to do merchant of this city.

At eleven o'clock yesterday a hearing of evidence in the case was had at Jefferson Market, when Mr. Bookstaver appeared for the complainant and Mr. McDonough for the defendant.

On her examination Mrs. Wheaton testified as follows:—I was married on April 29, 1862, at the church in Sixteenth street, by the Rev. Father Devlin; I went to Paris, and on my return Mr. Wheaton went into the army and I resided with his mother in Providence, R. I.; I have resided here since November last; he has frequently threatened to abandon me, and has finally done so; I have asked him to support me, but he has declined; I have no means of support; have endeavored to get pupils to support, failed, and have no property of immediate avail; after my mother's death I come into possession of a small property.

Cross-examined by Mr. McDonough—A year ago last February I last lived with my husband on Staten Island; it was then he abandoned me, after being turned out of the hotel; he left the hotel for this city, and I came away the same night and found him; I believe he is living now on Staten Island; I have heard that he takes his meals in this city; I have not abandoned him; I returned to the hotel on Staten Island, but was forcibly put out, there is a property on the corner of Lispenard and Church streets in which I have a third interest; the lot is worth $24,000; there are $5,500 in mortgages upon it; I have no means to pay the interest, the money I obtained upon it I paid for rent of a house that Mr. Wheaton rented to keep boarders in; the money thus obtained was used entirely in paying rent; to cover other expenses Mr. Wheaton sold my silver, jewelry and clothes; I had the pawn tickets; I have lived for three weeks as a visitor at the St. Germain Hotel; I borrowed money to pay my bill there, Mr. Wheaton's mother gave me all the money she could, and other members of the family have aided me.

Redirect—He told me to go to the lower regions, that he would not provide a home for me.

Several letters relating to family matters were here recognized by witness and put in as evidence.

Arthur Leary sworn for the complainant—I reside at No. 90 Fifth avenue; I know plaintiff and defendant—the former for twenty years; I am acquainted with her financial affairs; all the property she has is her interest in the vacant lot corner of Church and Lispenard streets, which produces no income and is all the time subject to taxes and assessments; she has no other property; she gave a mortgage on the property for $4,000, another of $800 and accumulated interest for two years; I have advanced several hundred dollars and took her notes, I know defendant has abandoned her and no longer lives with her

The prosecution here rested, when Mr. McDonough announced that he had no rebutting evidence to offer, as her interest in the property shows that she cannot become a burden on the county when fully $1,500 can be raised on the property. For this reason the defence held that the amount named in the order should be reduced if the order be not vacated. They also claimed that their residence had continued to be on Staten Island, and complainant had come to New York, and therefore a charge of abandonment could not lie.

Justice Dodge took the record and announced that he would give a decision in a few days.

THE BOARD OF EXCISE.

The Board of Excise met yesterday afternoon, the President, Judge Bosworth, in the chair. A woman named Elizabeth Baker, residing at Staten Island, complained against Weirt Banta, who sold her liquor on Sunday, the 18th of April last. The complainant testified that she had repeatedly warned the defendant not to sell or give liquor to her husband, and that on the day in question she determined to put an end to his career as a liquor dealer, so she sent her little girl to him for spirits, which she got in a bottle. The defendant swore that when the girl came to him she said that her name was Latourette and that she wanted the liquor for a sick man named Decker. The license was revoked. The licenses of the following persons were revoked:—John Dickhardt, 117 Hester street; Weirt Banta, Elm Park, Henry Ellas, Ninety-second street, between Second and Third avenues, Leonard Dickermann. The following communication was read and referred to a special committee—Commissioners Lincoln and Stone—to draw up an appropriate answer:—

SAYBROOK, Conn., April 19, 1869.

TO THE METROPOLITAN BOARD OF EXCISE:—

GENTLEMEN—The condition of my health, as you know, has compelled me to retire from the office of Commissioner of Metropolitan Police, creating a vacancy in the several Boards of which I have been a member. It seems to me that the measures in progress are sure to fill the vacancy legally, promptly and, I hope and believe, in a manner acceptable to the public and to the several Boards in question.

I know of no public body the action of which is more important to the citizens than that of the Board of Excise The experience of three years demonstrates the value and efficacy of thorough, impartial and enlightened administration of the Excise law in securing public order, personal safety and social comfort of the inhabitants of the district. I have an abiding faith that the Board of Excise will in the future discharge, as in the past it has discharged, its very important functions in such manner as to secure to themselves and to the Excise law continued and increased public commendation and support.

In terminating the official relations which have existed between us it affords me great pleasure to tender to the Board and personally to each member thereof, well deserved thanks for the kindness confidence and consideration at all times extended to me in all cases and under all circumstances throughout the term of our official connection.

I trust that success may attend the future of the Board, and that each of you may personally enjoy continued prosperity, health and happiness THOMAS C ACTON.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The Board of Health held their regular weekly meeting yesterday afternoon, President Lincoln in the chair.

Judge Bosworth, chairman of the Committee on Finance, read a lengthy report concerning the orders of the Board that have been complied with and not complied with, &c. The report is of more interest to the Board than to the public, being especially devoted to the consideration of the Assistant Attorney's report submitted some time ago.

Mr. Eaton, the counsel, offered a substitute to the ordinance on cattle driving, to the effect that whenever cattle or sheep shall arrive in the Twenty-second or Thirtieth precinct after the hours fixed for driving cattle through certain streets, which cattle or sheep may have been delayed without wrongful act on the part of the owners, that they shall be allowed to be driven above Fortieth street on the drivers receiving written permits from the respective police offices, under such regulations as the Board of Police may see fit to enact. The substitute was adopted.

A lengthy communication was received from the Superintendent of Street Cleaning, the pith of which was the recommendation that stationary iron boxes for garbage should be placed on the sidewalks in tenement house neighborhoods and portable boxes in other neighborhoods.

The permits of several butchers to slaughter sheep and cattle inside the city limits were renewed.

A communication from the Registry Clerk was read, in which he requested to be informed whether or not he would be justified in registering a marriage which was performed by a notary public

The counsel remarked that the marriage was undoubtedly a legal one but that as it took place in an irregular way some distinction from ordinary certificates should be made by the clerk in making out the certificate, so that if it were the intention of the married parties to make use of the certificate in foreign countries the authorities in those countries should be aware of the irregularity

An ordinance prohibiting the keeping within the city limits of any ass, colt or horse afflicted with the farcy or glanders was passed.

A communication was received from Mr. Acton, in which, while resigning his office as Health Commissioner, he takes occasion to express his thanks to the Board for the uniform kindness extended to him during his term of office.

Dr. Stone called up his resolutions concerning quarantine matters, but on motion of Commissioner Manierre their consideration was postponed to the next meeting of the Board.

QUARANTINE.

The Grounds That Were Sold—No Record of the Sale—Where Has the Money Gone?

The grounds at Staten Island close by the first landing, which formerly constituted the Quarantine station, were sold, it will be remembered, towards the end of last summer, to three persons, named Weiner, Shortland and Reynolds. The HERALD gave very full particulars afterwards of the manner in which that sale was effected; how the most valuable piece of land on Staten Island was disposed of for less than one-fourth of its value, and how the parties professing to be the purchasers represented others than themselves—represented certain men whose names are pretty prominent, and who felt no particular desire to be mentioned in connection with the transaction. About nine months have elapsed since the grounds were sold, and as yet no record of the deed of sale appears on the books of the County Clerk at Richmond, Staten Island. All sales and transfers of real estate have hitherto been recorded in this quarter, but we have yet to see this of the Quarantine grounds put down for reference. It may not be exactly prima facie evidence of something being wrong in the sale itself, but it is certainly provocative of suspicion that in the arrangement of sale and purchase there must have been features of irregularity that could hardly stand the test of exposure. The trustees of St. Andrew's Episcopal church contemplate instituting proceedings for the recovery of the Quarantine grounds, on the score that, being originally given by the church to the State for quarantine purposes solely, they reverted to the church when they ceased to be used any longer for the object for which they were granted. The trustees have a very good case here, and the State can hardly question the propriety of the claim. But the grounds have already, it is supposed, passed out of the hands of the State into the possession of Dr. Swinburne and his friends. There is no record, however, in the way of the trustees, and when they demand of the State that the grounds be restored those who claim to be the owners will have to produce their deed of purchase and let the public know who they are. Governor Hoffman could very conveniently inquire at Albany of the State Treasurer whether any money has been paid in as yet of the $200,000 which we were told last year was agreed to be paid for the property. If none is marked down then the sale has been a very plain swindle; for it was stipulated, according to Mr. Johnson, the lawyer for the Commissioners of Quarantine, that at least $40,000 should be paid in cash after the purchase was made. It is the intention of those who own the property now, or claim to own it, to continue a street of the village at the first landing through the centre of the grounds, thus dividing it off into two sections and enhancing the value of each. A horse car railroad will be laid along this street, and building lots will no doubt be held at a high figure. Considering that there are twenty acres in the grounds the value of the whole will reach something like a million of dollars. The information is asked in all kindness, when and where was the money paid for the Quarantine property, and why is not the deed recorded at the office of Mr. Egbert, County Clerk at Richmond, Staten Island?

RITUALISM EXTRAORDINARY.

The Guild of the Holy Cross—Extraordinary Services in Christ Church—The Brilliant Altar, Gorgeous Vestments, Candles and Little Boys.

Christ church, Fifth avenue, was yesterday morning the scene of an intensely ritualistic service, commemorative of the organization of a high church Episcopal society, called the "Guild of the Holy Cross." The attendance was quite large. On entering the visitor was asked if he belonged to the "Kyrie;" if so, he was requested to enter by the door on Thirty-fifth street. The following circular was handed to occupants of pews:—

[Confidential]

Catholic worshippers who may attend the private commemoration of the Guild of the Holy Cross are earnestly requested to comply with the well known Catholic rules, as follows.—To bow reverently at the Gloria and at the Holy Name, to remain kneeling from the Confession throughout the service, only rising to commune, and again at the hymn "Faithful Cross," which takes the place of the Gloria in Excelsis in the Post Communion service, and not to leave the church until the altar lights are extinguished and the Guild have retired.

The church was dark, with the exception of the altar and chancel, which were brilliantly illuminated with gas and wax candles Four lofty wax candles lighted up the altar and a cross above it. As the services opened with a voluntary and chant, a procession of the choir, clergy, officers and fellows of the Guild, preceded by a little boy bearing a cross, entered from the vestry, clad in gowns and chasubles of black, red and blue trimmed with white gray and red and a white cross on the breast. The procession passed down the side and up the middle aisle, the members of the Guild occupying the centre pews. The service was as follows:—The Litany; a voluntary on the organ; a second procession of priests in gorgeous vestments, preceded by the cross and two wax candles carried by little boys; the communion service; the Commandments intoned and responses by the choir; the Epistle of the day, a hymn, the Gospel of the day, chanted by a priest; the Offertory; communion service and administration of the sacrament in the following order:—The clergy; the choir, the officers and fellows of the Guild, vested and unvested; the religious, the men, the women. An address by one of the clergy was followed by a hymn, which closed the services. The religious forms and observances were throughout nearly identical with those which characterize the Romish Church.

DEATH OF A NOTORIOUS CHARACTER.

Information reached the Coroner's Office yesterday afternoon that Michael O'Brien, better known as "Desperate Mike," had died in the Penitentiary Hospital, on Blackwell's Island, late Sunday afternoon. On the 20th of March, Mike was arraigned before the Court of Special Sessions on a charge of assault and battery, which resulted in his conviction and sentence for six months in the Penitentiary. Coroner Keenan has the matter in charge and will hold an inquest on the body. Mike's career in America has been decidedly chequered He was thirty-eight years of age, and twenty years ago Mike came to this country from Ireland and took up his abode in the First ward Being of an excitable and turbulent nature, particularly when under the influence of liquor, Mike frequently abused his wife, and came in violent collision with the police, taking great delight in assaulting them whenever a convenient opportunity presented itself. The result was that he often fell into the clutches of the officers, and times almost without number Mike has been on the island. It is estimated by those who know him well that he has spent half his life in this country in the Penitentiary, and imprisonment almost became a second nature to him. Deceased has left a family in the First ward.

JUDGE CONNOLLY AND HIS OFFICES.

NEW YORK, May 3, 1869.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Please permit me to reply briefly to your paragraph of this morning in reference to my "holding two elective offices."

The relation of the Register with the city government is merely one of pecuniary responsibility on the part of the incumbent of the office for the faithful performance of his trust. His compensation is not drawn from the public treasury, but is derived solely from those for whose benefit his services are required. The assumption of that trust and the receipt of its emoluments I believe to be as consistent with my magisterial obligations as is the practice of my profession or would be any industrial avocation for which my other duties may afford the leisure. Had I consulted my own views I should have tendered my resignation as Police Justice to his Excellency the Governor at the commencement of his administration, but my wishes were overcome by the continuous and incessant demands of my personal friends and constituents generally, from the time of my election to the registership that I should serve out the entire term for which they had elected me.

I have in my possession a document numerously signed by prominent citizens of the Seventh Judicial district congratulating me upon my election to the office of Register and at the same time protesting against my abandoning the office of Police Justice before the expiration of my term.

MICHAEL CONNOLLY.

THE HEIRS OF GENERAL TAYLOR.—IMPORTANT DECISION.—A case of great importance, and one that has excited much interest in Newport, Ky, has just been decided by the Court of Appeals of that State. By the will of General Taylor, who died in 1848, 120 acres of land, lying within a short distance of the heart of Newport, was devised to trustees to be sold, and the proceeds invested for the benefit of his three daughters and their heirs. On the death of Mrs. Tibbatts, General Hodge and her other children filed their suit to set aside the trust and be allowed to take the property in fee simple and declare the trust ended as to one-third. The lower court granted the prayer. The trustees then took the case to the Court of Appeals, and that tribunal has, by the decision just rendered, declared that the trust has ceased as to Hodge and his coplaintiffs, and decreed their property to them in fee-simple and ordered the whole tract to be laid out into streets alleys and lots. This brings all the land into the city for taxation—Cincinnati Inquirer, May 1.

In twenty-four State prisons in the United States there were in 1868 an aggregate of 10,385 prisoners. These cost the States the round sum of $1,566,982, and their earnings amounted to $1,092,630.

THE NEWS.

Europe.

The cable telegrams are dated May 3.

A meeting, managed by members of the tory party, was held in St. James' Hall, London, last night, to protest against Mr. Gladstone's scheme of disestablishing the Irish Church. The consideration of amendments to the Irish Church bill was resumed in Parliament yesterday. The clause concerning the Regium donum was so amended as to include compensation for ministers of all congregations.

A public meeting endorsing the recent speech of the Mayor of Cork was held on Saturday night in Cork.

Mr. Edward de Stoeckel, the Russian Minister to the United States, has been recalled.

Cuba.

Despatches dated Havana, April 30, contain advices from Nuevitas to the 26th. The Cuban Congress was in session at Sibanica, a village about eight leagues from Puerto Principe. General Cespedes presided and thirty members were present, representing all parts of the island. Resolutions declaring freedom from Spain and annexation to the United States the ends to be attained by the war were passed unanimously. Quesada was chosen Generalissimo. A determined spirit was evinced by the members and they appeared to have a strong hope of success. Several of the Revolutionary Junta have been arrested in the Puerto Principe district. The insurgents have appeared in Cinco Villas and the surrounding country.

The insurgent government, it is reported from Washington, have negotiations in progress for the purchase of the Peruvian monitors now at St. Thomas.

The Legislature.

The following are the more important bills which passed the Senate yesterday:—To organize the Brooklyn Fire Department; to incorporate the Hansom Cab Company; also numerous claim bills. The Senate insisted upon its amendments to the Town Bonding bill and appointed a committee of conference. The bill relating to the fees of the Sheriff of New York was amended, providing that the fees shall not in any case exceed five hundred dollars, and the bill was then ordered to a third reading. The bill amending the State Excise law was taken up, and after refusing to amend by striking out the section exempting the Metropolitan District, the bill was passed by a vote of 27 to 6. Mr. Morgan offered a concurrent resolution—which was tabled under the rule—that the Legislature adjourn on Friday, the 7th inst. The bill amending the charter of the New York Underground Railway was taken up and considered, and the Senate adjourned.

In the Assembly the bill providing for the construction of a central elevated patented railway in Broadway and the bill to amend the registry law were ordered to a third reading. The bill increasing the salaries of the judges of the Court of Appeals and of the Supreme Court was lost by a vote of 13 to 73. Twenty-three bills were passed, including bills to punish fraud in canvassing and counting votes at elections, providing for the transfer of certain State arsenals and armories, enlarging the State Board of Charities, and to suppress lotteries and the sale of lottery tickets.

Miscellaneous.

General Stanley, commanding at Fort Sully, on the Platte river, writes to Lieutenant General Sheridan that the peace negotiations with the Sioux have proved an entire failure.

A riot occurred in Brownsville, Tenn., on Sunday night, in which one white man and two negroes were killed. There were no politics mixed up in the affair, apparently.

A boy of fifteen, named Frank Cheney, shot himself dead in North Andover, Mass., yesterday, because his father had required him to apologize to his school teacher for truancy.

A writ of habeas corpus has been issued in the case of Thomas Drew, of Boston, who is in jail for refusing to testify before a committee of the Massachusetts Legislature.

The Liquor License law expired in Boston on Saturday, and all liquor dealers in the city were directed to close their saloons. None of them complied, however, but in the evening they held a public meeting, wherein they resolved not to resist the law as a body, but to organize a new political party on anti-temperance principles. One dealer was so excited over the order to close up that he went crazy and hung himself.

A cargo of wheat, 31,000 bushels, was made up at St. Louis, Mo., for the Grain Association of New York. This grain will be shipped via New Orleans and delivered in New York at much lower rates than wheat forwarded by any other route.

Rear Admiral Craven reports to the Navy Department the destruction of many Indian villages and settlements, salmon fisheries, canoes and forts in Alaska by the United States steamer Saginaw in retaliation for the murder of one or two soldiers.

The City.

There not being a quorum of Assistant Aldermen present yesterday afternoon the President declared the Board adjourned till Thursday next.

In the Board of Excise yesterday a communication was received from Thomas C. Acton announcing his regret at severing the official relations he had sustained with the Board. A committee was appointed to prepare a suitable answer.

The spirit photograph case was brought to a close yesterday. After listening to nearly five hours summing up of opposing counsel Justice Dowling dismissed the complaint. A bevy of women, strong in the spiritualistic faith, giving Mumler congratulatory shakes of the hand, was the closing act of the drama.

A detective who had charge of the house of Kindt, on State street, Brooklyn, one of the parties charged with the robbery of Wheeler's watch case manufactory, accidentally displaced some woodwork on Friday and discovered a hiding place in which was secreted three nuggets of gold, sixteen gold watch cases and two gold seal rings, the whole property being worth $5,000. Kindt on hearing of this discovery confessed to the crime.

One of the Merchants' Union Express Company's delivery wagons, containing numerous money packages and an iron safe with from $30,000 to $50,000 in it, was standing at the corner of Broadway and Pearl street yesterday, in charge of a lad of eighteen, the driver being in a store delivering packages, when three men leaped into it, seized the lad, held him down to the floor and drove away at a slashing gait. A truckman, named Dyer, saw it all, and, jumping in front, caught the horses and stopped the robbery. The thieves broke away, and two of them mingled in the Broadway crowd and escaped, but the third was captured.

"The Guild of the Holy Cross," a high church Episcopal society, was organized at Christ church in Fifth avenue yesterday, with intensely ritualistic services, the forms and observances being nearly the same as those which characterize the Church of Rome.

The Hamburg American Packet Company's steamship Germania, Captain Kier, will leave Hoboken at two P. M. to-day for Plymouth, Eng., Cherbourg and Hamburg. The mails will close at the Post Office at twelve M.

The Inman line steamship City of Manchester, Captain Delamotte, will leave pier 45 North river at twelve M. to-day for Queenstown and Liverpool, calling at Halifax, N. S., to land and receive mails and passengers.

The steamship Denmark, Captain Cato, of the National line, will leave pier 47 North river at twelve M. to-morrow (Wednesday) for Liverpool, calling at Queenstown to land passengers.

The new steamship Idaho, Captain Cutting, of Williams & Guion's line, will sail from pier 46 North river at two P. to-morrow, 5th inst., for Queenstown and Liverpool.

The steamship Fah-Kee, Captain Steele, will leave pier 13 North river at three P. M. to-day for Bermuda.

The stock market yesterday was heavy and dull, except for Fort Wayne and the Lake Shore stocks. Gold was excited, advancing from 135 to 136⅛, and closing finally at 135⅞.

With a supply of 2,500 head on sale, and a moderately active inquiry, the market for beef cattle was quite steady, extra steers selling at 16¾c. a 17c., prime at 16c. a 16½c., fair to good at 14½c. a 15½c., and inferior to ordinary at 10c. a 14c. The averge quality of the offerings was fair. Milch cows were dull and heavy for common, but steady for good. We quote:—Prime and extra $90 a $125 each, fair to good, $75 a $85, and inferior to common $45 a $70. Veal calves were dull and heavy at 11c. a 12c. for prime and extra, 8½c. a 10c. for common, to good and 6c. a 8c. for inferior. Sheep were in fair request at quite steady prices, the offerings being moderate. We quote:—Sheared—Extra, 8c. a 8½c.; prime, 7½c. a 7¾c.; common to good, 6c. a 7c.; inferior, 5c. a 5½c. Unshorn—Prime and extra, 8¾c. a 9c.; common to good, 7½c. a 8c., and inferior, 6¾c. a 7c. Swine were quiet, at 9¾c. a 10c. for fair to prime and 9¾c. a 9⅝c. for common, with fair arrivals.

Prominent Arrivals in the City.

J. Lothrop Motley, United States Minister to England, and Adam Badeau, Assistant Secretary of Legation; Count D'Aerschot, Secretary of the Belgian Legation; Rustew Bey and Mr. Wyatt, of the Turkish Legation; Congressman Samuel Hooper, of Massachusetts, and George Villiers, of England, are at the Brevoort House.

Miss Clara Louise Kellogg; Archer Cheny and Charles F. Wood, of Boston, and Francis A. Fisher, of Rutland, Vt., are at the Westminster Hotel.

Judge Thorn, of New York; Gideon J. Tucker, of Paris; Colonel C. B. Butler, of Luzerne, and W. W. Freeman, of North Adams, are at the Westmoreland Hotel.

Captain D. W. Storrer, of Bengal; Major J. Pitney, of Saratoga, and L. D. Binkerhoff, of Philadelphia, are at the St. Charles Hotel.

General H. K. Adams, of Canada; Congressman B. F. Hopkins, of Wisconsin; G. D. Coleman, of Lebanon; Dr. E. Eldridge, of Elmira, and W. L. Scott, of Erie, are at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

J. Hurd, W. L. Dexter and P. L. Everett, of Boston, and R. Rieman, of Baltimore, are at the Hoffman House.

Dr. C. W. Brink, United States Consul to Mexico; F. P. Cuppy and A. McKee, of Washington; I. K. Clark, of Canada; W. G. Fargo, of Buffalo; James Cruikshank, of Glasgow, Scotland; M. M. Price, Consul to Marseilles, and F. Watkyns, of England, are at the Astor House.

Prominent Departures.

Major L. B. Scott, for Montreal; L. W. Powell, for Chicago; F. A. Alberger, for Buffalo; Dr. Palmer, for Philadelphia, and L. S. Huntington, for Montreal.

General Sherman was in this city yesterday, and visited a few friends. He made his headquarters at the Astor House. He left for Washington last night.

RENTS IN PARIS AND IN NEW YORK.—One of our Paris correspondents mentions, in a letter which we published yesterday, the fact that the exorbitant prices for rent occasioned by the "Haussmannizing" of the French capital and by the immense influx of foreign visitors during the great Exposition are at length beginning to diminish. So many edifices have been erected, says our correspondent, so many palatial houses built, that Paris landlords are lowering their charges for fifth and sixth story flats. No less than nine thousand locations have remained vacant since last year on account of their egregious pretensions and grotesque prices for rent. The number of lodgings which still remain vacant in New York since the fatal 1st of May is relatively as large, and we are glad to learn that New York landlords are beginning to follow the example of Paris landlords. Not even the extraordinary annual increase of our city population can justify the prices for rent which certain landlords seem disposed to exact.

THE BROOKLYN FIRE DEPARTMENT.—The bill authorizing the organization of a paid fire department, controlled by commissioners, in the city of Brooklyn has passed both branches of the State Legislature, and requires only the signature of the Governor to be of legal force. The excellent working of the system in New York rendered the morale of the Brooklyn firemen, particularly those of the Eastern District, of a not very enviable character—it may be by contrast. The Brooklyn force can be rendered just as efficient as our own by a general weeding out, discipline and a well-regulated command

President Grant and the Republican Party.

We publish to-day some very curious extracts from prominent republican organs in the West and East, together with a few comments from democratic papers. It will be seen that the Chicago Tribune, speaking for its Western faction of republicans, declares war, open and unmistakable, against General Grant, and that while some of the small fry Western papers attempt to put in disclaimers in favor of Grant they cannot stand against the torrent, and are likely to be swept away in the revolutionary whirlpool set in motion by the Tribune. Moreover, it will be observed that a powerful New England republican organ, the Boston Daily Advertiser, takes up the movement inaugurated by its Western republican colleague and pushes it forward with the energy and ingenuity which usually distinguish the manœuvres of politicians from its section. Influential republican organs in this city like the Evening Post, as well as others in different places, have taken up the hue and cry against the President, and if voice and volume could be given to their utterances they would be heard proclaiming aloud, after the manner of the revolutionists of the Old World, "Down with Grant! Long live the Senatorial oligarchy!" It is, furthermore, a significant fact that both the Eastern and Western journals above mentioned are the organs of prominent Senators, and no doubt the articles they publish against General Grant are inspired by themselves—those in the West by Senator Trumbull, of Illinois, and those in the East by Senator Sumner, of Massachusetts. In addition to these facts we have the startling assurance of a zealous republican paper in Kentucky—the Lexington Statesman—that nominations made by General Grant have been surreptitiously and criminally tampered with after they left the hands of the Executive, and that after undergoing Senatorial or some other manipulation have come forth with features so transformed as to be entirely unrecognizable by the power that created them.

Now, what is the tendency of all these things? What will be the result of these revolutionary proceedings on the part of the radical republicans? We will say that we cannot conceal our apprehensions that they portend the most serious consequences to the country unless, by a speedy effort, General Grant rises to the exigencies of the occasion and realizes the magnitude of the issues involved. It is not the consideration of the distribution of a few paltry offices that impels these revolutionists in and out of the Senate to attempt to break down General Grant's administration. They know that the President is not all to blame for the disturbance that has been created among republican politicians and their greedy followers by the appointments he has made or recommended. The republicans passed the Tenure of Office bill, which shackled his power in selecting the right men for the right places. They refused to repeal that offensive measure, and therefore they are justly held responsible for whatever injudicious appointments may have been made. We have seen where his nominations have been ignored and others substituted; and no doubt the curtain is yet to be raised upon instances of corruption that will shock the moral sense of our people from one end of the country to the other.

The fact has become patent that the republican party is the most corrupt that ever cursed our land. During the war its leaders fell upon the national treasury and the public credit like so many ravenous wolves. Their jobs and robberies in the way of army contracts, in the sale of rotten old hulks for transports, in the building of new war vessels that proved shells or abortions, and in everything connected with supplies, including provisions, clothing, forage, hospital stores, and so on to the end of the catalogue, for the use of the army and navy, were enough to appal any other people than the American. These depraved and hungry leaders, with appetites for the spoils of office still lingering in their insatiable maws, have now fastened upon the Senate of the United States, and, with an avariciousness that spurns all compromise, reason and control, demand that no appointment shall be made without their having a finger in the selection. In the homely phrase of a Western Senator, they are persistently "dingdonging" every member of that body; and, it is mortifying to acknowledge, they have in that body friends and confrères as corrupt as themselves, who are ready and are employed to do their bidding in making Indian treaties, allowing enormous grants of land for private purposes and engaging in other scandalous practices, besides encouraging fraudulent appointments to office. These Senators seem to think that they have a life tenure to their seats. The eighteen year old settlers are as fresh and blooming when the subject of spoils comes up as when they made their maiden speeches. They want to control everything, and with their outside millionnaire backers they manage to do so. They treat Grant as if he were a renegade, and they would let the government go to ruin rather than have their schemes of personal aggrandizement or their objects of a purely political character thwarted. They would let our diplomatic system go to wreck rather than not have foreign ministers of their own choosing. They would let our finances go to the dogs rather than have them controlled by any others than those of their own set. They are always grasping for more, and when there is no more to grasp they would create public offices and public plunder jobs for the benefit of those interested in their gigantic Senatorial jobbing rings. Their pleas of retrenchment and reform are all fol-de-rol. What they save to the government in a year by the removal of hundreds of office-holders would not cover the public robberies they sanction in the way of land grants and subsidies to private corporations in a single session, or by a single job in a single session. General Grant, unfortunately, seems to let them have their own way. This should not be. He should take hold of the helm with an iron hand, and give them, in a political sense, those hearty blows and ceaseless knocks which brought Vicksburg to his feet. If his Cabinet does not please him, let him change it at once and keep on changing it—not in obedience to the dictation of Western or Eastern revolutionary republican papers, but in compliance with his own best judgment and his own conscientious will—until he is satisfied and the machinery of the government again works smoothly; thereby, if there remain any virtue in the Senate, the truly honorable there will cling to him and, in smashing up the corrupt old republican party, erect a bulwark around his administration against which the blasts of radicalism will beat in vain. The people expect this of him, and the tone of the press opposed to him has given him an excuse not only to talk, but to act.

A Cuban Congress—Annexation to the United States the Declared Object of the Revolution.

While the Spanish authorities in Havana are loudly assuring the world that the Cuban insurrection is very nearly extinguished, and that sixty days more will see the end of the revolution, we are startled with a telegram—suppressed in Havana, but sent to us via Key West—announcing that the Cuban Congress has assembled at Sibanicú under the Presidency of General Cespedes, and calmly declared the objects of the revolution and its confidence in the success of the cause. Freedom and annexation to the United States are the unanimous vote of the assembled patriots. General Quesada is appointed Commander-in-Chief of the forces, and the most determined spirit animated the members of the assembly.

This is an announcement that will ring through America and Europe. It will be remembered that months ago these Cuban patriots decreed the liberation of the slaves in the island as being a logical sequence and part of their effort for their own freedom; and now comes the unhesitating proclamation of their confidence in the great republic and their aim to be admitted to its union and defence. It is a novel and bold principle of civil war, and will complicate the position of our people and our government very much. Whatever view the administration may take of the contest now going on in Cuba, it cannot reject such a frank avowal of confidence in its wisdom and integrity; for to do so would be a demerit to its own character and self-respect. That this bold step will awaken a still greater sympathy among our people in behalf of the patriot cause in Cuba no man can doubt. What attitude Spain will or can take in this strange juncture can be merely a matter of conjecture. She has not yet proclaimed war as existing in her American colonial possessions, though her officers made the mistake of assuming to exercise rights on the sea peculiar to a state of war, from which they have naturally been compelled to recede.

Spain may demand of our government a disavowal of sympathy with the revolution in Cuba, but to do so she will subject herself to the dilemma of either receiving the rebuff of a refusal or of admitting a disavowal which neither she nor the world can believe. Yet if she does not do so she will permit the tacit acceptance by our government and people of the aim of the revolution to exercise its full force in the contest and its natural influence in the diplomacy of cabinets. The intervention of other European cabinets in the diplomatic discussion, which the Spanish journals have frequently intimated as likely to be brought about, would only complicate the question still more. The step taken by the Cubans elevates their domestic affairs to the full dignity of an American question, and European meddling can only intensify its character and consolidate its influence. As a step in diplomacy, therefore, and in the arts of government, the action of the Cuban Congress is a very shrewd one, and shows a skill and proficiency which does them high honor as beginners.

Our Relations with England.

The Alabama claims question appears to be assuming an importance which it should have assumed long since. It is only the sad political condition in which the "reconstruction" radicals have kept us that has prevented our settling this English affair. In the conversation between Mr. Sumner and our correspondent, published yesterday, Mr. Sumner justly says:—"We have defined our position now, and there will be no yielding. We ask nothing but what is fair, and our people mean to have justice at least."

We do not apprehend that war will result from the attitude we have assumed; but the result, on the contrary, will be a closer and better understanding between the two nations. Such men as Reverdy Johnson only help to bury the real issue under mountains of roast beef, plum pudding, "'af and 'at" and champagne. The action of the United States Senate was necessary to sweep away the debris and get at the question. We made clear work of it, and with a smooth floor before us we are ready to open a lively commercial cancan with John Bull, or, as he has the largest family of ships on the ocean, we will launch a few Alabamas and commence coquetting, if that be required. But English good sense and love of fair play will no doubt settle all this war flurry to our entire satisfaction. We are now exactly where we thoroughly understand each other, and that is the first broad step towards a settlement.

NEW SCRIPTURAL READING.—"An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, and a Blow for"—our representative to Brazil. A Western paper thinks that this appointment disposes of Carlisle's latest hope. He'd

But never such a Blow.

SIGNIFICANT.—Michigan democratic journals quoting the editorials in such radical organs as the Detroit Advertiser.

BOREMANISM.—The Wheeling Register suggests this term as illustrative of the European plan upon which the organ of Senator Boreman, the Intelligencer, is conducted—he calls for what he wants and pays for what he gets. Some journals conducted on this principle frequently give more than is wanted.

VALLANDIGHAM indignantly denies that he defeated the nomination of Chase and overthrew the democratic party at the last Presidential election. We suppose we shall next have a discussion as to whether Brutus killed Cæsar or whether Cæsar died of cramps in the Senate House. Both subjects are about equally ancient President Grant and His Cabinet.

It is evident that the men composing the President's Cabinet are ill-suited to their positions. None of them take hold of the great questions appertaining to their departments in a manner that indicates grasp of mind and originality in execution. We speak of these things for the benefit of the President himself. He requires men around him who have sufficient brains to administer the laws in all except extraordinary cases, which may require consultation and close executive attention. General Grant has made a mistake in supposing that civil government can be directed by military forms. The civil power is the reverse of the military. The former proceeds from the people to the centre—the mass governs and directs through its mouthpiece, the President; the military power is the centre, creating all action and shaping everything. It is with the military idea predominant and in keeping with his education and habits that General Grant came into office. The Cabinet was selected under this principle, and not having been accustomed or fitted to work in such a direction they already show signs of imbecility. The Secretary of the Treasury finds the financial problem too ponderous for the keeper of a country store or for solution in accordance with the old European book theories. He finds it impossible to run the American treasure box on European wheels.

The letter from Washington, which we publish elsewhere to-day, says truly that "Mr. Borie was called from the most complete retirement," much to the astonishment of himself as well as the country. Admiral Porter is to-day virtually filling the office of Secretary of the Navy. The Secretary of State, worse than all the rest, is as un-American as it is possible for an officer to be. His tame foreign policy is in ill-keeping with the bold attitude of the people and the Senate. The country does not expect him to think for it, but simply to watch its temper and obey its mandates. When he fails in this he ceases to be the representative of the United States in the position where the President has unfortunately placed him. We are little disposed to have a Secretary amuse the people with ideas of a bold policy on any foreign question while he has a private and opposite understanding with the Power to which it relates. This is too much in the track of the last eight years.

We speak of the necessity of remodelling the Cabinet that President Grant may have around him good working men, who live with the times and understand the animating forces of our political existence. We know that the President enjoys himself in looking upon his fast horses rather than in the analysis of abstruse governmental questions. This and good assistants will enable him to last out his term of office. General Grant is a man of very solid sense, and will readily see the necessity for abler Cabinet brains, not only for the reasons we have indicated, but for those which he himself gave in his inaugural address.

The Poor Overworked Women.

A Western exchange feelingly asserts that an "overworked woman is always a sad sight, sadder a great deal than an overworked man, because she is so much more fertile in capacities of suffering than a man. She has so many varieties of headache, sometimes as if Jael were driving the nail which killed Sisera into her temples, sometimes a tightening around the brow, as if her capband were Lake's iron crown; and then her neuralgias and backaches and her fits of depression and many more trials linked to her fine and noble structure entitle her to pity when she is placed in conditions which develop her nervous tendencies." How much better would it be for the strong-minded of the sex who are hissing around club houses, in public hotels and other public places about woman's right to vote and to run the masculine machine generally, to take note of the poor overworked women and endeavor to alleviate their sufferings by kind and tender ministrations of love. As to the question of woman's right to vote, it really does not make much difference whether she does or not, considering the way elections have gone in this country for the last few years.

THE Dayton (Ohio) Ledger avers that "what the democratic party wants are brains and pluck." Here's a chance for vendors of calves' brains and sheep's pluck.

THE RISE IN GOLD.—The gold gamblers are in ecstasy. After a rather long and monotonous siege the "bulls" are again successful, causing a rise yesterday of over one per cent. The heavy imports this year—the total being nearly one hundred and ten millions against exports of less than sixty millions—afford the "bulls" a great vantage ground in conducting their side of the campaign. The uneasiness produced in England by the mail reports of the Senatorial speeches on the Alabama claims question led to a decline in our bonds. Hence the "bears" are anxious, because the foreign demand for our securities, which induced a fall in gold, is likely to halt until more is seen of the future of the dispute.

THE Detroit Post states that Chicago journals naturally dislike exposures of journalistic corruption. The Chicagoans are continually mixed up with such a variety of corruptions and vices that it is not astonishing impure journalism should be included in the category.

A WESTERN paper thinks that when General Grant congratulated Sprague on his escape from the danger which had been threatening him the hero of Appomattox perpetrated a joke equal to any uttered by the lamented Lincoln.

SECRETARY BORIE has been ordering commanders of United States vessels in the Asiatic seas to prepare to receive and accommodate the scientific parties selected by Congress to take observations of the eclipse of the sun in August next from some point in Alaska or Siberia. Had he not better be looking after an eclipse nearer home?

TAKING TO WATER IN HIS OLD AGE.—The Macon (Ga.) Telegraph states that Thurlow Weed has presented the Baptist church in Aiken, S. C., with a handsome communion service. This venerable lobbyist has been for so many years immersed in politics and private jobs that it was scarcely to be supposed that he would ever endure the Baptist rite of immersion and take to water at last.

The National Debt and Taxation.

The Treasury Department and its agents and organs are making a great flourish over the reduction of the national debt of six millions the last month, and the friends of Mr. Boutwell are making the most of the fact in his favor. Doubtless this is a gratifying exhibit to the country, as far as it goes, and particularly when we look at the past extravagance and increasing indebtedness of the government. We only hope that the next month and the month after, and all along in the future, we may have similar flattering statements. But let us not deceive ourselves. Let us look squarely at our financial situation and see what prospect there is before us. One month's statement will not give reliable data as to the condition of the finances, because the revenue income or expenditures may, from special causes, be extraordinary or unusually small for that short period. We must take a longer period—the average of several months or a year—to ascertain whether the debt is diminishing or increasing. Nor has Mr. Boutwell been in the Treasury Department long enough to produce any perceptible effect upon the debt. Whatever result has been produced the last month must be attributed to causes over which he had little or no control. The country has yet to learn if he has the ability to reduce the debt by a skilful management of the finances independent of the legislation of Congress and through his own official acts. It has yet to learn if he has the statesmanship to devise and lay before Congress such a system of finance as we need.

But, to go back to the debt statement, we find that the national indebtedness has been increased during the last year—that is, from May 1, 1868, to May 1, 1869—nearly twenty-nine millions of dollars, and during the last two years over eight millions. To get an idea of the reckless extravagance and miserable financial management of the government it must be understood that the debt has been thus augmenting long after the war closed and war expenses ceased, and at a time when the revenues brought in four to five hundred millions a year—at a time, in fact, when the people have been taxed enormously and to the utmost limit of forbearance. If the debt has increased so with such a stupendous income, what are we to expect, unless there be a radical change in the management of the Treasury, when the income is much less? But the actual weight or burden of the debt has been augmented much more than the figures represent, through the transformation of that portion of the debt which bore no interest and that bearing currency interest into the debt bearing gold interest. Through Mr. McCulloch's mismanagement and wretched financial policy the annual burden has been increased probably not less than twenty millions—that is, the people have to pay twenty millions a year more taxes than they need have paid had there been a capable Secretary of the Treasury. The Secretary arranges the figures so as to make it appear that the fifty-six millions of bonds issued to the Pacific Railroad are separate from the debt; but that is not so. These form a part of the debt as much as the five-twenties, and, no doubt, if ever paid will have to be paid by the government.

Nor do the enormous revenues of the government show by a long way the amount of taxation; for the Treasury has been defrauded through the whiskey ring and other rings and dishonest officials a hundred millions a year. Of course the amount of these frauds come out of the honest taxpayers. The government must supply the vast sum thus stolen, and the people have to make it good. Then our expensive, cumbrous and complicated revenue system requires an army of office-holders to carry it on. They eat up a large amount of what is collected. Now everything is taxed—everything we eat, drink, wear, use or look upon. We are the worst taxed people in the world, and with less results to show for it. In England a large revenue is raised, but it is not as burdensome as ours, nor by any means as costly to collect. The revenue should be raised chiefly from a few articles of luxury in general use. As much could be obtained in this way as by our present abominable system of taxing everything. The cost of collection to the government would be far less, three-fourths at least of the present army of office-holders could be dispensed with, there would be little temptation, comparatively, to corruption, and the whole revenue machinery would be much easier watched and controlled by the Treasury Department. Can Mr. Boutwell comprehend these much-needed reforms? Can he devise a system of revenue more simple and effective, by which the people will be relieved of their numerous and burdensome taxes, and by which, at the same time, the debt would be steadily diminished? If he can he is just the man for Secretary of the Treasury; if not the the President should search the country through till he finds such a one. The subject of our national finances is the most important one, and of all the Cabinet officers the Secretary of the Treasury ought to be a statesman of the highest capacity.

"A LITTLE MORE CIDER."—The Boston Post asserts that there is evidence that Massachusetts children go to school drunk on cider. Is that so, or is it only "a little more cider for Miss Dinah" that prompts the accusation?

New York Postal City Delivery.

Now that our new Postmaster has got fairly into his place we would call his attention to the necessity of instituting an inquiry into the practice of our free delivery system. Notwithstanding the efforts made by the late incumbent to induce our citizens, and particularly our merchants, to adapt themselves to the new plan, there is a very general belief in the public mind that free delivery of letters means frequent delay of letters. The experience of our merchants is that under the old-fashioned box system they could get the main bulk of their correspondence by nine o'clock in the morning, but with the free delivery plan it comes straggling to them at all hours of the day, though the mails do not reach the city in any such straggling order.

We know that the argument is that the city free delivery must be made self-supporting before there will be funds to increase its efficiency. But to us it is equally evident that our citizens, and particularly our merchants, cannot be induced voluntarily to abandon the old plan if the new one does not work satisfactorily. It is our conviction that every letter which reaches the old Dutch church before seven A. M. can be sent out by nine o'clock, and that by ten A. M. every letter by the morning mails for city delivery can be despatched from the General Post Office; yet careful inquiry leads us to the belief that this is not done. We particularly believe this to be the case with some of the minor foreign mails, in which we have frequently known letters not to reach a point of delivery south of Grand street under thirty hours after the arrival of the steamer at her dock.

Such a state of things in the city delivery department does not conduce to the making of it self-supporting. That can be attained only by making the two cent city despatch portion of the system a prompt and efficient public service. That it is now very far from being done. It is a perfect mockery to say that a note can be sent to any portion of our city by the city post and a reply looked for on the same day; yet in European cities the reply within a few hours is the unfailing result. When such a state of things is attained here our city delivery will be self-sustaining, and no preaching circulars will ever make our people recur to it for their city business, as is done elsewhere, until the Rip Van Winkle in charge wakes up. What is wanted is less attention to politics and more attention to business. We call upon Postmaster Jones to make a searching inquiry into this matter and find out where the fault lies, and whose are the shortcomings, and if he cannot get Yankees to run a city delivery system as efficiently as John Bull does we recommend him to send across the water and get some of the "blarsted" Britishers to do it for us.

Our Foreign News, Our Telegrams and Our Special Correspondence.

Day after day we present in the columns of the HERALD news sent by telegraph and by mail in such amount and of such value as defies comparison with anything now or at any previous time existing in the shape of journalistic literature. Our Abyssinian enterprise, which at the time commanded the attention of the civilized world, has not yet and will not soon be forgotten. It is only a day or two since we gave the American public, by special telegram, the opinions of the London press on Senator Sumner's speech the day after they appeared in London. The American people see and acknowledge the enterprise of a journal which seeks to serve them, and to serve them with the best, and that without a miserable and restraining regard to cost and labor.

We call attention to a feature of the HERALD of yesterday. There was the usual telegraphic intelligence from Europe and from all the centres of population on this Continent. Over and above this we had special correspondence from Reno station, from Chile, from Peru, from Brazil, from St. Domingo, from Hayti, from Jamaica, and from three different centres in Australasia, Sydney, Melbourne and Wellington. We published also very interesting correspondence from China. In addition to this we published special correspondence from Paris, from Madrid, from Berlin, from Pesth, from Constantinople and from Cork. All this, too, aside from an interesting and well selected abstract of general European news.

If a newspaper means anything it means that those who read it should get news. It is our object to give our readers news, and news in a cosmopolitan city like New York means the news of the world. The reader of the HERALD of yesterday morning learned almost all that could be learned of the present condition and immediate prospects of the Pacific Railroad, one of the greatest wonders of modern times; found out almost all that was worth finding out about Australasia, where many of them have friends, and where the gold mania is likely to receive a fresh impulse from the discovery of the biggest nugget ever yet found; about Brazil, where much difficulty must be encountered and overcome before a monarchy can be firmly established on this Continent; about the West Indian Islands, which can never be at rest until they form part of the great republic; and about China, one of the greatest centres of the world's life, just opening its eyes to the new civilization, and about the internal affairs and foreign relations of almost every country in Europe.

It is not too much to say that no existing journal in any part of the world can spread before its readers so rich and so varied a repast in the shape of foreign news. It is but truth to add that such a repast is not unfrequently found by the HERALD's million readers.

Wrangling Over the Spoils.

Washington has become simply an arena of combatants for the spoils of office. From the President down to the smallest office-holder or office-seeker, along the avenues and streets, in the hotels and private residences, mixed up with all social gatherings, and especially among the Senators and members of Congress, there has been hardly anything talked about or thought of but the spoils. They are the bond of friendship and source of all enmities at that centre of corruption and political schemes. Hardly ever has there been as much wrangling, bitterness and excitement over the offices as during the few weeks of Grant's administration. The President has been savagely bearded in the White House by Senators, and outside he has been unsparingly denounced by members of both houses of Congress because he had not offices enough to satisfy the insatiable demands of these spoilsmen. Legislation is a secondary consideration with our Congressmen; the distribution of four hundred millions of dollars a year among themselves, their friends and partisans is the main object. They regard the revenue of the country and all the offices as belonging to them, and they distribute these just as the heirs of an estate divide property. Their whole tone and bearing to the President, in the halls of the Capitol and in conversation, show that they regard the offices, revenue, government, and the country, in fact, as belonging to them. In short, our government has become a spoils government and Congress a body of organized spoilsmen.

Fortunately, with the close of the session of the Senate and the dispersion of Senators and members to their homes there will be a temporary suspension of the fight over the spoils and the disgraceful scenes we have had to record. But this will only be for a time. The war will be renewed. It enters into all political movements, is kept up through each Presidential term, and culminates every four years with a new administration. This state of things was bad enough when the revenue and expenditures of the government amounted only to sixty or seventy millions a year; but now, when they amount to nearly four hundred millions, and the government and country have become fearfully demoralized by the late war, the evil threatens to utterly destroy all public virtue and even our republican institutions. We are rapidly following in the steps of the nations that once flourished and then fell through like causes. The more populous and wealthy the republic becomes the greater danger there is of the evil growing. Even in the infancy of this mighty republic, and before it has reached anything like the measure of its greatness, the seeds of decline and fall are sown, and unless we can uproot these by timely reforms our great country has seen its happiest days. Our future rests with the people. If they see the evil—if there be public virtue and wisdom enough left, and they will unite and organize to reform the government and its practices, all may be well and we may be saved from the danger that threatens us.

The Union Railway Ring—Whiskey Rings and Whiskey Bills.

There are some fifty whiskey ring bills ready to be presented to Congress for action at its December session. The interested parties are all hard at work laying their Congressional wires and drawing up their plans for the campaign. The exit of the old administration destroyed much of their machinery and threatened, for the moment, to completely wreck their organizations. The evil hands into which the late Executive fell were the agents of the various rings, especially of the whiskey and national bank rings. The latter are now completely at sea and are looking about for new means to fasten upon the new power the same corrupt surroundings that did so much damage to the old. Whether they will succeed or not depends very much upon the watchfulness of President Grant and his ability to guard his position from approach. The influence, however, is powerful, and insensibly the Executive may fall into the snare.

In Congress we see the Union Pacific Railroad ring triumphant, and its directors and hangers-on flaunt their corruption and their ill-acquired means in the face of all decency and legislative morality. We remember, only a few years since, a Rhode Island Senator acknowledged frankly that he had taken a fee for certain Congressional work, under plea that it was the habit in Congress. The Senate did not like to be told of their dishonorable habits, and caused the resignation of the offending Senator. To-day, however, we are more civilized. We have Oakes Ames, Henry Wilson, G. M. Dodge, H. Price and J. Wilson—"all honorable men"—rapidly driving the national locomotive across the Continent. Two of these gentlemen have the inestimable boon of voting upon their own jobs, with the privilege of the floors of both houses, upon which to carry on their lobbying. Here they plot for the plunder of the national Treasury and carry out their schemes with only such success as is guaranteed by a large division of the spoils freely made. The fact that Congress winks at all this is the best comment as to the morality of that august but revolutionary assembly. This alone is a proof of how completely the Senate is in the hands of the plunderers. Where the remedy to correct all this is to come from it is difficult to tell; one thing is certain—it will come from the people, and, if it cannot be corrected in accordance with written law, the bayonet will clear the wreck and prepare for a change of government.

Agricultural Colleges for Patagonia.

In the United States agriculture is an institution. Here the farmer cultivates his lands scientifically, combining the sciences of botany, chemistry and geology to increase their productiveness. We are becoming more and more an agricultural people, while the number of learned men is increasing and numbers of our sons crowd colleges where the science of farming is well and thoroughly taught. But one of the most beautiful humbugs of modern times is for speculative men to come to us and ask us to help build up agricultural colleges on the pampas or in Patagonia. It is to some a commendation if the application for aid is made by a returned missionary. An agricultural college on the pampas, forsooth! where the favorite harrow is a young tree top and the plough is of the kind Virgil describes as used on the Mediterranean two thousand years ago, and where the favorite machinery for pumping is a rope tied to a horse's tail, with one man riding the horse while another empties the bucket. Where not one of the men in fifty can read, by what process will a college give them agricultural knowledge? The Argentine President said that in his youth he opened the pores of his mind to receive knowledge. Is it not better to invent a process for opening the pores of the public mind? Let the men, old as they are, who harrow with a bush heap and pump with a horse's tail, first go to a common school and learn to read. If it is too late in the day for them, let them send their children. Let them cultivate habits of industry until the home of the gaucho shall cease to be a treeless rancho, and then, after two or three generations, there may be a demand for an agricultural college. At present the only purpose it would serve would be to make a nice berth, as principal of it, for some enterprising young man who may be out of other innocent employment.

THE METROPOLITAN POLICE.

The new Police Commissioner, Henry Smith, did not put in appearance yesterday at Police Headquarters, owing, it is said, to certain private business he had to attend to before assuming the shield or an excoriator of miserable patrolmen. Mr. Smith's credentials, however, are now on file in the chief clerk's office, and he is expected to be present to-day at the session of the Police Board, when the reconstruction of the commission will be perfected for the ensuing year. In outside political circles the results that may probably follow the reorganization of the Board have been thoroughly canvassed, and the general opinion seems to be that Mr. Brennan will be made president and Mr. Smith treasurer. Should this prove true Mr. Manierre, in matters in which he has been, up to the present time, ever since Mr. Acton was compelled to first absent himself from the sessions of the Board, been able to hold his own with comparative success, will be, as the darkies say, "no whar." As a body, the Board will be such as to insure thorough discipline in the department, and to instill into certain precincts, now sadly lacking in everything that gives strength and harmony in police councils, a vigor and a vitality that will not be without their good results.

Congress at Sibanicu—Cespedes Presiding—Patriots Fighting for Annexation to the United States—Quesada Named Generalissimo—The Members Sanguine of Success.

HAVANA, April 30, via KEY WEST May 3, 1869.

We have received advices from Nuevitas of the 26th, which state that the grand Congress of Cuban patriots was in session at Sibanicu, a village in the central district of the island, about eight leagues from Puerto Principe. There were thirty members present, representing all parts of the island. General Cespedes presided in the deliberations.

Resolutions were passed unanimously declaring that the patriots are fighting for freedom and annexation to the United States.

General Quesada was chosen Generalissimo of the forces.

The feeling of the members was sanguine of success, and the most determined spirit was manifested.

There have been a number of arrests recently in the Puerto Principe district, among whom are Betancourt, Mora, Recio, Sanchez Arteaga, Borreo and Emilio Marquez, comprising part of the Revolutionary Committee.

The Irish Church Bill Amendments.

LONDON, May 3—Midnight.

The House of Commons, in committee to-night, resumed the consideration of the Irish Church bill.

Clause thirty-six, concerning the Regium Donum, was so amended as to include within the provision for compensation the ministers of all congregations entitled eventually to a share of the grant.

Mr. Gladstone admitted that the compensation was small, but the endowments were small compared with the services rendered by the Presbyterians in Ireland, and according to the principle of the bill the present endowment was the only basis for compensation.

Clause 37, providing for compensation to the professors and for payments in respect to the buildings of Belfast College, was stricken out in compliance with the request of the Presbyterian Synod, and with the consent of the government. Mr. Gladstone intimated that other provisions would be made for this college.

A Tory Protest Against Disestablishment.

LONDON, May 3, 1869.

A public meeting was held at St. James' Hall to-night, under tory management, to protest against the bill for the disestablishment of the Irish Church. The audience was large and many conservative Peers and members of the House of Commons were present. Resolves were adopted strongly condemning Mr. Gladstone's bill and calling on the House of Lords to reject or materially alter it.

Failure of Peace Negotiations with the Platte River Indians—Sioux Determined Upon War—Friendly Tribes Remain Quiet.

CHICAGO, May 3, 1869.

The following was received at Lieutenant General Sheridan's headquarters to-day:—

Writing under date of March 23 from Fort Sully, General D. S. Stanley says:—"Everything that has been done to make peace with the Sioux as a nation is an entire failure. The Indians are just as far from peace as they were two years ago. They have boasted, while near this place, of having killed white men this winter over on the Platte, and of stealing horses. I believe there are war parties out now to depredate on the line of the Pacific Railroad. Their hostility may run on in the same way without showing itself only by an occasional murder, though I fear it may develop a worse form in the way of heavy attacks on the frontier. Unfortunately for the ideas of our peace advocates, these Indians say they do not want peace; that the whites are afraid of them, which is the reason we send so much for them to eat; that they will make us leave this country, and will stop the boats on the Missouri river."

The position of the Sioux who were friendly two years ago is unchanged, and they are friendly to-day. They have gained more in numbers, and all reports that they scour the country, as has been stated at Washington, are false.

Chief Justice Chase—Opening of the United States Circuit Court—The Iron-clad Oath Dispensed With.

RICHMOND, May 3, 1869.

Chief Justice Chase arrived this afternoon and opened the United States Circuit Court, assisted by Judge Underwood. The Chief Justice briefly charged the Grand Jury. The jury was composed entirely of whites, and the iron-clad oath being dispensed with many old citizens appeared in the jury box for the first time since the close of the war. The case of C. Griffin, involving the legality of Judge Underwood's decision setting aside the action of the State courts whose officers are ineligible under the fourteenth amendment, was called and will be argued to-morrow.

An Insurance Case—Burning of Barnum's Museum, New York—Verdict Against Baltimore Companies.

BALTIMORE, May 3, 1869.

In the Superior Court of Baltimore city this morning in several suits brought by James Kelley, of New York, against six insurance companies of this city to recover the policies of insurance on the building known as Barnum's Museum, in New York city, Judge Dobbin instructed the jury that there was no such sale of conveyance of the property by Beekman and Reeder before the fire as would forfeit their right under the policies of insurance. Judgment was then entered against the six Baltimore companies for the plaintiff for the amount claimed. The amount insured in this city is about $15,000.

Negro Riot in Brownsville—Two Negroes and One White Man Killed.

MEMPHIS, May 3, 1869.

The Appeal learns that a riot occurred in Brownsville last night. One white man and two negroes were killed and a white man named Tom Grant was mortally wounded. The affair grew out of a negro threatening to kill a white man named Sherman. At eleven o'clock last night the fight was still going on.

The Convention of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

ST. LOUIS, May 3, 1869.

The convention of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church South will be held here this week. About 100 ministers will probably be present. The proceedings of the convention will be private, but various exercises, addresses, the Sunday school convention and celebration of the anniversary of the Board of Missions will take place during the week.

Shipment of Wheat at St. Louis for New York—Trade With Brazil.

ST. LOUIS, May 3, 1869.

A cargo of wheat was made up to-day for the Grain Association for New York, and consists of 31,000 bushels of No. 1 spring and 11,000 bushels of No. 2. The former was purchased at $1 25 per bushel and the latter at $1 20, including freight to New Orleans. The charges at the latter city, insurance, freight to and charges at New York will increase the cost of the former to $1 40½, and the latter to $1 35½; and as the St. Louis No. 1 and No. 2 wheat rate is from three cents to five cents higher than Chicago grades the margin will be quite handsome.

At the regular Board of Trade meeting to-night a paper, by L. R. Shoyock, the President, was read, urging efforts to be made to regain Brazilian and other South American trade, especially the export of flour and import of coffee. It was stated that before the war four-fifths of the coffee consumed in this country was imported through New Orleans, while now not one-tenth is received that way. In 1860 over 500,000 barrels of flour were sent from New Orleans to Brazil, while in 1868 only 160,000 barrels were sent. It was claimed that all this trade can be regained by proper exertions, and that it properly belongs to the Mississippi valley.

THE NEW YORK HERALD IN OREGON.

[From the Portland (Oregon) Herald, April 15.]

The NEW YORK HERALD has introduced a new feature. Each Monday morning it gives a synopsis of the prominent pulpit discourses of the previous day in New York, Brooklyn and elsewhere. It styles it "a new missionary movement," and says it will not rest contented "until we see more life in the churches, more activity, more power in the pulpit." This is only a retaliatory means, we suppose. The religious journals have intermeddled so much with politics lately that the HERALD is determined to get even by furnishing a religious journal. And we must say that, compared with the Independent and some other so-called religious journals, it ranks high.

THE NEW YORK HERALD IN MISSOURI.

[From the Palmyra (Mo.) Spectator, April 30.]

THE GREAT PAPER.

The NEW YORK HERALD is certainly now the greatest paper in the world. It prints every day triple and quadruple sheets containing as much matter as the famous London Times and a great deal more news. The HERALD has correspondents in every part of the world, and does not wait for their news by letter, but freely uses the telegraph. It is generally a day ahead of all competitors, who make up their reports out of that paper; and its reporters are famous for their enterprise and ingenuity in gathering up occurrences. A line of steam yachts is owned and employed by that establishment to intercept foreign steamers in order to get the latest dates, and every appliance known is put under contribution to make it the paper of the United States. In politics the HERALD is independent and strikes sturdy blows at each political organization in turn. The only party it heartily supports is the HERALD party. A branch office has recently been started in Brooklyn to accommodate the growing business of the establishment in that quarter.

THE NEW YORK HERALD IN MASSACHUSETTS.

[From the Boston Evening Express, May 27.]

It is perfectly astounding to see how the NEW YORK HERALD can gather in one twenty-four hours ninety-six columns of reading matter and new advertisements; but it does so, and rides over every other paper in the world both in telegraphic, local, financial and general news.

AMUSEMENTS.

A FASHIONABLE MATINEE CONCERT.—An amateur musical entertainment, with readings, will take place at the residence of Dr. Ward, No. 1 West Forty-seventh street, this (Tuesday) afternoon at three o'clock, under the auspices of a number of leading ladies and gentlemen, for the benefit of the fund for the erection in the Park of a statue to the poet Halleck. Several ladies well known in fashionable circles will sing at the matinée, which promises to be one of the musical events of the season. Tickets may be obtained of Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mrs. John A. Dix, Mrs. John D. Sherwood, Mrs. C. A. Bristed, Mrs. Paran Stevens, Mrs. Judge Roosevelt, Mrs. Vincenzo Botta. Professor S. F. B. Morse, president; General James G. Wilson, secretary; Benjamin H. Field, treasurer of the fund, and at Dr. Ward's residence.

WALLACK'S THEATRE—CASTE.—"School" was dismissed at this house on Saturday night last after a splendid run, and last night "Caste," another of the popular productions of the same author, was produced. An adaptation of this play in the face of an injunction was brought out by the Florences at the Broadway in 1867, at the dead low water of the summer season, the first week of August, and for three weeks, as a wonderful success, it was the town talk, even in the country. If we are not mistaken, according to the testimony of Florence in court, the piece as produced by him was wrought out entirely from his memory after witnessing a single performance in London of the "real genuine original Jacobs." This remarkable fact alone, never heard of before in reference to any other play, is sufficient to indicate the powerful and lasting impression which "Caste" makes upon the mind of the spectator. But how? It has no lavish display of blinding scenery nor pretty legs nor startling effects of love, mystery and murder; it has no intricate plot, and yet it is intensely interesting from first to last. As Victor Hugo makes of his sea devil, without fangs, claws, horns or thorns, the most terrible of the monsters of the deep, so the author of this play, without stage trickery, blue lights or a bewildering array of arms and legs, and without a single murder, has produced one of the most popular of modern dramas. A cottage and a drawing room interior serve for all the action of the story. The plot, briefly told, is the perplexities of two poor ballet dancers, one of whom marries an aristocrat and the other a gasfitter. Around these four four other distinct individualities of "the age we live in" assist in the working up of the case.

The Hon. George D'Alroy, the aristocrat, of Mr. Fisher was an agreeable gentleman, though, perhaps, lacking the dash and spirit which Lester Wallack would infuse even into this comparatively tame character. The infatuated lover, when a full grown man, requires very skilful treatment to escape being absurd; but Mr. Fisher cleverly and gracefully escapes. The "old dead beat" or "bummer," Eccles, the father of the two pretty dancers, as done by Stoddart, stands out in the bold relief of Solon Shingle. It is a great work of art. So is the Cockney Captain Hawtree of Marlowe. He is a fine actor. Sam Gerridge, the gas fitter, as one of the hard-fisted democracy of England, was given with the usual care and skill of Mr. Young. Mr. Ward, as Dixon, had but little to do, but did that little like a gentleman's gentleman. The Esther Eccles of Rose Eytinge, who marries the aristocrat, was splendid; the Marquise de St. Maur, the aristocrat's aristocratic mother, was done as if by a born duchess; and Miss Effie Germon as Polly Eccles, the independent, outspoken, funny Polly, the crown diamond of the gasfitter, proved herself fully competent to take the place of Mary Gannon, and to shine in it with superior brightness from her advantages of the sparkling freshness of youth and beauty. There was a full house and it was delighted with the play, the only complaint being that it is confined to three acts—too short for such a pretty story. No doubt it will draw, if continued, for many weeks to come.

BOWERY THEATRE.—In strict consonance with the rule by which the able manager of this Thespian temple appears to be wisely guided, another novelty was presented last night, even while the "Seven Dwarfs" was still high in favor with the steady and appreciative patrons of the east side. There is a freshness and a vigor infused into everything produced at the Bowery theatre that readily enlist the sympathy of a large class of earnest playgoers. "The Spirit of the Mountain" was the title of the spectacle given last evening, and whether in point of incident, situation or scenery, nothing appeared to be left undone, as the hearty rounds of applause with which the entire representation was received testified. The plot, while not strictly of an original character, contained nevertheless a good moral, virtue having triumphed over all obstacles, however insurmountable. Sadak, a Turkish general, was well represented by Mr. W. Marden; Dum Dum, by Mr. McCloskey; the Sultan, Amurath, by Mr. Seabert; Mustapha, a bashaw with three tails; while Kalesrave, the fair lady of the valley, was admirably portrayed. Several excellent tableaux were exhibited, and altogether the piece was mounted in a manner to give evident pleasure to the crowded occupants of the theatre. "The Spirit of the Fountain" displayed many striking features, and will doubtless attract numerous admirers. The programme was brought to a close by the performance of the local drama, "The Soap Fat Man," which, from its humorous allusions, must have melted the most obdurate heart in the large assemblage.

PARK THEATRE, BROOKLYN.—Last evening a fair audience, in point of numbers, greeted the inauguration of the late Artemus Ward and T. W. Robinson's military comedy of "Ours," which was produced for the first time in Brooklyn at the Park theatre. The habitués of this neat little place of amusement have no cause to complain of lack of novelty nor of want of energy on the part of its management in catering to their tastes. An excellent stock company, good scenery, a fair orchestra and the careful efforts of the fair lessee to retain the place which she has won in the estimation of the people of that city, all combine to explain the secret of the success which has of late years attended the Park theatre. In "Ours," the principal rôle, that of Mary Netley, the volatile and mischievous miss, whose ready repartee is so aptly brought to bear in the dialogue, was sustained by Mrs. F. B. Conway. Miss Ella Wren was happy in her personation of the jealous Lady Shendryn. E. Lamb as Sergeant Jones was inimitable, and his droll assumption of military dignity of bearing while discussing the subject of the twins was highly appreciated.

The scenic effect was very fine, and was arranged under the supervision of Mr. Wallack and assistants. The inspiring strains of martial music upon the departure of the troops for the Crimea was thoroughly appreciated and duly encored. Miss Noble as Blanch, Mr. Harris as Hugh Chalcotte, and the balance of the company each bore their respective parts in an acceptable manner, and the first representation of "Ours" in that city may be said to have been favorable to the reputation of that gallant corps.

Musical and Theatrical Notes.

The grand posthumous Mass of Rossini will be sung on Sunday evening next at the spacious and magnificent church of St. Stephen, in East Twenty-eighth street, with Miss Kellogg and the other members of Mr. Strakosch's operatic troupe taking part in its performance. This church, above all others in the city, is best suited for the proper production of works of this kind, and it will there be heard to a much better advantage than in either opera house or concert hall.

"Robinson Crusoe" will not be produced at the Museum until Thursday evening, when it will be given with the full strength of the Simpson, Wood and Colville burlesque and pantomimic combination troupe.

Bryants' Minstrel Hall will reopen on Monday next, with new features and at reduced prices. The burnt corkonians open this evening at the National theatre, Washington, where they remain during the week.

This is the last week of the original "Japs" at the New York Circus. Mr. Risely, before returning these bronzed waifs from the Island Empire to the great "Tycoon," contemplates taking them again to Europe; this time, however, to visit the cities of Austria and Holland.

Brignoli, the silver-voiced tenor, is gayly chirping his way through the "Sunny South," reaping a large harvest of greenbacks and delighting the people wherever he goes. He is at present warbling in the Crescent City, where his operatic concerts are largely attended, whence he intends travelling up the Mississippi, stopping at all the principal cities on his journey northward. Signor Brignoli is managing his own business on his present professional tour, and this in a measure accounts for his unprecedented success. If other artists would do the same thing and not permit themselves to be dragged down to utter ruin and misery by the weight of Bohemian managers, they would soon find it to their advantage, both pecuniarily and otherwise. As a general thing, Bohemian managers always contrive in some way or another to manage better for themselves than for the poor artist, "star" or prima donna.

Lotta opened last night at the Arch, Philadelphia, in a new piece, entitled "Pepina," in which she sustains two ridiculous characters, plays the snare drum, thumps upon the old banjo, sings "Captain Jinks" and other like songs and indulges in a "walk round" and clog dance. That is just about enough of nonsense for one piece; any more would be pretty apt to spoil it.

The Elise Holt burlesque troupe closes its engagement at the Waverley on Saturday evening, and on the following Monday the blondes will endeavor to captivate the staid Philadelphians, by the aid of the glories of fringe, tights and tassels, in the burlesque of "Lucretia Borgia."

The New York Circus is meeting with much success in Washington, where it remains for one more week. Next Monday it pitches its tent in the Quaker City, in which town it is to remain for two weeks to delight the appreciative inhabitants.

Mrs. Bowers closed her engagement of three weeks at the Boston theatre last Saturday night. Joe Jefferson succeeds her at the same house with "Rip Van Winkle."

Miss Lucille Western will tarry for another week among the moral and affectionate Chicagonians to delight them with the "Child Stealer" and the "Green Bushes."

Fanny Morgan Phelps is drawing good houses in Salt Lake City by her impersonation of the "Wild Irish Girl" and the "Actress by Daylight."

"Ixion" was introduced to the astonished Kanucks of Montreal last night with Miss Ada Harland in the title rôle. Miss Harland is supported by a good company, and will unquestionably soon become as great a favorite in the Canadas as she already is in New York.

Parepa-Rosa sang for the Jersey Teutonites last night, and on next Friday evening she will favor the Hartfordites of Connecticut in a similar manner.

Miss Jennie Kimball is tickling the "reconstructed" of Atlanta with English opera bouffe.

St. Louis was last week captured by gymnasts. The Hanlons and Pfau did their breakneck acts at one theatre, the Gregories made the "leap for life" at another, and Senorita Sagerino balanced herself upon one leg on the flying trapeze at another. Quite enough in the way of aerial gymnastics for one young city, surely.

Mrs. Scott-Siddons commenced a short engagement in Detroit last night. The "Naiad Queen," with a young army of short-skirted nymphs, is holding court in the same city. Detroit has shaken off its lethargy and is getting somewhat excited.

To-morrow evening the Theatre Comique, Boston, reopens for the summer season with "Humpty Dumpty," on a scale of grandeur equal to that which characterized the piece in this city. If this be the case it will fill the Comique from now until the heated term.

Mme. Ristori is to appear shortly in Amsterdam, and it is understood she will also play in the principal places of Holland.

Madame Varian Hoffman, the favorite prima donna, will have a complimentary concert at Apollo Hall on Wednesday evening. It will be given under the auspices of some of the leading people of the metropolis.

Charles MacEvoy with his Hibernicon is down East. Shows in Portland shortly.

Mlle. Nilsson tells her friends that there is no foundation for the stories of her being about to be married to the Duke de Massa, the Marquis de Scepeaux, a Russian prince, or anybody else. She has before her a long list of professional engagements in England, America and elsewhere, and contemplates the fulfilment of all of them.

Zoe, the Cuban Sylph, French Spy, &c., plays in Ithaca this week.

Harry Watkins and wife, comedians, are playing an engagement at Rochester this week.

The Worrell Sisters are illustrating the follies of chivalry in the "Field of the Cloth of Gold" in New Orleans.

Mr. Pfau, the Muscovite navigator of the air, is endeavoring to break his neck at De Bar's, St. Louis.

AUSTRALASIA.

Finances of the Colony—Whaling—The Chinese in Victoria—Arrival of Sir J. Ferguson, the New Governor of South Australia.

MELBOURNE, March 1, 1869.

Parliament was opened on the 11th inst. with the usual formalities. The financial statement of the Treasurer is more favorable than was anticipated, but perhaps the accounts have been cooked in order to float the Victorian securities which have just been placed on the English money market. The revenue is estimated at £3,294,161, and the expenditure at £3,293,042.

It has been discovered that Chinamen are accustomed to decoy girls to their dwellings in the "Mongolian quarter," and then keep them as prisoners. One very atrocious case of this kind has lately come to light. The morality of John Chinaman and his general desirability as a citizen is very much doubted in Victoria. He is too well known here to be very greatly respected.

A new joss house has just been opened with great rejoicings at Ballarat East. The ceremonies were of a very interesting character. At an early hour of the morning a large number of pigs and goats were brought up on trays in a cooked state, and having remained for some hours as a sort of sacrificial offering, were gobbled up by the assembled Chinamen, accompanied with fowls and other delicate fare. The animals were dressed in a very fantastic manner, with wires run through them, and with fowls on their backs. The priests were dressed in very expensive costumes, some of them costing as much as $200. The proceedings were very much interfered with, however, by the European miners, who did not hesitate to express their contempt for the ceremony to John Chinaman's face.

A gold field has been discovered at last in Tasmania.

For once South Australia has had her blood stirred by a genuine sensation—nothing less than the arrival of the Duke of Edinburg and a new Governor on the same day. The Prince, however, only stopped a few days, and was very quiet even during that short time. Sir James Ferguson, the new Governor, seems to have created a very favorable impression.

There is no other news of any interest.

The Feejee Trading Company—Progress of the Rebellion Against the French Government in New Caledonia—Interesting Details from Tahiti—The Court of Queen Pomare IV.

SYDNEY, Feb. 28, 1869.

The new Feejee trading and banking company have commenced operations in a very vigorous manner. A line of packet ships has been started to run regularly between Melbourne and Feejee, and a township has been laid out round the harbor of Suva, in the island of Viti Levu, which will probably ultimately become the commercial capital of Feejee. This is the harbor which was so strongly recommended to the notice of the British government some years ago by Colonel Smythe, the special commissioner sent out by the Foreign Office to report upon the offer of sovereignty made by King Thakombau to Victoria.

NEW CALEDONIA.

The French in New Caledonia are actively occupied in stamping out the native rebellion, the causes of which I narrated in a letter of some three or four months ago. The operations have been of a very indecisive character, and the government have their hands full in attempting to protect the outlying settlements. The rebels swoop down every now and then upon some detached party of whites or friendly natives, and are on the wing again long before the military can arrive at the scene of action. Gondo, the most celebrated and dangerous fighting chief among the rebels, has, however, been shot and his head brought into the Wygatta settlement.

A detachment of sixteen soldiers have recently had a narrow escape. They had camped on a hill and were surrounded by the hostile tribes and cut off from all communication with the main body of the forces. They were kept in this perilous situation for forty-eight hours, when the natives set fire to the scrub on all sides of the hill. The detachment then made a desperate effort to escape, and by dint of sheer hard fighting cut their way through the rebels with the loss of only two men.

TAHITI.

A private letter from Tahiti gives the following interesting details of the court of Queen Pomare IV.:—From August to October the climate is most delightful, and Queen Pomare IV., who resides with her mother and her son, Tomatoa V., at Riatea, selects this season to come to Papietee, where she is joined by the kings and queens of the neighboring islands, and is thus surrounded by a court of princes. Once a week the imperial commissioner, the Comte de la Ronciere, receives the principal officers and residents of the island; but the special charm of these parties is the presence of Queen Pomare and her court. The Queen and her suite are dressed with great taste in native costume. Their long flowing robes give grace and ease to all their movements; their wreaths of white flowers spread through the rooms the delicious fragrance of the tiare and contrast well with the jet of their abundant black hair. In their own dresses the Tahiti women are charming; but disguised in European costume they lose all their grace. Princes and princesses all love cards passionately. Pomare plays ecarté with a prudence and a skill worthy of an old player, and does not at all object to win the money of the meanest of her subjects. The ladies talk and smoke their cigarettes, but keep their attention riveted on the cards, and their pleasure is expressed at times by loud and joyful exclamations. After a time somebody sits down to the piano and then dancing commences, and lasts during the best part of the night. These entertainments used to take place on Sunday evenings, but Comte de la Roncière having learned that several English residents could not attend on that day, altered it to a Thursday, and now the large assemblage which breaks up at a late hour testifies to the enjoyment of all. One great wonder of Tahiti is the cotton and sugar plantation of Abimanono, the largest, probably, in the world. The estate covers a space of about 7,500 acres, and is worked by 1,500 men, 900 of whom are Chinese. There are workshops of every kind attached to the establishment, roads and bridges have been made without help from outside, and lately a small steamer has been constructed, hull and engines, on the estate. The boilers alone were imported from France. The Chinese have formed a perfect town on the spot, with joss house, theatre, gambling saloon, opium house, &c. The cotton produced is of a very superior quality.

Alleged Forcible Deportation of Seamen by the American Consul—The Approaching Visit of the Prince—Fenianism in the Colony—American Whalers Spoken—More About the Polynesian Slave Trade—A Captain and Two Subordinates on Their Trial for the Murder of Three Natives of the New Hebridean Group—Yachting and Theatricals—Outrages by the Blacks in Queensland.

SYDNEY, Feb. 27, 1869.

Some little excitement took place a few days ago among the American residents of Sydney, in reference to a charge brought against the United States Consul in the Assembly. An honorable member put the following questions to the Colonial Treasurer:—

First—If the government have been made acquainted with the following facts:—That Johnson and Hardy, two seamen of the American bark Penang, were ill-treated by the captain and his mates, while on the passage from San Francisco to this port. They allege that they were beaten on the head with belaying pins and tied up by the thumbs to the rigging. They commenced actions in the Supreme Court against Captain White and his two mates; but, between last Thursday and last Friday mornings, the plaintiffs were, with the connivance of the Acting Consul of the United States of this port, placed in irons on board the Penang, and forcibly conveyed on board the schooner Lovett Peacock, then lying in the stream, bound for California, and against their will conveyed out of the colony. Second—What steps will be taken by the government to bring the offenders to justice?

The whole matter, however, has turned out to be of very little importance. The men mutinied while on the high seas and were placed in irons. On the ship's arrival at Sydney the captain reported the case to the Consul, and that gentleman at once shipped them to San Francisco (at which port they had joined the ship) for trial.

Prince Alfred has again arrived in the colonies and will be once more in Sydney in a few days' time. He is expected to reach here on the 12th inst., the anniversary of his attempted assassination. His stay in New South Wales, however, is not anticipated to be a long one. This time he is to be received simply as the captain of the Galatea, and a special request has been sent out that the colonial government will not incur any expense on his account. One would have thought such a request would have been most cheerfully acceded to, but the present administration yesterday asked the House for a special vote of $10,000. Strange to say, the same body which last year voted away $165,000 of public money to entertain their new found sensation squabbled for nine hours upon this poor, paltry $10,000, and at last the amount was reduced to half that sum. The Prince has now been afforded a fair opportunity of knowing his exact pecuniary value, and one insuperable obstacle in the way of his ever acceding to the wishes of a certain wealthy minority here (or rather the reported wishes) and being established as Viceroy of the Australian Confederation thus crops up to the surface. The people already grumble at the salary of the Governor—£7,000 a year—and they would never consent to go beyond that—no, not even for royalty itself.

By the way, it is as well to mention that the Prince is by no means spoken of in the same terms as he was during his first visit. The air of mysterious grandeur that once surrounded him in the colonial mind has worn off, and people now discuss his weaknesses and vices in very much the same way that they do those of far less distinguished people. They had always been told that the Prince, like the Prince's elder brother and his great uncle, was a man of doubtful morals. There is little fear now that this grand Continent will ever fall under the dominion of a hereditary potentate. The people here have very great respect for the domestic virtues, and the visit of the Prince has taught them that a man exposed to the temptations which royal blood forces upon him can only in exceptional cases exhibit the self-control of a man of honor.

To encourage the Prince the Assembly has just decided that his attempted assassination was the result of a plot and that certain portions of the country are disaffected to the British government. The evidence thus far published scarcely sustains the first proposition, but the second seems clearly made out.

Two of the gentlemen who were very prominent in receiving the Prince on his first visit, the Premier, Mr. James Martin, and the President of the Council, Mr. T. A. Murray, have just received intimation that upon payment of the usual fees, namely £115, patents of knighthood will be sent out to them.

A severe storm swept along the coast during the month, and caused some half a dozen shipwrecks of small coasters. An American ship, the Martha Rideout, had just sailed for San Francisco, and sprung a leak during the tempest, and after narrowly escaping foundering got back into port. The storm has, however, had the good effect of terminating the drought which had so long afflicted the colonies. But for this timely spell of wet weather the squatters in many districts would have lost all their sheep. As it is they have suffered very heavily.

Whaling during the past season has been extremely profitable. The American bark Stephania, which was sold here a few months ago for £500, and was refitted by an American Sydney firm, has just returned with 1,000 barrels, paying for herself several times over. The following American whalers have been reported as lying at Norfolk Island:—The Milton, Captain Grant, three years out, with 2,700 barrels sperm; James Arnold, Captain Sullivan, twenty-eight months out, with 2,600 barrels sperm; Bartholomew Gosnold, Captain Nichols, twenty-eight months out, with 1,700 barrels sperm; Abraham Barker, Captain Potter, twenty-eight months out, with 2,100 barrels sperm; Emma C. Jones, Captain Gifford, twenty-nine months out, with 1,750 barrels sperm; Hunter, Captain Chase, thirteen months out, with 850 barrels sperm; Northern Light, Captain Baker, thirteen months out, with 800 barrels sperm; Callao, Captain Brown, three years out, with 1,050 barrels sperm.

The following have also been spoken:—Ionia, of New Bedford, eighteen months out, 60 barrels sperm, 200 do. black, 3,000 pounds of bone; Charles, of New Bedford, fourteen months out, 300 barrels sperm, 200 do. black, 3,000 pounds bone.

The American bark Lady Franklin has been sold for $4,000.

The Polynesian slave trade question is now being agitated in earnest. Its settlement properly belongs to Queensland, for whose benefit the kidnapping has been perpetrated; but a large number of Sydney vessels engaged in the Polynesian trade complain that commerce with the natives is difficult at the present time, and on many islands even already impossible, owing to the hatred engendered among the unfortunate Polynesians, whose relatives have been spirited or forced away in Australian slave ships. New South Wales has on this fairly taken alarm, and for her own sake is about to do what Queensland if she had any sense of public justice and honor would do for herself. The question has already come forward in the Assembly, and the discussion that took place shows that the people here are unanimous in their determination to have this infamous traffic abolished. It was stated semi-officially that there are now no less than 5,000 colored bondmen toiling on the plantations of Queensland, and in four months their number had increased by 1,000. This is certainly a very fair beginning; at such a rate as that the colored population would soon outnumber the white. The matter will be the subject of a long debate very shortly, and some additional specific cases of outrage will doubtless be brought forward. The result will certainly be that the Queen will be petitioned to capture any vessels engaged in the islander-traffic as slave traders. Under the provisions of the slave treaty existing between the principal Powers either of the nations who have pledged themselves to the suppression of the slave trade could at once put a stop to the traffic. It has already been decided on the authority of Robert Lowe and other able lawyers that the ships carrying these islanders clearly come under the category of "slavers."

Meanwhile one "enterprising" English captain, named Hovell, together with two of his myrmidons, are being tried for the wilful murder of three natives of the New Hebridean group. The natives had been kidnapped by force, and after they had been stowed away in the hold became obstreperous. The captain and his two worthy subordinates thereupon fired into the mob and killed three of them. This affair occurred as far back as October last and has only just come to light, the matter having been told incidentally by some Tanna natives to a Feejee missionary. The necessary evidence has, however, been collected, and the captain at any rate stands a fair chance of swinging for his crime. The supercargo, a man named Levinger, became frightened when he heard that the captain had been arrested, and offered $2,500 for a passage to Callao. He was captured, however, in time, and the three criminals are fully committed for trial.

The reported massacre at Tanna of eleven white settlers has not yet been confirmed, but it is known now that they had been engaged in disputes with the natives. The story, therefore, is more probable than it seemed before.

The Xarifa has again triumphed in a private race with the Mistral. The superiority of the new colonial model over the English lines is therefore pretty well established. In four races the Mistral has won but once, and then only in a "soldiers' wind." "On a wind" the Xarifa is undoubtedly far superior to her loudly vaunted antagonist. It is possible that some fine day the Xarifa or a vessel built on her lines may contest the palm with England and America.

Theatrically, we are very dull. Miss Joey Gougenheim, who years and years ago played in New York, and who still looks young and blooming, has been playing burlesque and comedy at the Prince of Wales, and Mr. Bartlett has just commenced a star engagement. An American minstrel troupe, consisting of Messrs. Hassey, Kelly & Co., have arrived from California and have made one or two appearances, but so far have met with but indifferent success. A good minstrel troupe, with sufficient musical talent, would, however, do extremely well.

The blacks are still on the rampage in Queensland. Near Rockhampton a shepherd named Alfred Wilson, at Taurus Downs, has been missing for some time; he was seen last at the Bonnie Don station with 1,000 sheep, but neither sheep nor shepherd can now be found. He has doubtless been killed by the blacks. The police are out trying to trace up the case, but so far without any results.

Another outrage of a very similar character has occurred at Lake Elphinstone. The blacks attacked and murdered a shepherd who was tending his sheep on the borders of the lake, and afterwards drove the flock into the bush. The police in this case are on the track of the guilty tribe, and it is fully anticipated will capture them.

ALLIGATOR RACES IN FLORIDA.

Exciting Sport.

[From the Jacksonville (Fla.) Union, April 29.]

The guests at the St. James Hotel, needing some excitement in order to counteract the effects of the hot weather, instituted, a few days ago, a new species of race, one not heretofore chronicled in the ordinary sporting papers. This was nothing less than an alligator race, a match between a number of juvenile alligators, intended to be reared by their confiding proprietors as household pets, provided the aforesaid proprietors should not be eaten up in the meantime.

ALLIGATORS ENTERED.

Nimble Jack, by J. W. Cornell, of New York.
Boston Boy, by A. H. Rhodes, of Boston.
Spotted Tail, by A. B. Hershell, of Jacksonville.
Champion Maid, by M. A. Parker.
Gazelle, by N. Hymes, of New York.
Purse $50—best two in three.

First Heat.—The alligators, after some belligerent demonstrations, got well off together, making good time at the quarter pole. Spotted Tail bolted the track, to the consternation of the lady spectators, who incontinently fled and nimbly mounted the adjacent chairs and settees, until the ferocious monster was captured. At the three-quarter pole Gazelle and Boston Boy both dashed among the spectators, causing another amusing panic, but were soon restored to the track and made desperate efforts to regain the lead. Nimble Jack, however, came in winner, closely followed by Champion Maid.

Second Heat.—The alligators took the track well and all got a good start, dashing off in fine style. All were neck and neck at the three-quarter pole, but in coming down the homestretch Champion Maid took the lead and held it to the end, closely followed by Nimble Jace.

Third Heat.—Nimble Jack got the lead in starting and held it throughout, Champion Maid coming in second.

SUMMARY.

Nimble Jack	1	2	1
Champion Maid	2	1	2
Spotted Tail	3	4	3
Boston Boy	4	3	4
Gazelle		dis.

The second race will come off some time next week, the animals being now in training. No alligator over four feet long will be admitted to the track.

THE LAND GRANT BUSINESS.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

During the three weeks the Forty-first Congress was in session there were introduced in the Senate and the House of Representatives bills granting land and money to railroads, canals and wagon roads to an unprecedented extent. The following estimate of the grants made by these bills has been published. By Senate bills:—

	Acres.
To railroads	151,424,440
To canals	2,421,200
To wagon roads	3,584,000
The House bills propose to give:—
To railroads	24,096,000
To canals	3,200,000
Add Senate bills	157,529,640
Grand total	181,945,640

In addition to these donations, the Senate bills proposed to give in national bonds $99,300,000, and the House bills, $15,000,000, or an aggregate of bonds of $114,300,000. These do not include the money and other subsidies to steamship lines. Previous to this date, the government has donated for railways 184,813,000 acres of land, or an extent of land equal to the surface of all New England and the States of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, Delaware and Virginia. Fortunately for the country, the President may be relied upon to arrest, as far as he can conscientiously do so, this whole business of subsidizing private corporations and personal interests.

The Bankers and the Internal Revenue.

Collector Cleveland, of the Thirty-second district, of this city, has received the following letter from Washington:—

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF INTERNAL REVENUE,
WASHINGTON, May 1, 1869.

SIR—I have to inform you that the appeal to me by Clark, Dodge & Co. from an assessment made against them as bankers by your predecessor as assessor of the Thirty-second district of New York has been determined by me, and the assessment of both tax and penalty sustained.

You will soon be furnished with a copy of the opinion given in the case by the solicitor of internal revenue.

E. DELANO, Commissioner.

In accordance with the above letter, Mr. Cleveland states that the tax on brokers' sales will be rigidly enforced by assessment in default of payment of the tax.

BROOKLYN CITY.

THE COURTS.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—IN ADMIRALTY.

A Collision Case.

The Phœnix Insurance Company vs. The Steamboat Atlas.—Plaintiffs are a New York corporation doing business in the city of New York. In March, 1868, they insured for the sum of $19,500 the cargo, which consisted of linseed, of the canal boat A. E. Hurd while on her voyage from New York to New Brunswick, N. J. Soon after the Hurd and another boat and a schooner were taken in tow on their way to New Brunswick by the steamtug Kate. When the Kate had got as far as New Brighton, S. I., the weather was so unfavorable that she remained there over night. About three o'clock the next morning the Kate again set out on her voyage, having the Hurd on her starboard side and abreast of her and the other boat and schooner between. Her course was northwest by north, directly towards Port Johnson, on the New Jersey shore. The wind was blowing north to northwest, the tide was flood and nearly high water, and the night was dark. About twenty minutes to four o'clock, when within about a hundred and fifty yards of the Jersey shore, the captain of the Kate heard the whistle of a steamboat, which seemed to be dead ahead and distant about a tenth of a mile. The whistle was blown as a signal for the boats to pass on the port side of each other. The captain of the Kate immediately answered with two whistles as a signal to keep on the starboard side, considering it unsafe for him, owing to the state of the tide and the nearness of the shore, to attempt to pass the approaching vessel on the port side, and he accordingly starboarded his helm. Within a minute afterwards the approaching vessel, which turned out to be the steamtug Atlas, struck the Kate amidships on her starboard side, her course, under the influence of her starboard helm, having been changed to the southeast. The Kate was so seriously injured as to sink in about six minutes. The Atlas continuing her course, shoved the Kate down upon the boat upon the port side of the tier in tow, and the one next to her caused a barge, which the Atlas had in tow, to run with great force into the canal boat Hurd. By this collision the Hurd had her bow stove in so that in fifteen minutes she sank in about twelve feet of water, and her cargo was a total loss. The collision, as the libellants allege, was the result of the carelessness of the Atlas and her failure to display the proper lights. She did not answer the whistle of the Kate, as is claimed, to change her course or reverse her engine until after the collision. It was also claimed by the libellants that the Kate was in no way in fault for the collision. The action was accordingly brought to recover the amount of the insurance paid by libellants to the owners of the Hurd. The answer set up to these allegations was that on the evening in question the Atlas was making her regular trip from Amboy to New York, having the barge Julia in tow on her port side. About half-past three o'clock the officers of the Atlas discovered a single white light nearly dead ahead. As no other light was seen it was supposed that it belonged to a vessel going in the same direction. The pilot blew a single whistle and ported the helm, when it was found that the light belonged to a tow. Soon after two whistles were sounded from the tow, as an indication of an intention to cross the bow of the Atlas on the starbord side. Signals were immediately given to the engineer of the Atlas to back, and to the captain of the Julia to starboard his helm, which was immediately done. The helm of the Atlas was also starboarded, but before her headway could be checked she struck the Kate. The respondents deny that the Atlas did not display proper lights, and that she was guilty of careless seamanship. After the two whistles were sounded by the Kate it was claimed by the respondents that the Atlas at once attempted to alter her course and to pass the Kate on her starboard side, and to this end the engines were reversed, and the wheels of the Atlas were actually moving backwards from the time of the blowing of the two whistles until the collision. It was further claimed that the pilot of the Kate was not a competent man, and that she was not properly manned. It was also alleged that but one light was visible upon the Kate and her tow when first discovered. The collision, as the respondents claim, was the result of the attempt of the Kate to cross the bow of the Atlas without sufficient signal of her intention and in too close proximity to her when the attempt was made. If the Kate had kept her course it was claimed that the collision would not have occurred. Case still on.

KINGS COUNTY COURT OF SESSIONS.

Before Judge Troy and Justices Hoyt and Voorhies.

The May term of this court was opened yesterday morning. A panel of twenty-five grand jurors was ordered to this court, but on being called over yesterday only fourteen answered to their names, and out of this number twelve desired to be excused.

John Doeman, a laboring man twenty years of age, was placed on trial on a charge of horse stealing, having stolen a horse valued at $250 from Bryan Whalen, and afterwards sold it for five dollars. The testimony of the prosecution showed that the prisoner had entered the stable of the complainant about a month since, while in a state of intoxication, and taken the horse. Mr. Isaac Marshall purchased the horse and advertised for the owner, and in this way the animal was recovered. The prisoner was found guilty and recommended to the mercy of the Court.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

FIRES DURING THE PAST MONTH.—The report of Assistant Fire Marshal Keady shows that during the past month there were thirty-four fires in Brooklyn, involving losses to the amount of $24,369. The losses on buildings were $19,065, and on stock and furniture $5,304. The insurances on this property were $158,700. The fires are attributed to the following causes:—Spontaneous combustion, 2; kerosene lamp explosions, 2; supposed incendiarism, 2; accidental, 16, and from unknown causes, 11.

SERIOUS FIGHT—TWO MEN INJURED.—A serious affray took place on Sunday night at the corner of Navy and Johnson streets, in the course of which two men, named James Donovan and Thomas Killmade, were severely, if not fatally, injured. Donovan was stabbed in the back and was removed to the hospital of the Forty-fourth precinct. Killmade was badly wounded upon the head, having been struck several times with a club. He was taken to the Forty-first precinct, in Washington street, and subsequently removed to his house in Tillary street. There are two or three versions as to the origin of the fight. One of the injured men says he was passing the above corner with a friend, when he saw two men beating another, and he undertook to remonstrate with them, when they knocked him down and beat him until he was insensible. Yesterday officer Wonderly, of the Forty-fourth precinct, arrested a man named Robert Berry, on a charge of having stabbed James Donovan. Coroner Jones was notified to take the ante-mortem deposition of Donovan at the Brooklyn City Hospital.

THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.—The Board of Aldermen met yesterday afternoon, the President, Alderman Bergen, presiding. Alderman Clancy, of the Fifth ward, presented a petition from the Navy Yard Ferry Company for a lease of the ferry slip at the foot of Hudson avenue for the term of ten years. The Alderman offered a resolution that the lease be granted. Alderman Whiting thought the city had no power to grant a lease of that kind. Alderman Clancy said the city had granted them a lease ten years ago and it had just expired. If they had the right to do it then they certainly had a right to do it now. Alderman Whiting held that they should advertise it, and give it to the highest bidder. After some further discussion the lease was granted to the Ferry Company at the nominal sum of six per cent. The Corporation Counsel sent in a communication, in answer to a resolution passed at the last meeting of the Board, setting forth that he had moved for an injunction to restrain the Brooklyn Gaslight Company from making a dock at the foot of Hudson avenue. On making inquiry in the matter he found that the Gaslight Company were not encroaching upon the property of the city. The motion was denied. Alderman Armfield, of the Thirteenth ward, stated that in 1864 a charter was granted to the People's Gaslight Company, and they located at Hunter's Point; that they had only existed in name since that time until recently, when they leased some property in the Thirteenth ward, where they proposed to erect a gas works. He now moved that the resolution granting them permission by the Board of Aldermen to lay gas mains through the city be rescinded. The motion was adopted. A resolution was adopted that a committee of five be appointed to make preparations for the celebration of the national day of independence. The Board then adjourned.

ROBBERY OF A WATCH CASE MANUFACTORY.

Confession of the Principal in the Affair—Curious Discovery and Developments.

The facts have already appeared in these columns that Gustave Kindt, the man arrested by Superintendent Warren, of the private detective police agency of this city, and Detective James Tilly, of the Third precinct, had made a confession of his complicity in the robbery of the safe of Messrs. Wheeler, Parsons & Co., at their watch case manufactory, State street, Brooklyn; but the full results of this acknowledgment have not been given. As they are of considerable interest they are now presented. It appears that on Friday last one of the parties left in charge of Kindt's house and household effects, at No. 11 State street, Brooklyn, while engaged in removing his goods to a safe place for storage, had occasion to reach something upon a shelf, and to accomplish this he had to step upon the window sill. When jumping off again the board forming this sill was loosened, and tipping up a piece of the woodwork below it became displaced. Falling to the floor it disclosed a valuable collection which Kindt had hidden there, consisting of three nuggets of gold, sixteen gold watch cases and two gold seal rings. The gold and cases were a portion of the property taken from Messrs. Wheeler, Parsons & Co.'s safe in January last, and the seal rings were stolen from an establishment in Pearl street. Kindt's secret hoard was soon emptied and the contents, valued at $5,000 in gold, transferred to their proper owners. On the following day (Saturday) the fact of the discovery was communicated in such a manner to Kindt that there was no possibility of his concealing the facts any longer, and he at once made a full confession of the crime, saying that the detectives had faithfully performed their work, and he could do nothing now but make a clean breast of it. The following form the principal incidents:—He stated that the plan was made by an associate and himself to rob the safe, and it had been the intention to perform the job on Christmas night, but the keys on that occasion were not all in his accomplice's hands. Before Kindt and his confederate ventured, the first accomplice, had by rehearsal of the matter convinced him that he had found the combination and could actually lock and unlock the safe. His accomplice obtained the combination by taking off the plate inside the safe, which covered the lock.

On the night preceding January 1, 1869, Kindt and his accomplice went to the corner of Willow place and State street, where Kindt remained until his companion had opened the door of the factory; then he entered the lower part of the building. In a few minutes the accomplice handed down a heavy parcel done up in a hand towel, and then came down himself with his share of the plunder in a bag. They quickly separated, Kindt going by car to Paca avenue, where he dug a hole in the ground with a knife and buried his portion of the property (one-half). He subsequently exhumed the gold and melted it on his kitchen stove. What the accomplice did with his half has not transpired.

Kindt confessed, among other things, that he had robbed his employers of different amounts in gold even during the time he was operating upon the lock of their safe, as previously described, in order to get at the $90,000 which he knew to be behind the doors. The firm have now recovered one-half the amount stolen and there is a probability that the remainder may be found at no distant day.

The trial will transpire during the present month.

SUBURBAN INTELLIGENCE.

NEW JERSEY.

Jersey City.

NEW CITY GOVERNMENT.—Last night the different municipal bodies of Hudson county organized. Mathew Monks, the new Police Commissioner, was also installed in the room of Thomas Gafney.

THE ALLEGED INCENDIARISM.—Hermann Damaschasker was arrested yesterday on the charge of being concerned in the attempt to fire the liquor store occupied by Charles Busch at 225 Wayne street on Saturday night. Busch was arrested on Sunday. He had, it is alleged, insurance to the amount of $1,800 on the premises.

THE HARBOR MASTERS.—Messrs. William Taylor and John Geraghty received their commissions yesterday as harbormasters, in accordance with an act passed by the late Legislature. Their duties will consist in regulating and stationing all vessels within the limits of Jersey City and Hoboken, removing ships that have discharged their cargoes, and adjusting all disputes between masters of vessels in regard to the location of vessels. Their fees will be half a cent per ton on domestic and one cent per ton on foreign vessels. They are empowered to appoint inspectors who shall inspect all sheep, cattle and hogs.

Hudson City.

OYER AND TERMINER.—The May term of the Hudson County courts will commence to-day, Judge Bedle presiding. As soon as the grand jury are empanelled the court will render a decision on the application for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Doctors Blank and Voelker, of New York, who lie in jail on the charge of procuring an abortion.

QUARRYMEN ON A STRIKE.—The laborers employed in the quarries of Hudson City struck for an advance of wages yesterday from two dollars and a quarter to two dollars and a half per day. They gave notice of their intentions three weeks ago. The men marched through the streets in the forenoon and demeaned themselves in an orderly manner.

THE BOARD OF CHOSEN FREEHOLDERS met yesterday. The Committee on Buildings recommended the erection of a building 20x26 feet and two stories in height for the use of the Boulevard Commissioners, the cost not to exceed $3,000. It was reported that there are forty-one inmates in the State asylum chargeable to Hudson county. Mr. Platt reported that the movement in favor consolidation had made great progress, and that several influential men in Hudson county were about to organize, in order to insure the success of the measure next October. The complaint of the Newark Board of Health in reference to the meadows was pronounced by the Freeholder from Kearney an electioneering trick to defeat the bill for dyking the meadows.

Newark.

A SAMPLE OF JERSEY JUSTICE.—In the Court of Special Sessions yesterday John Colbert, an alleged notorious New York burglar, one of the three who had such a desperate time with the police about a month ago, and who pleaded guilty to breaking and entering, was sent to State Prison for seven years.

NATIONAL CONVENTION OF GOOD BRETHREN.—The annual Convention of Good Brethren, an organization of Germans that has been in existence for about ten years and numbers about sixty lodges and 10,000 member, was held in this city yesterday. Delegates to the number of about forty-five persons were present, and these represented the States of New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio and District of Columbia. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—G. M., John Otto of Newark, N. J.; U. G. M., John Drell, of Philadelphia, Pa.; G. Ch., Philip Rott, of Philadelphia, G. S., Frances Heuse, of Newark, N. J.; G. T., John Zachalas, of Philadelphia; G. Con., Philip Hopp, of Baltimore; G. Sen., Charles Warching, of Elizabeth, N. J.; G. Stew., John Minez, of New York. The reports of the Finance and Statistical Committees showed that the affairs of the society were in a flourishing condition. The next convention meets in Philadelphia.

Paterson.

PAINTERS' STRIKE.—Yesterday the house painters struck for an advance of fifty cents per day on their wages, making their pay $3 50 per day. Several employers immediately acceded to the demand and it is expected the others will soon follow their example.

ARREST ON AN OLD INDICTMENT.—About four years ago a man named John Mullen was indicted for stealing a gold watch worth $125 from one John Wall. Muller left the city immediately after the robbery, but coming back yesterday he was promptly arrested by a constable and placed in limbo.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY.—The regular monthly meeting of the Passaic County Historical Society was held in Paterson last evening. Among the papers read was an interesting report of the Paterson Improvement Association; a sketch of the early history of Paterson by the late William Wright, &c. The society proposes to hold a "field meeting" or scientific excursion in June.

PASSAIC COUNTY COURTS.—James A. Calvin, for petit larceny, was sentenced to twenty-five dollars fine and costs yesterday afternoon. Benjamin J. Cole, indicted for rape and convicted of assault, was fined $500 and costs. The same defendant was fined fourteen dollars and costs on two indictments for fornication. Charles Jackson, assault and battery, was fined fifty dollars and costs. The sentence of N. J. Greene, the warden of the jail, for illicit intercourse, was suspended and the prisoner was released under bail. Other prisoners received light sentences for minor offences.

Trenton.

STATE PRISON.—In accordance with the provisions of an act passed by the last Legislature, five insane convicts confined in the State Prison were removed to the State Asylum yesterday. Ten prisoners were received from Burlington county.

A NOTORIOUS COUNTERFEITER RECAPTURED.—About two years ago a notorious counterfeiter, named Foster, escaped from the Trenton jail while awaiting trial. Nothing was known of him since till yesterday, when he was arrested at Philadelphia and conveyed to Trenton last evening by United States Marshal Plummer.

POLICE ITEMS.—Yesterday afternoon Joseph and Margaret Phillips were arrested on a charge of selling whiskey and beer on Sunday in contravention of the State laws. A man named Peter Canfield was arrested on a warrant for committing an assault and battery on a woman named Mary Higgins. The Mayor deferred the hearing.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—This body will require $22,000 to defray the current expenses of the present year for educational purposes in this city. They will also petition the Common Council for an additional appropriation of $7,600 for the purchase of two lots whereon to erect two new school houses. Of the $22,000 demanded for school expenses the State will contribute $2,400 and the remainder will have to be supplied by the city.

ALLEGED INCENDIARISM.—Late on Sunday night constable Mears arrested three boys between the ages of fifteen and eighteen years, named Barney McGuinty, James McGrady and William Plunkett, on a charge of having fired a frame building in Woodruff street. The accused say they only built the fire in the house to warm themselves. They were committed to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

WESTCHESTER COUNTY.

THE RYE NECK MURDER.—Acting, perhaps, on a suggestion conveyed in the HERALD of last Saturday the remains of Gilbert H. Robinson were yesterday exhumed by direction of the District Attorney, and a post mortem examination made by Drs. Hoffman and Lounsbury. The results of their autopsy will be laid before the Coroner's jury, which resumes its investigation of the mysterious crime tomorrow. Up to the present no clue has been obtained which might draw aside the hideous veil now screening the perpetrator.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE AT MOTT HAVEN.—While laboring under the effects of a prolonged "spree," Michael Rock, a teamster, living on 137th street near Harlem bridge, tried to end his life by hanging himself yesterday morning. Having bought a piece of new rope, Rock fastened it to a beam in the rear of the house where his family live, and at once went through the preliminaries for his own execution. He was discovered by his landlord, who cut him down before life was extinct, although blood was flowing freely from his nostrils. After recovering his senses, Rock expressed his unaltered determination to kill himself "before morning"—and to this end endeavored during the day to purchase laudanum at different stores. The man's friends are anxious to have him taken charge of by the authorities.

DEAD BODIES OF A MAN AND WOMAN FOUND AT MOUNT VERNON.—Coroner Bathgate, of Morrisania, held an inquest at this place yesterday on the body of a colored woman named Ellen Pell, who was found dead in a field near Chester Hill on the previous day. Deceased, who was about fifty years old, has lived a long time in the neighborhood and earned a support by washing, living, it is said, with her husband in the African portion of the village. Her neighbors say that she went out on Saturday evening to purchase a dress, and although she did not return it has not been shown that her husband exerted himself to find her. When discovered about half a mile from the village by a watchman her clothing was torn into strips, and the dress pattern she had purchased was found with her shawl many yards distant from where she lay. Almost before a partial medical examination of the body had been concluded the jury rendered a verdict that "deceased died from exposure, brought on by intoxication."

The same Coroner also held an inquest on the body of an unknown man found dead on Sunday afternoon by a gardener in the employ of H. A. Bowerman, living about a mile from this village. Deceased was lying in an open lot near the stable of the above named gentleman, with no clothes on save a shirt and undershirt, the latter being of a black and white plaid. He was apparently about thirty years of age, and is supposed to have been insane. No marks of violence were found on the body. A verdict was given that "death was caused by exposure, superinduced by causes unknown to the jury." The remains were given in charge of the poormaster, and are now awaiting identification.

PEACE OR WAR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

In a question which involves the dignity of a great nation a policy of conciliation or delay can have only disastrous results. At such a time a wise statesmanship will not hesitate before the consequences which its action may determine. If justice and the outraged honor of a people are on one side, the evils of a deadly and protracted war on the other are not a sufficient reason for submission. The national prestige is lost in such a case by inaction. It will be generally believed that a people which submits quietly to a wrong, or does no more than protest against it, is afraid to draw its sword, and may therefore be insulted with impunity. The result is a succession of wars, into which the country is plunged through the lack of energy of its government in the first instance, or, which would be impossible with a great people, a tame endurance of every kind of affront.

The state of our controversy with Great Britain is at present open to three solutions. Either that of peace at any price, which would result in the evils we have just pointed out, or a postponement of action to a more favorable opportunity, or, lastly, a declaration of war on a refusal to accede to our demands. The first, we believe, has not a single supporter outside the peace denominations; the second is the one which, so far, has met with most favor; the third is desired by the Irish part of our population as eventuating in the possible independence of their country, and by a few impartial thinkers, who regard it as the only one compatible with the dignity of the nation. We will pass by the first as unworthy of consideration, and state briefly our reasons for holding that the second is neither honorable nor expedient.

When at the commencement of our civil war the capture of the steamship Trent might have led to the armed intervention of Great Britain, it was universally felt that the cause of dispute was too trifling compared with the importance which its effect would unquestionably have on our affairs at such a crisis. One war at a time, was the opinion of all parties, and the administration acted wisely in declining to make a casus belli out of a small point of international law in which the national honor was not in any way involved.

The fitting out of the Alabama, its depredations on our commerce and the recognition of the South were questions which could not be decided at the moment, for it needed time to ascertain their importance as well as to judge them dispassionately.

Now, however, there is no longer any such reason for delay. The people have formed their opinion on the subject, and the rebellion has been suppressed. What, then, is the good of waiting? It cannot be that the administration is afraid of a war with England single-handed; that it believes the best course to be to wait until she is engaged in hostilities with some other Power, and then seek redress for our grievances. Such a policy is unworthy of a great nation. If we are afraid of a war with Great Britain because we believe we are not strong enough to cope with her, let us at once acknowledge our inferiority. It would be in better taste and less likely to result in humiliation to us than the assumption of a power which we do not possess. But if, as we believe, the people are conscious of their own strength and do not dread to enter upon a just war with any nation whatsoever, the maintenance of their honor and the righteousness of their cause demand that they insist upon immediate redress of the wrongs they have suffered.

That war with a country so closely united to us as England would be a great calamity, not to the two combatants only, but to the entire world, we do not deny. It would not be right to conceal such a fact. The people would be called upon to make great sacrifices, greater, perhaps, than they have ever made, and they should be prepared to endure them. The cause of liberty also would suffer and the progress of mankind be retarded. These considerations cannot and ought not to be avoided. At the same time we believe that the only right course is that which is directed by the desire for justice and the vindication of the national honor. If we are ready for war now, we may possibly avoid it; if we confine ourselves to negotiations and threats, we sow the seed of innumerable causes of dispute and only make ourselves ridiculous. What the occasion needs is a firm and dignified policy. Let our Minister be instructed to lay our demands before the British government with all courtesy, but at the same time without concealing the consequences of a refusal to accede to them. By following this course we may possibly obtain a speedy settlement of our claims while we maintain the dignity of our position. And if war should come, we need not fear to meet it, supported as we would be by the justice of our cause and the knowledge of our power. Relying upon these, we can afford to offer Great Britain the choice of peace or war.

NEWS FROM JAMAICA.

KINGSTON, April 15, 1869.

Sir Bryan Edwards, Chief Justice of the island, has resigned his appointment. No one is yet named as his successor. He will remain in office till his successor comes out or is appointed.

Major General O'Conner, C. B., commander of the forces on this island, gives up his command on the 30th inst.

Several Cubans are leaving this for Santiago de Cuba.

The Spanish mail steamer between this port, Santa Martha, Carthagena and Aspinwall is withdrawn from the trade.

SINGULAR CASE OF HYDROPHOBIA.—About five or six years since a boy named James Finley, then about ten years of age, was bitten by a dog. The wound soon healed and no further attention was required. Within a few days past, however, it has again become painful, and on yesterday morning he was attacked with a disease which his physician declares to be hydrophobia. He has the benefit of the best medical men of the city, and if possible the horribly fatal result will be averted. A "mad stone" having been procured from Lincoln, was applied this morning. It slightly adhered to the wound when first applied, but did not extract any virus, so far as could be observed, and soon became detached. The patient suffered two severe spasms this morning and another less violent about noon. At two o'clock he was much easier, and comparatively free from pain. He is, however, rapidly sinking and grows weaker every hour.—Springfield (Ill.) Register, April 30.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

MONDAY, May 3—6 P. M.

The influences which naturally tend to make gold dearer were unfortunately aided to-day by others of foreign origin. The excessive imports of the expired portion of the year underlie the present strength of the premium, and a decline in bonds abroad started the price up to 136¼, which is close upon the highest point touched the present year. As far as it is possible to ascertain, the cause of the sudden decline in London is attributable to the receipt by mail of Senator Chandler's intemperate speech on the subject of the Alabama claims, while the higher price of gold also constitutes a source of weakness. The opening price was 80¼, from which there was a yielding to 80 and a recovery to 80¼, founded probably upon a calmer view of the speech and its relative influence. There was considerable excitement over the advance in gold, but the price did not remain firm at its highest, the holders of the metal being desirous of realizing, and hence followed a reaction of a quarter to three-eighths per cent later in the day. The stock cliques were large purchasers at the opening prices, which fact greatly stimulated the advance. The range of prices was as follows:—

10 A. M.	135⅛	12:30 P. M.	135⅞
10:09 A. M.	135	1 P. M.	136
10:15 A. M.	135⅛	1:54 P. M.	136⅛
11 A. M.	135⅛	2 P. M.	136
11:30 A. M.	135⅞	3 P. M.	135⅞
11:45 A. M.	135⅛	3 P. M.	135⅞
12 M.	135⅝	4 P. M.	135⅞
12:20 P. M.	135⅞	5 P. M.	135⅝ a 135⅞

The abundance of cash gold was reflected in a total absence of borrowing rates, the figures all ranging on the carrying side of the table and fluctuating from seven to three per cent. Transactions were very heavy and the Clearing House to-morrow will show some large numbers. The report of the Gold Exchange Bank for to-day is as follows:—

Gold cleared	$84,900,000
Gold balances	1,777,056
Currency balances	2,464,573

The Sub Treasury to-day disbursed $1,628,000 in coin on account of the May interest.

Foreign exchange was dull but firm. Rates ranged as follows:—Sterling, sixty days, commercial, 108½ a 108⅞; good to prime bankers', 109 a 109¼; short sight, 109⅞ a 109⅞; Paris, sixty days, 5.21 a 5.18¾; short sight, 5.16¼ a 5.13¾; Antwerp, 5.21¼ a 5.16¼; Switzerland, 5.21¼ a 5.16¼; Hamburg, 35⅝ a 35⅞; Amsterdam, 40¼ a 40⅝; Frankfort, 40¼ a 40¾; Bremen, 78¼ a 78¾; Prussian thalers, 70⅝ a 71⅛.

Governments opened very buoyantly, but underwent a sharp decline at the noon board, in sympathy with the decline in London and, to some extent, the greater activity in money. What is a source of weakness at one hour is indirectly a source of strength in almost the next. This is one of the curious features of the government market. The decline in bonds put gold up. The rise in gold strengthened bonds again, and so at the afternoon boards there was a reaction to the highest point of the day, the '62's touching 118⅞, ex coupon, and the 67's 117. The investment demand ran largely on the registered bonds, while the inquiry for the currency sixes caused a large advance in their price. The market closed strong at the following quotations:—United States sixes, 1881, registered, 118⅞ a 119; do., coupon, 119 a 119½; five-twenties, registered, 113⅞ a 113⅞; do. do., coupons, 1862, 118⅝ a 118⅞; do. do., coupon, 1864, 114⅛ a 114¼; do. do., coupon, 1865, 115⅛ a 115⅜; do. do., coupon, new, 1865, 116¾ a 116⅞; do. do., coupon, 1867, 116⅞ a 116⅞; do. do., coupon, 1868, 116⅝ a 116⅞; do., ten-forties, registered, 107⅛ a 107⅜; do. do., coupon, 108⅛ a 108⅜; currency bonds, 106⅛ a 106⅜.

Southern securities were steady at a slight yielding from the best figures of last week. The Tennessee new bonds were lower by two per cent and the Louisiana levee sixes a fraction higher. The books have closed for a three per cent dividend on Memphis and Charleston "stock." Prices closed for the list:—Tennessees, ex coupon, 67 a 67½; do., new, 66 a 66¼; do., five per cent, 59 a 61; Virginias, ex coupon, 58¼ a 58¾; do., new, 62¼ a 62¾; do., registered stock, 50⅛ a 51; do., registered, 1866, 55 a 55½; do., registered, 1867, 52 a 52½; Georgia sixes, 81½ a 83; do. sevens, 95¾ a 96¼; do. do., interest payable in Georgia, 94 a 95; North Carolinas, ex coupon, 60⅝ a 61¼; do., new, 54½ a 54¾; Missouri sixes, 88⅛ a 88½; do., Hannibal and St. Joseph, 90 a 90½; Louisiana sixes, 74 a 74½; do., levee do., 70 a 70½; do. do., eights, 89½ a 90; Alabama eights, 102 a 104; do. fives, 67 a 69; do., sixes, sterling, 95; South Carolina sixes, 74 a 75; do., new, 72 a 73; do., registered stock, 64 a 66; City of Memphis sixes, 53¼ a 54; do. Atlanta eights, 84 a 85; do. Savannah sevens, 93 a 94; do. New Orleans consols, 77 a 78; do. do., issued to railroads, 71 a 72; Mobile-Ohio sterling, 71 a 72; do., eights, 62 a 63; Mississippi Central Railroad, first mortgage, 71 a 73; do., second do., 57 a 60; Memphis and Charleston, first, 87 a 88; do., second, 76 a 77; do., stock, 49 a 50; Greenville and Columbia, guaranteed, 59 a 60.

The following were the bids for the city bank stocks at the regular board this morning:—New York, 130; Manhattan, 140; Mechanics', 134; America, 146; National, 110½; Merchants' Exchange, 116; Seventh Ward, 110; Commerce, 120½; Ocean, 105½; American Exchange, 112; Bank of the Republic, 116; Metropolitan, 140; Continental, 100½; Marine, 150; Park, 160; Manufacturers and Merchants', 100; Central National, 111; First National, 215; Fourth National, 104.

There was more inquiry for money, supposed to arise out of the demands of the moving period and the necessity of payments on rent contracts and the like. The activity was quite noticeable in the vicinity of two o'clock. Just before three o'clock there was a relaxation in the demand, but no loans were made at less than seven per cent. Commercial paper shows a fair activity, and the extreme range of the discounting rate is from seven to ten per cent.

The question of a consolidation of the regular and open boards is still uppermost in the minds of members. Some go so far as to predict that the union will be a fait accompli within a few weeks. At an executive session of the open board to-day the committee reported that there was no legal redress for the action of the Stock Exchange in admitting the government board. Meantime the new or national board derive strength from the proposed consolidation of their older rivals, and have leased more pretentious accommodations on Broad street, opposite the Stock Exchange.

The general stock market was dull. Prices at the opening were up to the best at the close of the previous week; but operators became cautious, and there was a slow yielding in quotations until the lowest were made at the last session of the regular board, from which there was a rally at the open board, succeeded by heaviness in subsequent street transactions. The exceptions were Fort Wayne, which suddenly advanced to 145, Michigan Southern, which advanced to 105¼, and Lake Shore, which touched 104¼. Hudson River and Harlem were lower, and New York Central barely steady. Pittsburg, St. Paul and Northwestern stocks were weak. The express stocks were firm, but quiet. Of the miscellaneous list Western Union, Pacific Mail and Mariposa were heavy and declined.

The following were the closing quotations of the last regular board:—Canton, 63 asked; Cumberland, 30 a 34; Western Union, 42⅞ a 43; Quicksilver, 20¼ a 21; Mariposa, 18 a 20; do. preferred, 40¾ a 42; Pacific Mail, 91⅞ a 91¾; New York Central, 177⅜ a 177½; Hudson River, 156⅞ a 157; Reading, 95¼ a 95⅜; Michigan Central, 120 asked; Michigan Southern, 104⅞ a 104⅞; Illinois Central, 145⅞ a 146; Pittsburg, 92 bid; Northwestern, 86¼ a 86⅜; do. preferred, 98 a 98¼; Rock Island, 137¼ a 137⅜; St. Paul, 77¼ a 77⅜; do. preferred, 86⅝ a 87; Wabash, 72⅛ a 72⅜; do. preferred, 77 a 79; Fort Wayne, 143¼ a 143⅜; Ohio and Mississippi, 32⅞ a 33.

The following were the closing quotations on the call at the last open board:—Canton, 61 a 63; Boston Water Power, 16 a 17½; Wells-Fargo Express, 35¼ bid; Adams Express, 61⅛ a 61¾; American Express, 41 a 42; United States Express, 63 a 64; Merchants' Union Express, 15 a 16; Quicksilver, 20⅛ a 20¾; Pacific Mail, 92 a 92¼; Western Union Telegraph, 43 a 43¼; New York Central, 177⅛ a 177⅜; Mariposa, 11 a 18; do. preferred, 42 a 42⅞; Hudson River, 156⅛ a 156⅞; Harlem, 150⅞ a 151⅜; Reading, 95⅝ a 96; Chicago and Alton, 156 bid; Toledo and Wabash, 72 a 73; Milwaukee and St. Paul, 77⅜ a 77⅞; do. preferred, 86⅛ a 86⅜; Columbus, Chicago and Indiana Central, 45 a 48; Ohio and Mississippi, 32⅞ a 33⅛; Fort Wayne, 144⅛ a 145⅜; Michigan Central, 123 bid; Michigan Southern, 105⅜ a 105¾; Illinois Central, 146 a 146⅜; Cleveland and Pittsburg, 92⅜ a 92⅞; Lake Shore, 104⅜ a 104⅞; Rock Island, 136⅞ a 137; Northwestern, 86⅜ a 86⅞; do. preferred, 98 a 98¼.

Erie at the National Board recovered from the decline of Saturday and sold as high as 28⅛.

The Free Railway act which has just been adopted by the Ohio Legislature is novel as a source of railway enterprise. It provides that "whenever in any city of the first class, having a population exceeding 150,000 inhabitants, the city council thereof shall, by a resolution passed by a majority of the members elected thereto, declare it to be essential to the interest of such city that a line of railroad, to be named in said resolution, should be provided between termini designated therein, one of which shall be such city, it shall be lawful for a board of trustees and they are hereby authorized to borrow, as a fund for that purpose, not to exceed the sum of ten millions of dollars, and to issue bonds therefor, in the name of said city, under the corporate seal thereof, bearing interest at a rate not to exceed seven and three-tenths per centum per annum," and that "whenever there shall be between the termini designated in any resolution passed under this act a railroad already partially constructed, or rights of way acquired therefor, which can be adopted as a part of the line provided for in said resolution, the trustees of said line may purchase the said railroad and rights of way, and pay for the same out of the trust fund."

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company are surveying two different lines for the extension of the Cumberland Valley Railroad from Hagerstown to Williamsport, and also a line from Mercersburg to connect that place with the Cumberland Valley Railroad at some point between Chambersburg and Hagerstown.

The extension of the New York and Hackensack Railroad through Pascack valley is being pushed vigorously, the work being under way for nearly ten miles. This road is to connect with the Erie at the State line, and will, it is anticipated, be finished this year.

The earnings of the Marietta and Cincinnati Railroad from January 1 to April 23 were:—

1869	$367,957
1868	347,112

COMMERCIAL REPORT.

MONDAY, May 3—6 P. M.

COFFEE.—Rio was quiet, but firmly held and sparingly offered. Other kinds were also quiet but firm at former prices. No sales were reported.

COTTON.—There was a good demand for export and a fair inquiry for spinning, and a fair business was consummated. The market was firmer, though prices were not quotably higher. The sales were 3,412 bales, including 1,937 for export, 877 for spinning, 287 on speculation, and 311 were in transit. We quote:—

FLOUR AND GRAIN.—Receipts, 8,473 bbls. flour, 208 do. corn meal, 18,200 bushels corn, 5,600 do. oats and 1,300 do. malt. The market for State and Western flour was firmer to-day, and, with a light supply and a fair demand, supers No. 2 and low extras were 5c. a 15c. better, the market closing quiet; the demand was merely for shipment to the provinces, but to some extent for shipment to Europe. California flour was quiet but steady; the sales were 7,600 bbls. Southern flour was in moderate demand at unchanged prices; sales 275 bbls. Rye flour was more sought after and firmly held; the sales were about 275 bbls. Corn meal was dull, but unchanged. We quote:—

—Wheat was decidedly more active, under favorable advices from Europe, and prices were 3c. a 5c. higher—$1 50 being freely bid for No. 2 spring for shipment at the close, with no sellers at that figure. California and winter wheat were quiet, but steady. The sales were about 65,000 bushels (nearly all for shipment) at $1 47 for common No. 2 Chicago spring, delivered; $1 49 a $1 51 for choice do., delivered; $1 70 for California and $1 66 for amber Canada. Corn was scarce, more active and higher. The sales were about 95,000 bushels, at 89c. a 92c. for new mixed Western delivered, 94c. for yellow, 90c. a 91c. for old mixed in store. Oats were firm and in fair demand. Sales 90,000 bushels at 85c. in store and 86c. a 86½c. afloat. Rye was quiet but steady at $1 30 a $1 35 for Western. The sales published in our last issue should have been at $1 35, not $1 25. Both barley and barley malt were dull and nominal. Total stock grain in New York and Brooklyn warehouses May 1, 1869:—1,400,929 bushels wheat, 753,014 do. corn, 965 016 do. oats, 135,240 do. rye, 39,245 do. barley, 56,258 do. malt, 35,400 do. peas.

FREIGHTS.—The market exhibited more activity, but rates continued to favor the shipper. The engagements were:—To Liverpool, per steamer, 22,500 bushels wheat at 1d. a 1¼d., 2,000 bales cotton at ⅜d. a 5-32d., 2,000 bbls. rosin at 7½d. and 200 tierces lard at 5s. a 7s. 6d. To Antwerp, 100 bags coffee at 22s. 6c., and, per steamer, 50 bbls. ashes at 25s. and 300 do. rosin at 2s. To Rotterdam, 250 bbls. rosin at 2s. The charters were:—A Russian ship, to the Continent, with 4,000 bbls. petroleum, at 3s. 9d. if refined and 4s. if crude, and a North German bark to Havre, with about 900 hhds. tobacco, at 22s. 6d.

GUNNIES.—We heard of no further sales. Bags were heavy at 16½c. a 17c., while cloth was firm at 9½c. a 9¾c., gold, in bond.

HAY continued in fair request and prices were firm at 60c. a 70c. for shipping, $1 a $1 25 for retail lots, $1 for long rye straw, and 75c. a 85c. for short do.

HEMP.—Manila was firm at the close at 13c., gold, with sales of 1,800 bales at 12¾c., and 1,000 do., to arrive, at 12½c. Other kinds were quiet but steady at our last quotations.

HOPS.—The market was dull, there being scarcely any demand, and prices continued to rule heavy at 5c. a 18c. for inferior to choice grades.

MOLASSES.—The market was still quiet, but holders demanded full prices. The only sales we heard of were 45 hhds. old crop Cuba muscovado at 46c. and 67 bbls. New Orleans on private terms.

NAVAL STORES.—The demand for spirits turpentine was only moderate, and the market was heavy at the close at 46½c. a 47½c. for merchantable and shipping lots. There were sales of 270 bbls. at 46c. a 48c. Rosin was moderately active and steady for the low grades, but dull for the other grades. The sales were 1,000 bbls. black at about $2 60, 1,550 do. good strained at $2 65, 1,000 do. No. 2 at $2 70 a $2 95, and 22 do. No. 1 at $4 25. We quote:—Strained, $2 60 a $2 65; No. 2, $2 70 a $3; No. 1, $3 12½ a $4 25; pale, $4 50 a $5 50, and extra do., $6 a $8. Wilmington tar was dull at $3 40 a $3 62½.

OILCAKE.—Western was higher, being quoted $19. No sales were reported.

OILS.—Linseed, though quiet, was firm at $1 02 a $1 05, in casks and bbls., while other kinds were dull, but unchanged.

PROVISIONS.—Receipts, 6,041 bbls. pork, 200 do. beef, 450 do. cut meats, 64 do. and 25 kegs lard. Pork was in light demand, and but little business was transacted, but with small offerings the market was firm. There were sales, in lots, of 500 bbls. at $30 75 to $31 for new mess, $28 for rumps and $26 for extra prime. For future delivery we heard of no sales. Dressed hogs were lower, being quoted 12c. to 12½c. for city. Live hogs were quoted 9½c. to 10c., with arrivals of 4,076 hhds. Beef was in moderate demand at steady prices, the sales being 110 bbls. at $11 to $16 for plain mess, and $12 to $18 for extra do. Beef hams were quiet, but prices remained steady; 75 bbls. were disposed of at $25 a $33. Tierce beef was more sought after and more firmly held. About 230 pkgs. were sold within the range of $20 a $26 for prime mess and $26 a $30 for India do. Cut meats were still dull and prices were nominal at 13c. for pickled shoulders, 13½c. a 15c. for dry salted do., 15½c. for smoked do., 15½c. for pickled hams, and 20c. a 20½c. for smoked and bagged do. There were a few small sales at these figures. Bacon was dull and heavy at 16½c. for Cumberland cut, 16¾c. for long clear, 17c. a 17½c. for short do., and 16c. for short rib. Sales 125 boxes city fee cured at 16½c. For lard there was an improved demand and the market was firmer, the sales being 850 pkgs. at 16½c. a 18½c. for No. 1 to prime steam and kettle rendered. Also 500 tcs. for may delivery at 18c. a 18¼c., seller's option.

PETROLEUM.—Crude in bulk was held at 17½c., though a few small lots, amounting to 500 bbls., were sold at 17c. Of crude in bbls. a sale was rumored of about 4,000 bbls. at 23c. Refined was in more demand, and with light offering, the market was firmer and prices advanced ⅛c. a ¼c., closing at 32½c. There were sales of 2,500 bbls., deliverable within the next ten days, at 32½c. a 32¾c.; 500 do., delivered to vessel, at 32½c.; 1,000 do., for June, at 34c.; and 10,000 gallons prime white, in tins, at 42c. In Philadelphia the market was more active, and in prices there was an improvement to the extent of about ¼c. There were sales of 2,000 bbls. at 32c; 2,500 do., for the last half May, at 32½c.; 2,000 do. do. at 33c., closing at 33c.; 500 do., for June, at 33½c.; 1,000 do. for August, at 35c., and 500 do., for July, at 34c.

RICE.—Carolina was in fair demand and firmer, closing at 8½c. a 9½c. There were sales of 100 tierces at 9c. a 9½c.

SEEDS.—Linseed was quoted at $2 20 a $2 22½, gold, duty paid, though we heard of no further sales. All kinds of grass were quiet, but steady at the quotations in our last issue.

SUGAR.—Raw was in better demand, chiefly for refining, and the market was a trifle firmer, closing at 11½c. a 11¾c. for fair to good refining Cuba. The sales were 160 hhds., part at 12½c. for Porto Rico and 11½c. a 12c. for Cuba. Refined was steady at 15½c. for hard. 14½c. a 14¾c. for soft, white, 13½c. a 14¼c. for yellow, and 14¼c. for extra C, with a fair demand.

STEARINE.—There was no business of consequence. Prices, however, were steady at 17½c. a 18½c. for common to prime, in hhds. and tierces.

TALLOW was steady, with sales of 70,000 lbs. at 11⅛c. a 11¼c.

WHISKEY.—Receipts, 683 bbls. The market was more active and excited, and prices were 2c. a 3c. higher. There were sales of about 200 bbls. at 95c. a 97c., closing at 96c. a 97c., tax paid.

REAL ESTATE MATTERS.

Real Estate Notes.

The boundary line of Passaic and Sussex counties, so long contested, has been settled by commission, and West Milford recovers $500 of taxes and a large tract of land.

The trustees of the village of Flushing propose to macadamize the streets of their village.

A deed for 19,000 acres of land was recorded at the county seat of Osage county, Kansas, a few days since, having on it $57 in stamps. The land was sold by R. S. Stevens to John M. Wetnerell.

It is rumored that the Southside Railroad Company have proposed a resolution to continue that road east to Riverhead village.

A farm of 237 acres at Little Neck was sold for $110,000.

Brewster Hawkins' estate, six acres, at East Setauket, sold at auction for $5,800.

The frame of the new depot building at Clarenceville is now up, and will be enclosed next week. A platform 300 feet in length is to be laid. It is to be of Gothic style, twenty by sixty feet, sixteen feet posts.

At Oyster Bay thirty one acres of farm land (no improvements) sold for $4,000.

The summer arrangements of the Long Island Railroad goes into effect on Monday next. Trains leave Huntington station for New York at 5:50 and 7:16 A. M., and 3:15 and 4:45 P. M. James slip at 8:07 and 10 A. M., and 4:30 and 5:30 P. M.

Mrs. Brush, of Old Fields, has sold her farm (the Scott farm), 120 acres, to John A. Furman, of New York. Price $15,000.

An estate near Paris, costing 1,000,000f. has been purchased for the Prince Imperial.

The property formerly belonging to Gen. Scott, at Elizabeth, and which was sold to Messrs. Williams, Pierson & English, is being laid off into building lots one hundred feet in depth by twenty-five feet front. There will be twenty lots on Jersey street and twenty-one on a new street not yet dedicated to the public. The whole plot as originally sold had a frontage of 530 feet, with a depth of 316 feet.

A Philadelphia paper growing indignant at a contemplation of the real estate in that city exempt from taxation exclaims against it thus:—"Over forty millions of property, belonging to secular societies and rich religious corporations, is exempted from all taxation. Why should a poor man pay when he can't afford it, and the Cathedral or Holy Trinity be exempt, when they collect $1,200 on a Sabbath? This may be encouraging benevolence, but it looks to us like imposition on the community. Let everything pay, except State and United States property."

The Insurance and Real Estate Journal prints the following in reference to the real estate market during the past week in this city:—"The sales of the week have diminished in importance, especially in relation to New York city properties, but more attention is being directed to suburban lots, and these will probably occupy the chief attention of purchasers for some weeks. The obligation of high rents first induced a large number of our citizens to seek cheaper roofs than Manhattan afforded, and they retreated to the country. At first these people regarded their new places of residences as a description of exile, so long had they enjoyed the larger associations of the city; but these feelings have passed away. It is found that the deprivations of the entertainments of the city are more than outweighed by the pleasures of the country, and those who had resorted early to the suburbs not only remained there but induced their friends to abandon their smoky dwellings and join them in a purer atmosphere. It cannot be denied that this has sensibly affected not only the demand for New York homes but for those of Brooklyn also, and we fear that a great sacrifice in rent must be made in reference to those dwellings which may remain untenanted after the great day of exodus. Business properties, however, are still competed for with a vigor that will not permit them to fall in value, especially when these are offered on any of the chief avenues of commerce, whether devoted to wholesale or retail dealings. At private sale the dealings are of a moderate character, and but little disposition is manifested on the part of property owners to create a greater degree of briskness by conceding to the demands of a sluggish market. Those properties disposed of are chiefly for investment, the speculative feeling have subsided, except in relation to lots or plots that are almost certain to share in the improvements in progress or designed in various localities of the island.

The Chicago Evening Post gives the following review of the market in that city:—The real estate market continues comparatively inactive, especially for outside property. It would seem that the late stringency in the money market had affected prices in real estate all over the country, as the newspapers in New York, Brooklyn and in Western cities report a decidedly decreased activity. In Chicago, within the city limits, prices are fully maintained, and the number and money value of the sales is fully equal to those of any previous season. The Park Commissioners are moving cautiously, and as soon as they shall feel that the present prices are to be maintained, they will proceed to condemn the land for the parks. It is believed, however, by some of these gentlemen that by waiting the land may be obtained at a lower valuation than at present. It will be seen from the total sales for the week that the amount is equal to the average for the last four weeks, and but little less than the highest average in the most active period of the market.

The following is a table of the daily transactions for last week and a comparative list for every week since February 12:—

	Sales.	Amount.
Saturday, April 24	42	$248,292
Monday, April 26	35	80,245

Total			242	$1,161,061

One of our evening contemporaries says:—"A number of land holders, living adjacent to New York, are to meet this week to decide upon some cheaper mode of communication between this city and their locality. They assert that the high rates of fare charged by the company controlling the present line of communication deters New Yorkers from moving thither, and keeps down the price of real estate, and prevents growth and development generally. Unless a reform is at once inaugurated they propose to establish and control a line of their own. That is, indeed, a short-sighted policy which leads owners of railroad and steamboat routes running from the metropolis to maintain high rates of fare, a policy which can but prove very unprofitable in the long run. The difference of a very few pennies in the price of fare is sufficient to determine in many minds the question of remaining in the city or moving into the country. One of the short railroads leading from New York, which last year had the foresight to reduce its fare nearly one-half, has already more than doubled its travel, and the prospects are that before the close of the season the travel over the route will be trebled, or quadrupled. The policy of English railway capital in this matter is well worthy of attention and study. They long since discovered, what our American capitalists do not yet seem to understand, that nothing is so profitable because nothing is so cheaply transported as passenger traffic. Every article conveyed by railway requires handling, but passengers take care of themselves. Acting on this theory, the English railroad managers have labored to build up a passenger traffic to and from London. This they have made their great specialty, and in so doing they have put the fare down to low figures, issued commutation and season tickets, run frequent and rapid trains and in every way studied the convenience and comfort of passengers. As a result of all this, it is estimated that 300,000 people now daily pass to and from London over these railroads alone. Probably the number here in New York does not exceed 60,000. Within a radius of fifty miles around London many populous places are now to be seen, created entirely by the railway facilities for reaching the metropolis, which places were mere villages or hamlets ten years ago. It only requires a similar policy to accomplish similar results here. Tens of thousands of people who are now huddled together in boarding houses and tenement dwellings could be attracted to New Jersey, Westchester, Long and Staten Islands, were the means for reaching these suburbs more convenient and less expensive. Purely pecuniary considerations, if nothing more, should lead the owners and managers of our routes of travel to give earnest and immediate attention to this matter."

Another evening paper here discusses the latest Chicago scheme as follows:—"Chicago, which has, as most people know, grown to be a considerable town, has been for several years studying how to become a seaport. Let nobody say that this is as the frog studied how to become a bull, for the two cases are not at all parallel. Chicago wants to be a seaport in order to grow—for to grow, to become the greatest city in the world, is clearly the destiny of Chicago, or else town lots would not be so dear there. But to be great a city must be a seaport; and the St. Lawrence, unluckily, is frozen over half the year, and is not fit for ship navigation at the best; and hitherto the direct foreign trade of Chicago has been insignificant, and the ships which she has sent to the sea have not returned. At last all this is to be cured. It is proposed to cut a ship canal from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi, and by means of this to drain the lakes. This would turn the St. Lawrence into a rivulet, unless the Canadians should be able to supply the stream from artesian wells. It would, so we are told, destroy the Niagara falls; but, as people will thereafter go to see Chicago instead of Niagara, that will not matter much. It will ruin New York; but as this is the only way we can ever get rid of our city government, we may be thankful for ruin. It will lay bare millions of acres of new land, which will be a boon to railroad speculators, who have now got pretty much all the government land in their hands and are wishing for more. Finally, it will bring sailing vessels in four days from New Orleans to Chicago, and therein lies the great merit of the canal, which, by the way, is to cost only eighty-four millions."

THE NATIONAL GAME.

The match making season having fully opened, the programme, so far as made known, is such as to promise plenty of sport for the admirers of the game to witness and exercise the ballistic athletes to improve by.

To-day the first match game will be played on the Union grounds, between the Mutuals and Olympics. This game, we are told, is to be played as a friendly affair, and at the same time to give the Mutual nine practice and test the calibre of the Olympics.

The Mutual and Athletic games to decide the claim to the gold ball will, in all probability, be soon arranged. The best way to settle that matter would be to melt the ball, and, if it be worth anything, sell it and devote the proceeds of the sale to the institution for the relief of aged and indigent females.

The clubs which will make some stir this season are the college clubs. The Princeton boys put the Athletics on their mettle and nearly defeated them last week. Next week they will come on to try their strength with the Atlantics at the Capitoline grounds.

To-day the champions of Jersey City will open play on their grounds. The usual Peck of prizes has been donated, and will no doubt be heavily battled for.

The Harvard Club has already commenced operations, and in fine style, by defeating the Lowells on Tuesday last, with a score of 61 to 22.

The American Club in Rome, Italy, is progressing, and some of the players there are said to be very fair.

A base ball club has been organized in Dresden, Saxony, by a number of young Americans, and the Saxons seem to take to the sport with a gusto.

In China two good clubs have been formed, and they have already played two or three good games.

The report that Kelley has left the Atlantics is not true. He will not play in the nine, however, until his arm is thoroughly recuperated. The Atlantics know that Kelley is a good player and a good man, and all he needs now is a little easy practice to bring up his batting and throwing powers to what they used to be.

To-day the Excelsiors will open play on the Capitoline grounds. There will, undoubtedly, be a grand rally of the X. L. C. R.'s, and a good afternoon's sport will be provided for those who visit them.

The following is a list of MATCHES TO COME OFF.

To-day—Mutual vs. Olympic of New York on the Union grounds, Brooklyn, E. D., at three P. M.

To-day—Excelsior Club, opening game, on the Capitoline grounds.

May 6—Alpha vs. Atlantic, on the Capitoline grounds, at three P. M.

May 10—Champions of Jersey City vs. Atlantic, on the Capitoline grounds, at three P. M.

May 13—Princeton vs. Atlantic, on the Capitoline grounds, at three P. M.

THE CANALS.

[From the Albany Argus, May 3.]

In consequence of the floods and heavy rains the eastern division of the canals will not be opened until the 10th inst. Large portions of the Champlain canal still remain flooded. The prism in many places is filled up with floating logs and dirt, caused by the heavy freshets. Business prospects are very backward in the northern portion of the State. Lake Champlain is very high, the docks in many places being entirely covered with water, and the rains of Saturday and Sunday will increase the difficulties already encountered. It is safer and better not to open the canals until they are placed in good repair. This will have a tendency to prevent breaks and other detentions, so that when the spring business does commence it may be conducted with some degree of reliability. The business men of Northern New York are not anxious to have the Champlain canal opened for several days to come. Should the State attempt to offer them facilities for transportation the water is so high that little or nothing could be done. Much has been said about the giving way of the dam of the North Lake reservoir. It has been charged that the gates were closed when the high water came, and hence the breaking of the dam and the consequent destruction of property by the flood. The State officers have visited the locality, and have made rigid inquiries into the facts connected with the affair. They find that the gates were all opened and that the giving way of the dam was not the result of carelessness. The flood was beyond all precedent and all calculation. The amount of water suddenly collected was vastly greater than was ever known before. And this was the cause of the overflow. Commissioner Bascom has given his personal attention to this matter. The dams will be promptly repaired, and water enough will be saved in time to prevent a scarcity on the long level during the coming summer.

An association of about four hundred Bohemians in Chicago have sent a committee to Minnesota to select a locality in that State for a settlement. The association expects an increase of about 600 persons from their native country during the summer.

ARMY INTELLIGENCE.

Organization and Purpose of the Artillery School—General Sherman and the Graduates—Names of the Officers—The Second Term Commenced.

FORTRESS MONROE, Va., April 30, 1869.

The present week has been one of importance to this post and to the Artillery School here established, for within the past few days the first year of the school terminated, the officers constituting the first class have graduated, and those to form the class for the next year have arrived. The object for which the school was organized is to place all the officers of this arm of the service on an equal footing in regard to the theoretical knowledge of the artillery service and skill of its numerous scientific branches, as they are in its practical details.

The artillery has always been regarded as one of the most elevated branches of the army in point of education and military ability, and its officers are called upon to fill a liberal share of the more important and responsible positions in time of peace as well as in time of war. At the close of the late rebellion the five artillery regiments contained a large number of officers who received appointments and promotion for gallant and meritorious conduct in action and for efficient service in the artillery. Although these officers had been instructed in the very best school for acquiring a thorough practical knowledge of their profession, there was much connected with it of a theoretical character absolutely necessary to finish their military education that they were deficient in, but which was possessed by those officers who had graduated from the Military Academy. This deficiency in their military education could not but militate against their regular preferment in the army, and worked greatly to their disadvantage. It was to obviate this disparity between the officers of the artillery arm that the principal officers of the army conceived the idea of organizing a school for artillery practice. This proposition was carried into execution by the issue of General Order No. 99 from the War Department, series of 1867. Soon after General W. F. Barry, the present commander of the post and artillery school, was assigned to duty, an order was published establishing a code of rules and regulations. Every officer of this branch of the service must spend one year at the school; those appointed from civil life and from the ranks, having had experience in the practical part of the service, were at once selected by the General of the army, taking those first who are seniors in each grade; but graduates from West Point are not sent to the school until they have served a year with their batteries.

The commanding officer of the school is assisted by a staff composed of the officers assigned as instructors in the different branches of study. These are usually field officers and captains, and are changed at the end of every year. Nearly all of the officers who have been instructors during the past year were relieved to-day, and those to serve during the next term have not yet been selected. One is instructor in military surveying, engineering and astronomy. This position was ably filled during the term just closed by Major J. B. Shinn, Third artillery, who will continue in the same capacity throughout the coming year. Another is instructor in military history and geography; another in military, international and constitutional law and mathematics. This office was filled very efficiently last year by Brevet Colonel Guy V. Henry, First artillery, who has just been relieved to rejoin his regiment in New York. Another, Major J. B. Campbell, Fourth artillery, is instructor in mathematics, mechanics, ordnance and gunnery; Major Campbell will remain another year. These are instructors of officers, and are supervised by Brevet Brigadier General J. Roberts, Fourth artillery.

General Barry is also assisted by Brevet Brigadier General Charles H. Morgan, Fourth artillery, who has just reported to relieve General William Hays; Captain Albion Howe, Fourth artillery, ordnance officer, and Brevet Major J. P. Sanger, First artillery, adjutant. The officers ordered to report for instruction in the coming term are as follows:—Brevet Lieutenant Colonel S. S. Elder, First; Brevet Colonel S. N. Benjamin, Second; Captain J. W. Piper, Fifth; Brevet Major J. G. Turnbull, Third; First Lieutenant W. W. Tompkins, Third; Brevet Major D. H. Kinzie, Fifth; Brevet Major H. C. Cushing, Fourth; Brevet Major J. R. Brinkle, Fifth; First Lieutenant C. E. Kilbourne, Second; Brevet Major W. P. Graves, Second; Brevet Captain B. S. Humphrey, First; Brevet Captain M. Leahy, First; Brevet Captain Edward Field, Fourth; Second Lieutenant J. T. Webster, First; Second Lieutenant Charles Humphreys, Third; Brevet Captain J. B. Eaton, Third; Second Lieutenant W. F. Reynolds, First; Second Lieutenant E. T. C. Richmond; Second Lieutenant James Curry, Fifth, commissary of subsistence; Second Lieutenant W. F. Stewart, Fourth; Second Lieutenant William Stanton, Second; Second Lieutenant S. W. Taylor, Fourth; Brevet Major O. H. Howard, Fifth, and Second Lieutenant G. N. Whistler, Fifth artillery.

On the 1st day of May the new term commences. The officers will undergo a preliminary examination to ascertain their general proficiency at the outset. The practical and theoretical studies will begin and continue until the 1st of July. During July and August the theoretical instruction is suspended, and both are resumed on the 1st of September and continued until the 1st of April, when the examination occurs previous to graduation. The order issued to-day fixes the course of instruction for the month of May as follows:—Battery G, First artillery, practice with the siege battery; Battery K, Second artillery, practice with the sea coast battery; Battery A, Third artillery, practice with the mortar battery; Battery F, Fourth artillery, practice with the field battery; Battery C, Fifth artillery, practice with the casemate battery. Recitations will take place in that portion of the tactics in which the officers and men are being drilled. On Fridays there will be infantry drill, either by company or battalion.

Every month the kind of practice is varied for each battery, so as to give each a thorough course at every battery. There are five companies located at the post, one from each of the five artillery regiments, and the non-commissioned officers and privates also study and recite. The text books now in use are the following:—Algebra, geometry, trigonometry, Mendell's "Military" and Gillespie's "Civil Surveying," Bartlett's "Mechanics," Benton's "Ordnance and Gunnery," "Ordnance Manual," Benet's "Treatise on Chronoscope," "Mahan's "Field Fortification," "Outpost and Advanced Guards," Jomini's "Art of War," Kent's "Commentaries," Halleck's "International Law," French's "Law."

Of the twenty officers who passed through the first term of the school eighteen graduated, most of them with high honors. Two were found deficient and returned to their regiments without diplomas. It was at first proposed to permit those officers to remain another term, but General Sherman dissented from this view. He said that it was a great privilege to be allowed to attend the school, and should be so regarded. If an officer should fail, therefore, to pass a successful examination, he should give way for others who are waiting to take their course.

In order to give eclat to the close of the first term and to make the delivery of the diplomas an imposing ceremony General Barry requested General Sherman to be present. On Tuesday last General Sherman arrived and visited every part of the post. It was not merely a visit, but a thorough and critical inspection. Since Sherman's visit here he has earned the reputation of being a very skilful inspector; for, it is said, he was not content with looking only at the places brushed up and prepared for inspection, but he peeped into every nook and corner and asked all sorts of unexpected questions.

Among the places examined by the General was the house where the steam fire engine is kept. Here was a portly specimen of the New York fireman, who officiates as engineer. "What is the name of your engine?" asked the General. "The name is B. F. Butler." "Humph, an odd enough name for a fire engine," returned Sherman. "We want to change the name, General," said the engineer, "can't you suggest a name for it?" "No, no," answered Sherman, "let him squirt."

In the round of inspection the General entered the quarters of Battery A, Third artillery, where he was introduced to a second lieutenant of that battery. "Now," said the General, "you are just where I started from; see if you can catch me."

The General made a minute examination of every part of the post, and expressed himself well pleased with the appearance of everything. The school had operated exactly in accordance with his ideas, and the more he saw of it the stronger was his approval. At five o'clock the Band House was crowded with people to witness the delivery of the first diplomas issued from the artillery school. The proceedings were opened by General Barry introducing General Sherman in a short but effective speech. He alluded to the pleasant associations which had united them for the past year, and regretted that they were to be broken. He hoped that the past year had been spent with both pleasure and profit by them, and that in after years they would look back upon it with pride. He charged them not to abandon their studies as soon as they left the school, but to be as diligent in future years as they had during the past one; to learn, both by observation and study, the science of artillery, so that the honor of the corps of which he was so proud might never be tarnished by the conduct of any of its officers, and that they would fully sustain the enviable reputation always enjoyed by the artillery corps of the army in past years.

General Sherman then arose and advanced to the table in the centre of the hall, upon which were placed the diplomas. He said that he had come from Washington, at the invitation of General Barry, to be present on this occasion. He did not come to make them a speech, but he had a few words to say to them individually. He said they should be thankful for the opportunity thus afforded them of becoming thoroughly masters of the professions which they had adopted. Some of you may think that upon receiving your diplomas your studies and troubles will all be over. This is a mistake; for if you continue studying for the next ten years as hard as you have during the past one you will then just begin to see daylight ahead. He then reverted to the rapid strides which had been made in the artillery arm of the service. When he was a young man a twenty-four pounder was a big gun and excited his admiration, while the position of captain of a six-gun battery was the highest position to which he aspired, and to be a brevet major of artillery was the height of his ambition and dream of his youth. Now they had at this fort ten and fifteen-inch guns, throwing ponderous shot and shell, and handled with as much ease as were the guns of a light battery twenty years ago. Even now it was all he could do, by hard study, to keep pace with the rapid improvements of ordnance and gunnery. He thought the officers of the present day should be thankful to the government for providing them with this school, and hoped it was fully appreciated by them. He would have been glad, and he knew that any of the old army officers would have been glad for such an opportunity when they were young men. He charged them strictly to continue their studies after leaving school, and to endeavor by their individual exertions to maintain the reputation of the Regular army—the old Regular army, of which he was so proud. It now became his duty to perform the mechanical part of his visit—that of handing to each of the officers who had graduated their diplomas.

The diplomas were delivered to the officers in the following order, those highest in merit standing first in the list:—J. M. K. Davis, second lieutenant First artillery; Brevet Major J. P. Sanger, first lieutenant First artillery; T. T. Thornburgh, second lieutenant Second artillery; Brevet Major B. F. Rittenhouse, first lieutenant Fifth artillery; J. L. Tiernon, first lieutenant Third artillery; Brevet Major G. B. Rodney, first lieutenant Fourth artillery; J. W. Dillenback, first lieutenant First artillery; Brevet Captain Albion Howe, second lieutenant Fourth artillery; A. D. Schenck, second lieutenant Second artillery; O. E. Wood, second lieutenant Fifth artillery; H. C. Danes, second lieutenant Fifth artillery; Brevet Captain J. B. Hazleton, first lieutenant Fourth artillery; H. M. Jones, second lieutenant Fourth artillery; A. E. Clarke, first lieutenant Third artillery; Brevet Major C. P. Eakin, first lieutenant First artillery; Brevet Captain C. T. Bissell, second lieutenant Second artillery; B. F. Ryer, first lieutenant Second artillery; T. V. Deary, second lieutenant First artillery.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

Commodore Pennock has been detached from command of the European squadron and placed on waiting orders.

Commander Kirkland has been detached from command of the Wasp and ordered to return to the United States.

Paymaster J. B. Rittenhouse has been detached from duty as Inspector of Provisions and Clothing at the Boston Navy Yard on the 1st of June next and ordered to settle accounts. He will be relieved by Paymaster J. George Harris.

Passed Assistant Paymaster F. J. Painter and Assistant Paymasters H. S. Stancliff and George F. Bemis have been ordered to the Philadelphia Navy Yard for examination for promotion.

Chief Engineer W. M. Dungan has been ordered to the Navy Yard at Portsmouth, N. H., for special duty in regard to the construction of the smokepipe of the Nantasket.

The Philadelphia Navy Yard.

[From the Ledger, May 3.]

The screw steamer Juniata, which has been under repair for some months, is nearly completed, and it is expected will be put in commission about the first of June. She is second class, and carries six guns.

The sloop-of-war Brooklyn, from the extent of the repairs she is undergoing, will not be ready for sea for several months.

The three iron-clads under repair are the Dictator, first class, 3,033 tons; the Miantonomoh, second class, of 1,225 tons, and the Canonicus, third class, of 1,084 tons. These vessels do not need much repair, and can soon be put in commission, if such is the intention of the Navy Department.

Orders have been received for the making of specified alterations to the screw steamer Pushmataha, which was launched at the Philadelphia Yard about two years ago, and has remained ever since in an unfinished condition. The vessel was roofed over to protect her from the weather, and is in very good condition. Her machinery is on board, and but little time would be required to fit her for service. She is second class, and will carry eleven guns.

The Omaha, a second class screw steamer, is on the stocks, and is nearly ready for launching. A large force of calkers is engaged upon her. She will carry ten guns.

No work is being done to the Antietam, which is on the stocks in the large shiphouse. It was suspended about a year ago, owing to the fact that the Navy Department had no immediate use for her. She is a first class screw of over three thousand tons.

No orders have been received in respect to the iron-clad Shackamaxon, which is on the stocks. It is not probable that anything will be done to her soon, inasmuch as there are several iron-clads laid up at League Island, for which the department has no use.

The mechanics and laboring men employed at the yard now number about two thousand.

LITERATURE.

Reviews of New Books.

HILT TO HILT; OR, DAYS AND NIGHTS ON THE BANKS OF THE SHENANDOAH IN THE AUTUMN OF 1864. From the MSS. of Colonel Surry, of Eagle's Nest. By John Esten Cooke. New York: G. W. Carleton.

Mr. Cooke writes very agreeably, and this latest production of his is not only an improvement on "Surry of Eagle's Nest," but is also, as a novel, above the general average. The plot is well drawn, the characters are sketched in a spirited style, and the rapidity with which incident after incident follows each other combines to keep up the interest of the reader. Here and there a touch of the heroic, which belonged to the age of chivalry and which most Southern writers have a weakness for, is indulged in; still, as Mr. Cooke has evidently checked his desire—shall we write propensity?—to torture the reader with a repetition of Sir Walter Scott's style, we will not find fault with what little of it there is. On the whole, then, this is a very good work. Had it not been published now, ten or twelve years it would have been better. Romances founded on our recent civil war have become positive nuisances, and it is not to be wondered at if, under the circumstances, books of merit like this, relating to those bloody days, should be taken up with suspicion and prejudice or left "severely alone." We would recommend Mr. Cooke to write no more war novels for the present. His abilities can reap but little reputation and less profit by indulging in a kind of literature which the taste of the hour does not relish.

THE SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON, in words of one syllable. By Mary Godolphin. New York: George Routledge & Sons.

EVENING AT HOME, in words of one syllable. By Mary Godolphin. New York: George Routledge & Sons.

These elegant little volumes, which are published by the Messrs. Routledge & Sons, of this city, conjointly with J. B. Lippincott & Co., of Philadelphia, are admirably adapted for small children. Indeed, they are about the best of the kind that we have read for some time. All the stories narrated are simple and pleasing, just the things, in fact, to develop in the minds of children a taste for reading. Both the books are elegantly printed, illustrated and bound.

PRINCIPLES OF SQUAD INSTRUCTION FOR THE BROADSWORD. By A. J. Corbesier. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott & Co.

This manual scarcely needed the recommendation of Admiral Porter to confirm its merits as a work admirably suited for teaching the sabre exercise. It is adapted not only to the navy but also to our cavalry and artillery, although the author intended it only for the first named branch of the service. To the officers of the National Guard, and to all others who desire to learn the use of the sabre, this little work will be found of great service.

Miscellaneous.

We have received from Messrs. D. Appleton & Co., of New York, a copy of their cheap edition of Henry Kirke White's Poetical Works. It is well printed in large, clear type on excellent paper.

We have also received from H. H. Bancroft & Co., of San Francisco, Cadwalader's Map and Guide to the White River Mines. The mines referred to have been, for some time past, attracting considerable attention, and a medium of information regarding them, such as this publication is, will be found valuable to those adventurous spirits that propose seeking their fortunes in Eastern Nevada.

THE WESTERN CATTLE TRADE.—Stock growing at the West promises to become much more extensive and lucrative than ever before. A St. Louis paper, in alluding to the attractions which this branch of business holds out, observes:—On every side extend rich prairies, and from the West and South of us pour forward the illimitable herds from Texas, the Indian Territory and Kansas. The trade naturally belongs to St. Louis, but we do not receive it. Chicago handles 10,600 head of cattle per week; St. Louis but 2,000—or in round figures, Chicago buys and sells $50,000,000 worth of cattle per year, while St. Louis buys and sells $5,000,000 worth only; and at the same time two-thirds at least of the cattle sold in Chicago are raised and originally purchased, not only west of the Mississippi river, but in a territory nearer to St. Louis than Chicago, and ought to, but cannot, be shipped through St. Louis to Eastern markets cheaper than by way of Chicago.

THE STORM ON LONG ISLAND SOUND.—The storm was unusually severe on the Sound and seriously interfered with navigation. The faithful Elm City was the only boat that went through the Sound Saturday afternoon. She left New York at quarter past three, reached New Haven about ten P. M., and returned to New York the same night. The State of Maine left New York at half-past three P. M. Saturday, and lay over until Sunday forenoon, reaching New Haven about five P. M. The Traveller remained in New York until four o'clock Sunday morning, and reached New Haven about six P. M. All of the eastward Sound boats, as well as the Bridgeport boat, made a harbor and did not weigh anchor until the Traveller and State of Maine ventured out. Steamboat navigators report the gale as one of the most severe for many years.—New Haven Palladium, May 3.

THE BILLIARD TOURNAMENT.

The thirteenth game of the present grand billiard tournament now being held at Irving Hall was played last night, the contestants being Melvin Foster and William Goldthwaite. The game was a 1,200 point carrom one, push and crotch barred, each carrom counting three points. The table used was a second sized one, with four pockets.

The attendance was large, the hall being well filled, and among the spectators were observed quite a large number of ladies, who seemed quite as much interested in the skill exhibited, as did those of the sterner sex who are connoisseurs in the use of the cue. Foster, before the game opened, was said to be the favorite, but it was generally considered that the chances of the contestants were about equal, and if any betting was made it was done so quietly that no one was able to discover that business of that description was being transacted.

Goldthwait opened the game, but did not score, Foster in his first innings making a run of 39 points. In the second innings Goldthwait made 3, missing an easy shot, and Foster only scored 6 points. In the next two innings Goldthwait failed to score, and Foster made 12 in his third and nothing in his fourth, so that at the end of the fourth innings the score stood, Foster 57, Goldthwaite 3. Goldthwaite during the next three innings played somewhat carelessly, and when the game was called at the end of the seventh innings the score had advanced to 111 for Foster against 36 for Goldthwaite. In the eleventh innings Goldthwaite made a run of 36 and Foster made nothing, and the score was called, Foster 175, Goldthwaite 117. In the next innings (the twelfth) Goldthwaite made the first run of the evening, getting the balls well together at the upper end of the table. He played on them until he had made 117, thus making his score 234 to Foster's 175, the latter playing for safety and scoring nothing in the same innings. In the fourteenth innings Goldthwaite again made a good run, scoring 105 points. At this stage of the game Goldthwaite, no doubt encouraged by his success, played exceedingly well; Foster, however, had bad luck, and until the fifteenth innings had really no good show for scoring. At the end of this innings the score stood, Foster 205, Goldthwaite 402. In the twenty-first innings Foster made his first good play of the evening, running 72 in fine style; at the close of the innings the score stood, Goldthwaite 513, Foster 361. Foster, in the thirty-first innings, got the balls together, and made by very skilful play a run of 103 points, making the game stand, Goldthwaite 642, Foster 542. After this point Goldthwaite continued to creep ahead, without, however, making any extraordinary runs and at the end of the thirty-seventh innings Foster was still 100 points behind, keeping his position by a fine run of 93 points in the same innings. Foster, however, about this time began to play in better style, and in the forty-third innings made a run of 150 points, which placed him 10 ahead of his opponent, with the score at 888 to 878. The greatest excitement of the evening was manifested at this time, and it was then generally thought that the game was anybody's. Goldthwaite after this did some really fine playing, and in a few innings once more led his opponent by some hundred points. The lead was maintained till the close of the game, Goldthwaite winning by 176 points.

The following is the score:—

FOSTER—39, 6, 12, 0, 3, 0, 51, 19, 27, 27, 0, 0, 0, 9, 14, 21, 12, 49, 21, 1, 1, 72, 3, 9, 0, 0, 0, 3, 45, 3, 9, 109, 3, 0, 0, 48, 24, 93, 3, 4, 18, 3, 1, 150, 0, 0, 60, 37, 0, 9, 0, 3, 0, 0, 21, 0, 6. Total, 1,024.

GOLDTHWAITE—0, 3, 0, 0, 6, 24, 3, 27, 0, 18, 36, 117, 21, 13, 105, 42, 45, 0, 45, 18, 3, 0, 21, 15, 36, 27, 18, 9, 3, 3, 0, 0, 93, 1, 39, 15, 12, 6, 54, 1, 3, 3, 3, 3, 53, 3, 6, 0, 3, 25, 12, 9, 30, 27, 0, 78, 3, 63. Total, 1,200.

57 innings. Winner's average, 21⅙; Foster's, 19.

Goldthwaite's best runs were 117, 105 and 96; and Foster's were 109, 93 and 150.

John Sereiter, of Detroit, acted as referee, and Frank Parker, of Chicago, as marker.

SALE OF A PRIVATE LIBRARY AT AUCTION.

A select and choice assortment of standard and other books, by English and American authors, belonging to a private library, were sold at public auction last evening at the salesroom of Leavitt, Strebeigh & Co., Astor place. There was a fair attendance, but the bidding was dull and tame, and many of the books were disposed of at a sacrifice; in fact, scarcely any of them brought half their value. Beattie's "Castles and Abbeys of England," containing over 200 engravings, 2 vols., imperial 8 vo. half morocco, with gilt edges, brought $6 75 a volume. Beaumont and Fletcher's works, 11 vols., 8vo, bound in cloth, were knocked down for $3 25 a volume. Henry Ward Beecher's "Star Papers," a 12mo book, brought 75c., and Benton's "Thirty Years in the United States Senate" was handed over to the highest bidder for 25c. A good edition of Frederika Bremer's works brought 75c. a volume, and a handsome quarto, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, entitled "Book of Battle Songs of Various Nations," was knocked down for $1. "The Book of Mormon," 12mo, bound in cloth, was handed over to an apparently appreciative Gentile for the small sum of 75c., while "The Bible in Spain" was only valued at 55c. Buckingham's "Specimens of Newspaper Literature," in 2 vols., bound in cloth, brought 30c. a volume, and a complete set of Bulwer's works (21 vols., crown 8vo, cloth) was disposed of at 45c. a volume. Butler's "Hudibras," illustrated 16mo., cloth, brought 50c.; "Byron," 50c., and "Campbell," 75c. Napoleon's "Julius Cæsar," 2 vols., went for $1 a volume, and Du Chaillu's "Explorations in Equatorial Africa" for $1 75. Chittenden's "Report of the Peace Convention of 1861" was valued at 75c.; "German Romances," by Carlyle, at 50c., and Walt Whitman's "Drum Taps" at 15c. Chambers' "Book of Days," 2 vols., was knocked down at $2 50 a volume; and a fine copy of "Chaucer," published in 1598, brought $10 50. The sale was continued until a late hour, and will be resumed again this evening.

FIRE IN PEARL STREET.

Loss Twenty Thousand Dollars.

About a quarter past twelve o'clock last night a fire broke out on the third floor of the four story and attic brick building No. 67 Pearl street, and, although the firemen were on the ground almost immediately after the alarm had been rung on the bells, the contents of the building were totally destroyed before the flames could be extinguished. There was a high wind prevailing at the time, which drove the flames upon the adjoining building, and owing to the exertions of the firemen the fire was finally confined to No. 67, which was completely destroyed. The first floor of this building was occupied by William L. Allen & Co., produce dealers, whose loss on stock is estimated at $5,000. The stock of G. B. Latham, produce dealer, who also occupied the first floor, was damaged $2,500. The stock of hops of A. C. Smith, Jr., who occupied No. 68, the warehouse adjoining the one in which the fire broke out, was damaged about $2,500. The second floor of the same building, occupied by Miner & Besson, dealers in hops, was also damaged by water probably to the extent of $2,000. Whilst the fire was at its height the gable end of No. 67 fell upon the rear part of the roof of No. 65, damaging the stock of hops stored in the upper floors $2,000. The second floor of the same building, occupied by Wm. Hulbert & Brothers, was considerably damaged by water. The loss on No. 67 is estimated at $8,000.

THE STRIKE AT HAVERSTRAW.

The strike of the laborers on the brickyards at Haverstraw for fewer hours of labor continues, but without the accompaniments of riot and violence. Many of the laborers, unable to make a satisfactory arrangement with the employers, and unwilling to surrender the rights which they claim, are leaving for other places. Laborers to take the places of the strikers are daily expected from Canada.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

SUICIDE.—An unknown man jumped into the North river at the foot of Eighty-sixth street last evening and was drowned.

STABBING AFFRAY.—During a fight which took place last evening in Francis Keogh's liquor store, No. 132 Tenth avenue, Edward Dempsey, of No. 449 West Nineteenth street, was stabbed with a knife in the hand and cheek by a man named John Mann. Dempsey's wounds are not considered dangerous. Mann was arrested.

GENERAL NOTES.

The Vermont State Prison contains eighty-two convicts, three of whom are females.

There are eight tunnels on the Pennsylvania Railroad, ranging from 200 to 3,612 feet.

The "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky has sold the South during the past fall and winter $2,000,000 worth of mules.

J. Jeter Phillips, convicted of murder in Richmond, Va., has been respited until Friday, May 14. This is the fourth respite.

A cotton factory in Claiborne parish, Louisiana, established since the close of the war, is now paying a net profit of twenty-four per cent per annum.

A bee master in Indiana has successfully protected his bees from the disease which has swept the hives throughout the country, by feeding them with salt, rye flour and sugar boiled to the consistency of honey.

The Alexandria (Va.) Gazette of May 1 says:—Three large flocks of wild geese passed over the city last night, between the hours of ten and twelve o'clock, and, what is remarkable, they were going south.

It is noted as a singular fact that while New England is relatively losing ground, as regards the native population, a new emigration from Canada is filling up the vacancies made by the emigration of New Englanders westward.

A three story brick house, eighteen by forty feet, and in the construction of which 42,350 brick were used, was built in Lancaster, Pa., last week, in nineteen and a half hours, and persons were living in it within three days from the time it was commenced.

From all indications, says the Americus (Ga.) Republican, we will be blessed with an abundance of fruit this season. A sufficient number of peaches are still upon the trees, and the slight thinning the frost caused among them two or three weeks ago will be more than counterbalanced by their superior quality when fully matured.

Marine Disasters.

STEAMSHIP ST GEORGE (Br), from Portland for Glasgow, before reported ashore on Blonde Rock, has sunk. The crew were saved. She had no passengers. She struck at 12:30 PM. The weather was clear and the sea calm, with a light breeze. The tide flows through all her compartments.

SCHR ADA STEEL, Chase, of and from Harwichport, bound on a fishing cruise, and the schr Ada Herbert, Somes, from New York for Boston, collided AM of 3d inst off Hart Island, and both vessels received considerable damage. The A S had bowsprit carried away, &c. The A H lost flying jib and was cut down to the water's edge on her starboard bow. Both vessels were towed to the city by the steamtug Olive Baker.

SCHR SUSAN & JULIA, from Rockland for New York, with 860 bbls of lime, while in Edgartown harbor on Sunday, dragged her anchors and struck, sprung a leak, caught fire, burned to the water's edge and sunk. The vessel and cargo are a total loss.

SCHR ROBERT HEALEY, Brooks, from Richmond via Osborne's Landing, with coal, sunk near the wharf at Washington, DC, 30th ult. No particulars.

SCHR LEWIS AUDENREID, from Philadelphia, which ran on to the floating battery Georgia, off Fort Jackson, in April, 1868, and sunk, has been raised and carried to a point near Fort Jackson and ran on to a bank. The water will probably be pumped out of her to-day (29th), when the bottom will be repaired. The only damage sustained which is thus far susceptible is the hole in her bottom where she was struck, about midship, and a portion of the ice rail carried away where she had been lying on her broadside.

SCHR WM CALLAHAN, coal laden, before reported sunk off Sharp's Island, was towed to Baltimore 1st inst by steamer Resolute.

SCHR BENJ BROWN, Oliver, from Darien, Ga, with lumber, of and for Providence, is ashore at Long Branch, and a total loss.

SCHR SYDNEY C TYLER, from Baltimore for New York, with coal, was aground on Hampton bar 30th ult, and would be got off the next flood tide.

SCHR L Q C WISHART, from Wilmington, NC, for New York, put into Norfolk this morning (3d), leaking badly.

SCHR PARALLEL, from Elizabethport for Salem, is ashore on Scampscott beach. Her cargo will be saved.

A LARGE SCHOONER is reported ashore on the Jersey shore near the Tavern Houses; is full of water; name unknown.

QUEENSTOWN, April 20—The weather in the Atlantic appears to have been most disastrous to vessels bound out to Quebec engaged to bring home the season's timber. Yesterday the British bark Bombay Packet, Walsh master, put in in a leaky and damaged condition. She was outward from Cardiff to Quebec with coals, and reports having experienced heavy westerly gales, with high seas, which has considerably strained the vessel, which is docked to discharge and repair. Another bark, named the Paragon, Irwin master, put back to-day in a similar state. She sailed from here on Good Friday for Quebec, and after reaching 42 W was obliged to return. Both vessels while at anchor here before removal to the dock had seven feet water in their holds, and this with pumps constantly kept going. This makes almost a dozen "Quebecers" this season that put in here more or less disabled.

The American ship Mont Blanc, Chase master, has been towed out of repairing dock and is awaiting a favorable wind to resume her voyage for New York.

CAPE TOWN, March 19—The Loch Lamar (American), under repairs in Simon's Bay, has been safely launched from the patent slip.

KINGSTON, Jam, April 15—The bark C A Jones, of Canso, NS, left this port on the 26th ult for London via Yallahs to load, was wrecked in the port of Yallahs on the 7th inst. Captain and crew saved. The hull and deck materials, &c, saved sold at auction for £405.

The brig Charlotte McDonald, of New Brunswick, Drussett master, with a cargo of logwood, bound to Philadelphia, left this port on the 6th inst, was wrecked off Rocky Point on the 7th inst at 10 P M. Captain and crew saved. Hull, &c, sold at auction for £600.

FORTRESS MONROE, May 3—The brig James, aground on Hampton bar, is being lightered out.

Miscellaneous.

MISSING VESSEL—The Laertes, Witt, sailed for New York on or about the 28th November last, with wheat for Queenstown, and has not since been heard of.

EMPLOYMENT OF CHILDREN IN MANUFACTURING ESTABLISHMENTS.

Juvenile Slavery in Massachusetts—The Hours of Toil and the Poor Wages—The Comparative Condition of the Manufacturing Classes of New England and Old England.

BOSTON, April 30, 1869.

It is a matter of common information that children are more largely employed in manufacturing establishments in Massachusetts than in any other section of the country, and it is equally true, but not so generally known, that their condition is little better than that of the juvenile negro population in the palmy and flourishing days of Southern slavery. Education, morality and Christianity have always been advertised as the chief products of the old Bay State, but there has always been an intentional or accidental omission of less worthy characteristics of this Puritan land. While there is undoubtedly much to praise and admire in Massachusetts laws and customs it is nevertheless true that there is a very great deal to denounce, and it would seem to be well if some of the long-haired philanthropists would concentrate their efforts upon needed reforms about home, rather than attempt to ameliorate the condition of the less deserving in distant localities. The matter of the employment of children in manufacturing establishments is one in which there is an opportunity for a wise reform, and the demands for it have been so numerous of late that the last Legislature was forced to take some decided action, and in response to a cartload or more of petitions an initiatory step was taken in the passage of a law forbidding the employment of any children less than ten years of age, and the employment of any between ten and fifteen unless they shall attend school three months in the year, and none of these to be employed more than sixty hours per week—the penalty for violation being a fine of fifty dollars from the parents, guardians, or overseers of the establishment.

To secure an enforcement of this law, or ascertain the possibility of enforcing it, Mr. Henry K. Oliver, of Salem, was specially detailed as a State officer to examine into the manner in which children are employed in the various manufacturing establishments in the State, and a report which he has recently made to the Legislature is anything but corroborative of the eminent character of Massachusetts. Mr. Oliver, in pursuance of accomplishing the work assigned him, commenced a correspondence with the town clerks, assessors and deputy State constables throughout the State, and the following are among some of the principal facts resulting from that correspondence:—

Number of towns in Massachusetts	325

Of the establishments employing children thirty were found to have them within their premises over sixty hours per week, and in view of this and other unpleasant facts Mr. Oliver remarks:—"Yet we are not as men altogether without hope. Something has been accomplished. The condition of these children has evoked the attention of the people of the State. There is a demand for information on the subject, and a demand that will push away evasion and all adroit concealment, and that will insist upon it that this reproach under which the Commonwealth has fallen shall be purged away, and that a State that has boasted so much of its educational advance and so often called upon sister States to mend their shortcomings shall not be pointed at with the finger of scorn and hear it reproachfully said, 'Physician, heal thyself.' We have indeed boasted long and loud, and we still boast, and by the highest as well as the lowest educational authorities, in State paper and report of small school district, we herald to the world tidings of our own educational self-praise. And yet we have a very great deal to learn, and to feel it to be true, that if in general views and practice of a diffusive education we have outstripped England we ourselves are being outstripped by our own sister States in the same matters."

Having given a lengthy account of the attempts in various sections of the State to educate the factory children, Mr. Oliver refers to the condition of the factory children in England, and then goes on to say:—"Now, if it be asked what has all this to do with your specialty, I reply, you have equal ignorance here, and equal misery will come from it, unless you remedy it by educating your workers. In education, then, the principal centres of the manufacturing industry stand below the average of the whole of England and Wales. Taking the signatures of parties to marriage registers as a guide, those who 'make their mark' were thirty per cent of the men and forty-six per cent of the women, the proportion for all England and Wales being twenty-three per cent of men and thirty-two per cent of women, showing all through a better education of women than of men. In this pitiable ignorance Manchester was the lowest, being for males nineteen, and for females forty-six per cent, a degree of ignorance that should shame Old England and alarm New England, 'lest a worse befall her.' For drunkenness more persons are arrested in the manufacturing districts than elsewhere in the ratio of seven to five, or 700 there to 500 elsewhere. The rate of mortality is uniformly greater than the average in England and Wales, arising from overcrowding and imperfect sanitary regulations, insufficiency of food, excess of drinking, and other bad habits. In my report of 1868 I gave some pictures of English factory life, and of England's adult and child operatives, which some have thought to have been highly colored and painted beyond the life. I can only say that the canvas, indeed, rested on my easel, but I sketched my portraits with an English pencil and dipped my brush into English colors, completing the entire likeness after the verisimilitude of English originals. I did ——nothing extenuate,

Nor set down aught in malice.

I have, since writing that document, received from England several works on the same subjects, and they fully confirm all I said. All that I stated, and now state, I give for the warning of the people of my own State and country, that they may ward off the evils of the foreign factory system by the shield of a moral and intellectual culture—by improving the habits, refining the tastes and utilizing the capacities of this rapidly increasing class of our population—so that their own individual elevation shall add its strong support to the general good and elevation of the whole Commonwealth."

Further along in his report appears an extract of a letter to Mr. Oliver from a person familiar with factory life in Massachusetts:—"The principle of slavery, 'disguise it as we may,' has always existed and always will. The manufacturer will pay his help as little as possible, and keep them at work as closely as possible, and all he intends they shall have is enough to feed them, to clothe them and to keep them in heart as long as he can profitably use them, and then, the supply having answered the demand, they may go their way. Certain parties are called the great manufacturers of New England, and they have been engaged as such for generations; yet the man or the family that has been in their employ and come out of it with more than enough for a decent interment is yet to be found. Now when such a party begins work he buys a water power, or if he uses steam he selects a spot where help may be handy, and then quietly buys all the land in the vicinity, and as soon as he begins the very foundation of his mill he starts what is called the store, and everybody buys at the store, and it seems to be very handy, the store does, and so it is, for it is helping the manufacturer to put in his foundation and build his mill by the very money he paid his people for their work, and which they pay back to him for supplies at the store, with a good percentage of profit, and from being their debtor, they have, before they know it, become his. And such as this is 'what the matter is,' and is the great lifting lever which lifts him up by the force of others' muscles. Everybody at work in the 'new city' buys and must buy at the store all needed supplies, household and personal. When pay-day comes round the employed get no money, but only a receipt or a store credit for future supplies. Usually they are in debt to the store, and if they want to leave the place they find themselves tied down by the fetters of such debt and they cannot leave. The result is a helpless crowd of workers, the oppression of low wages, inevitable poverty and a disguised serfdom, a rich master, a poor servant and a mean population. Such is the story of manufacturing in Old England, and such is the story of manufacturing in New England. Let the people of Massachusetts see to it that the evil be a muzzled one here, and they themselves be protected against its biting by the shield of an education that shall keep it from eating into the bowels of the body politic."

After referring at considerable length to the wages of operatives and cost of living in England the commissioner produces the same facts concerning manufacturing cities and towns in Massachusetts, reckoning eleven hours as the standard day's work, and referring more particularly to establishments in the western section of the State:—

Operatives.	Wages per Week.	Board per Week.	Earnings above Board. Per Week.	Per Year.
Carders, male	$7 32	$4 25	$3 07	$159 64

Second overseers of rooms	10 50	4 25	6 25	325 00

In this part of Massachusetts the earnings and expenses of a family of four persons one month—all earning save the mother, who "keeps house" for the rest—may be stated as follows:—Income of man, $30 to $48; of boy, $18 to $24; of girl, $12 to $20. Total, $60 to $92; average, $76. Expenses, rent, food, fuel and clothing for the four, average, $56. Excess gain, $20 for four weeks, or $260 per year.

In certain large mills in Eastern Massachusetts, which are designated as Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, the weekly wages are as follows:—

Operatives.	1.	2.	3.	4.	5.

‡ Over fifteen years of age.

Now in the localities of these several mills the cost of living, as actually obtained by letters addressed, say a year since, to ten heads of families, the families varying from four to seven persons each, gave for each person $126 78, say for convenience $130. Now take a family of four persons, allow the mother to "keep house" for the rest, and the father and two children to work and earn, the average income of the three per annum would be, taking the lowest figures, $739 44; cost of four persons, at $130 each, $520—a saving of $219 44. Putting living at $150 each and you will have still $139 54. Take now the best earnings (below the overseer's) and you will find an income of the three of over $1,000; and putting the cost of living of each party at $175 and you will still have a saving. The board of men in these localities is $4, $4 50 and $5 per week; of women $2 75 to $3, and of children $1 50, $2 and $2 25. In one of the towns a family of five persons can be maintained for from $350 to $400 a year, rent, fuel, food and clothing included. Commissioner Wells gives 35½ per cent as the true excess of wages in the United States over those of Great Britain. Omitting overseers the average weekly earnings of operatives in our cotton mills in 1867 was $6 25 (gold) and in Great Britain $3 87. A recent Lowell Courier gives the following tables of wages in two of the mills in that city in 1860 and 1869:—

WAGES OF THE MERRIMACK COMPANY (COTTON).

By tables given also of cost of living in these two years at Lowell it appears that it would take fifty-six dollars in 1869 to buy what thirty dollars would buy in 1860. Rent had nearly doubled off the corporation limits. The deposits in the four savings banks of Lowell for the year ending the last Saturday in October, 1868, were $2,051,171 by 20,748 persons, a very material portion of whom were operatives. The deposits in the two savings banks of Lawrence for the same period were $672,931 by 7,568 persons, of whom one-quarter were operatives. Now a comparison of these prices with those paid in England and on the Continent will show a vast difference, and will show a reason why the American operative is better fed, better clothed, and better lodged than his fellow operative abroad, and will show that the children employed in our mills, if children of operatives, as many of them are, may be, and if may be, ought to be, and if ought to be, must be better educated than the operative children of operative parents abroad.

Forgetting, then, in view of all these facts the nolliness and righteousness of Massachusetts, let us unite with Tom Hood in the sorrowing strain of the "Workhouse Clock," and sing:—

Hark! don't you hear the tramp
Of thousands speeding along,
Of either sex, and various stamp,
Sickly and crippled and strong;
Dingy with smoke, and dust and toil,
And smirched beside with viscous soil,
Clustering, mustering, all in a swarm,
"Hands" for the mill and "gangs" for the farm;
Father and mother and careworn child,
Looking as if they had never smiled.

And how can one help adding in like strain,—

Hark! don't you hear the booming bell,
Waking the hands in garret and cell?
Look, as from lane and court they sally,
From nasty homes and in a nasty alley!
To toil at shuttle and needle and wheel,
Deafening loom, and spindle and reel,
Thread and yarn, and iron and steel,
Cotton and woollen, and mungo and shoddy,
Despair for the soul and wear-out for the body;
At work or at home they breathe a foul air,
Ragged, they weave what they cannot wear;
Hungry, they toil for another's fare;
Thirsty, they revel in mad despair.

Count Bismarck turns his visits to Varzin to some account. When once there he becomes invisible. It is stated in Berlin that very recently he visited the Rhenish towns incognito. The Prince of Prussia, accompanied by his staff, will shortly visit the fortifications at Coblentz. Such trips surely do not denote peaceful prospects.

ST. DOMINGO.

Revolutionary Movements—Invasion by the Cacos—Popular Views of the Annexation Question.

ST. DOMINGO, April 11, 1869.

The cry of the "wolf is coming" has been falsely and wantonly raised so many times that it has brought him at last. We have had numberless exciting reports that the black generals Luperon and Adon were marching over the borders of Hayti with their Caco allies to invade the Dominican territory, but I was not inclined to believe they would ever show themselves with half of 500 men anywhere. It was a mistake. They have collected nearly that number on the old cry, "to overthrow Baez and resist annexation." It is clearly a war of races, and they are making both sides of the boundary line too warm for decent people. It is the grand effort of the Cacos, or anti-Salnaves, in combination with the refugees of the Dominican republic, to put down Baez and stave off white immigration; but somewhat less than 500 illy armed negroes are not likely to do great things in the way of revolution. They are the "cowboys" of this unfortunate island, and in one form or another have lived by depredation for years. They have completely desolated a strip of fine country fifty miles wide on the dividing line between the Dominican republic and that of Hayti. Whenever there is civil commotion these wild frontiersmen declare for one side or the other, and form into bands for general plunder. The Cacos of the north and south coasts of Hayti proper have divided among themselves, and are gravely threatening each other with annexation to the United States. These domestic quarrels do not prevent the border Cacos from fraternizing in large cattle stealing bands and giving great trouble to the Dominican authorities. These freebooting raids are reported at Jacmel, and thence to Jamaica and the States, as regular battles, in which the Cacos—like the Spaniards in Cuba—always claim to be splendidly victorious. Two or three times we have been foolish enough to send a long way to get at the very truth, and never yet have we found it worth the cost. Several of these cattle thieves have been taken, tried and shot by order of the general of the frontier, and even such cases are reported as important "military movements" by both parties.

There was a kind of conspiracy attempted in Santiago de los Cavelleros at the close of the Easter week, but it was discovered and the plotters arrested. The object was to depose Baez and unite with the Cacos of Hayti, which is not the popular idea of that section.

Business is very good in the interior, but continues dull at St. Domingo. There are no American vessels in port, but the W. D. Forrest is daily looked for from New York, with a party of gentlemen who propose forming a commercial establishment at Monte Cristi. They have a concession for making a wagon road from La Vega to Manzanillo Bay. It is one of the first buddings of prospective annexation, and others are preparing to follow. Let them all come if they mean business and have anything to work with. The desire of annexation, or "union with the Americans," as the country people describe it, is spreading daily. I cannot imagine how they get at the contents of the papers from the North, they are known and circulated so rapidly. Even the poor market women may be seen to go in search of some one to read to them a scrap of the last intelligence from America. They ignore as not worth naming any patch of a country, like Mexico or Brazil, which happens not to be included in the United States. "Cuba will be united to America also by President Garanta," said one old crone to another as they were discussing cassava and honey in a quiet, shaded corner of the yard I was passing through. "What will he do with the Spaniards?" asked the other. "Send them back, or——" I did not hear the rest; but this is the spirit of St. Domingo at present, and it will be a terrible disappointment here if Congress will not take the island under its broad wings.

A SOUTHERN "UP COUNTRYMAN'S" BAGGAGE.—A gentleman friend was invited to the private room of one of our "up country" visitors. As usual, the question was asked, "How long will you stay in the city?" "I brought baggage to stay a week," was the reply. Said baggage consisted of one small valise, which he opened, and exposed the following:—One pistol, one shirt, one towel, two dirty handkerchiefs. The other side contained thusly:—One pair socks, one quart bottle corn whiskey, one ditto rye, one ditto Madeira wine, one wisp brush, one tooth-scratcher, one cake black soap, one fine comb and a large Bible. "Oh, do stay two weeks!" was the ejaculation upon witnessing the aforesaid conglomeration for a week's stay.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BROOKLYN, April 24, 1869.

TO MR. AND MRS. BARNEY WILLIAMS:—

We, the undersigned, citizens of Brooklyn, ever ready to support native talent and appreciate private worth, cordially invite you to our city, if compatible with your other engagements, to give a few representations of the famous Irish drama of the "Emerald Ring." We believe we can say for our city that you are always welcome; and in no part of the world are your artistic representations of Irish and Yankee characters more highly relished than in the city of Brooklyn. Hoping to receive a favorable answer, we are,

Very respectfully,

Martin Kalbfleisch,	Wm. E. Robinson,	William C. Dewitt,
E. T. Wood,	Isaac Badeau,	George C. Bennett,
J. H. McCormack,	James O'Brian,	William Swinton,

and fifty others.

NEW YORK, April 27, 1869.

TO THE HON. MAYOR KALBFLEISCH AND OTHERS:—

GENTLEMEN—I beg to acknowledge with many thanks the reception of your kind invitation to visit Brooklyn for the purpose of giving a few representations of our last great success, "The Emerald Ring." It is most gratifying to my wife and self to receive such expressions of friendship and respect. It has completely filled our hearts with gratitude, so much so that I cannot find sufficient words to express it; but we will do better by trying to deserve it. I accept with pride and pleasure your invitation (who would not?), and to know we have won your favor and esteem is of far more value to us than any pecuniary result that we could possibly derive from our proposed performance. With your permission I will name the evenings of Monday and Wednesday, May 10 and 12, at the Academy of Music, for positively two nights only, when I will bring with me all the mechanical effects and paraphernalia, the entire orchestra and original cast of characters. Trusting the "Emerald Ring" may be firmly set in your golden opinions, I am, with much respect,

BARNEY WILLIAMS.
